Teen Dance Broken Up —Man Cut

50 Youngsters Involved In Fight After Knife Pulled

A fight, involving about 50 youngsters at a Mill Valley Teen Club's dance last night, was not broken up until after an adult was cut and two youths were arrested.

The fight started in the American Legion Hall at 469 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley, at 10:30 p.m. when a Marin City Negro boy reportedly threatened a white boy with a knife.

Officers from nine Marin County police departments, the sheriff's department and the California Highway patrol were called to disperse the youths. The crowd was dispersed by 11 p.m., but trouble broke out again at nearby C's Drive-In, 510 Miller Avenue.

Teen Club Manager Hal H. Schwartz of Mill Valley was cut on the thumb and was nicked on the chin as he tried to get the knife away from the Negro.

The youth, 17, is in Juvenile Hall today on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

A 15-year-old Belvedere girl was turned over to juvenile authorities for disturbing the peace and refusing to disperse as a result of the melee. The dance was the last for the school year.

Schwartz said today that the fight was the worst trouble in the history of the teen club.

"Apparently the boy with the knife had had an altercation with the other boy long before the dance," Schwartz said.

"I was out of the dance hall temporarily when I heard shouting. When I entered the room, I saw the boy with the knife and grabbed his arm, the one without the knife.

GRABBED ARM

"Several of the club members grabbed his other arm and disarmed him but in the meantime, my thumb was cut by the weapon," the six-year veteran of teen club dances said.

"The free-for-all started after the knife was pulled and the kids learned I had been hurt."

About 200 teen-agers were at the dance but only 50 of them were involved in the donnybrook, according to Mill Valley police reports.

Schwartz said today that there were approximately 10 Negro boys at the dance. All of them came without dates, he said.

RESERVE OFFICERS

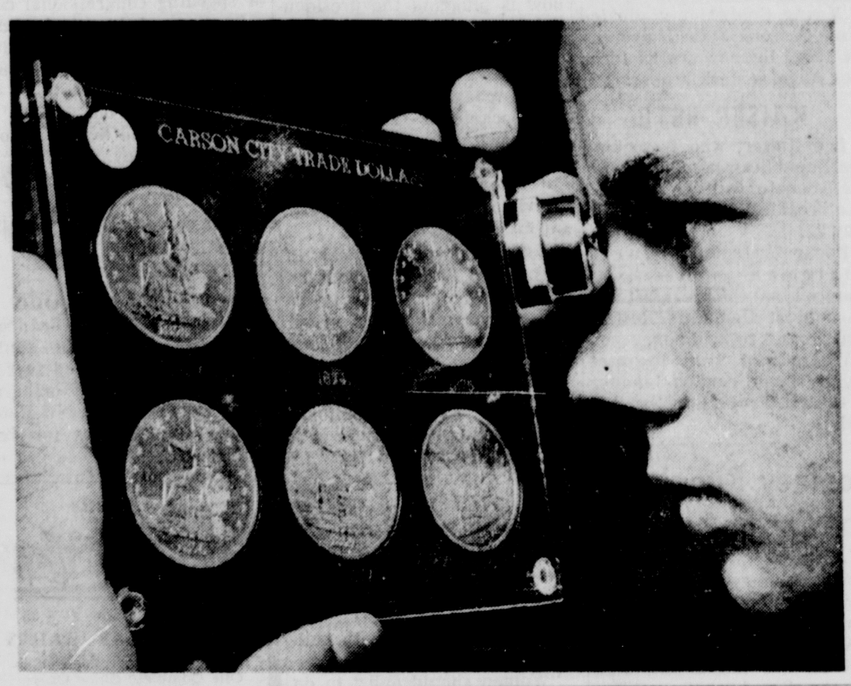

Two reserve policemen, Charles Bassett and Maurice Angland, who were on duty at the dance, were unable to break up the fight and when two officers made a routine check at the dance shortly after the fight began, they were unable to enter the dance hall because of the melee.

Fist fights continued outside the hall where several Negro

Rocky's Oregon Victory Shakes Up Republicans

Jubilant Governor Now Eyes California

PORTLAND (UPI) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller shook up the Republican Party today by his victory in Oregon and left the GOP wondering how the June 2 primary in California would affect its search for a 1964 presidential nominee.

By winning yesterday's Republican presidential primary in Oregon, the New Yorker shortened the odds against him in California, where he is matched in a two-man race with Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona. He also checked and perhaps reversed the drive to nominate Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge for the presidency.

If Rockefeller can come from behind in California as he did in Oregon, he may throw the Republican national convention into a wide open affair so that a compromise candidate may be chosen in a smoke-filled room.

In New York, Rockefeller, jubilant and smiling, said his triumph in Oregon was a victory for "forward looking, responsible Republicanism."

Rockefeller said the trend established in Oregon obviously "can't be missed" in the California primary.

Asked for his anaiysis for the vote "switch" in Oregon, Rockefeller credited his campaign of meeting the people, who he said wanted to know how the candidates think.

"The voters are intelligent, responsible people," the governor said in a press conference. "By talking to them and answering their questions — I think this was the basis for the vote switch."

SAME WAY

Rockefeller said he planned to conduct his campaign in California the same way he did in Oregon.

"I am going to talk to the people and offer solutions to our country's problems," Rockefeller said. "This we must do if we are to win."

Rockefeller noted that he and Sen. Barry Goldwater, his chief rival for the GOP presidential nomination differed completely on a number of issues, including social security and the admission of Red China to the United Nations.

300 DELEGATES

Goldwater, who already has about 300 of the 655 national convention delegates needed to win the nomination, could come close to wrapping it up by winning California's 86 votes.

Rockefeller could not sew up the nomination by winning in California but he could wreck the Goldwater campaign and increase the likelihood of a convention deadlock and of the search for a compromise candidate.

His Oregon victory was in part a payoff for his intensive campaigning up to the eve of the primary. Goldwater wrote

Head-On Car Crash Hurts Four

Four persons were injured in a head-on car crash at 10:45 p.m. yesterday on Bridgeway Boulevard near Olive Street, in Sausalito.

The accident occured when a southbound vehicle in which Jean Greenberg, 30, of 510 Johnson Street and Constance Bannett, 31 Crescent Ave., Sausalito, were riding swerved into the northbound lane and struck a car driven by Palmer Oliver Wilkins, 29, of 4080 Paradise Drive, Tiburon.

Wilkins' wife, Joyce, 26, suffered multiple lacerations of the face and a fractured nose. She was in good condition today at Marin General Hospital. He was treated for bruises of the left arm.

Miss Greenberg suffered multiple lacerations of the face and was transferred to Kaiser Hospital in San Francisco in good condition. Miss Bannett received cuts on the face and a dislocated left hip. She was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital.

The crash caused a short in the wiring under the hood of the women's car resulting in a lot of smoke but little damage to the car, according to Sausalito firemen.

Sausalito policemen investigating the accident were unable to determine who was driving the southbound car.

Rain Hits With No Welcome

Steady rain, unexpected and unwelcome to many Marinites who had special plans, began this morning bringing .30 of and inch to San Rafael by noon.

The Weather Bureau, which did not predict the rain this far south, reported that there would be scattered clouds over Marin tomorrow.

Slick pavement caused a series of minor accidents at noon and shortly after today on the San Rafael overpass of Highway 101.

The unexpected rain forced postponement until tomorrow of the Marinwood-Lucas Valley school carnival. It will go on at the Mary E. Silviera School from noon to 5 p.m.

The rain also washed out the Larkspur School District Yes for Bond and Tax Committee's clown entertainment. The clown and musician had traveled by truck through some communities, but by noon they were too wet to continue.

Youths Fear More Trouble After Fight

Mill Valley Teen Club president Ted Carrillo and Tamalpais High School student body President John Wooley were fearful today that there may be further repercussions from last night's fight.

"A lot of guys are mad because Mr. Schwartz was hurt," Carrillo said "The fight may mean no more dances."

Wooley saw little point in making an appeal that there be no more trouble. "The kids who would listen don't get involved in fights," he said.

Hot And Cold

NEW YORK (UPI)—The highest temperature in the United States, excluding Alaska and Hawaii, reported to the U.S. Weather Bureau yesterday was 104 at Blythe, Calif. The lowest temperature reported this morning was 32 at Bellingham, Wash.

275 'Freedom Schools' Pupils Are Signed Up

About 275 Negro children had been signed up by noon today for the "freedom schools" scheduled to open in Marin City Monday in connection with a boycott by the 600 Negro pupils in the Sausalito School District.

A leader of the boycott said there would be no cancellation or postponement due to the State Board of Education's action in attempting to prevent a similar walkout from Oakland's public schools.

Douglas J. Quiett, chairman of the Marin Chapter of Congress of Racial Equality, said door-to-door calls on Marin City families would continue through the day, and possibly tomorrow, in hopes of signing up most of the Negro youngsters who attend the district's four schools.

However, District Supt. Marcus F. Davis said yesterday his office has received calls from a few Negro parents who said their children will attend school despite the boycott.

Davis earlier announced that school would be held as usual Monday and that anyone not in attendance would be considered truant.

The boycott has been planned to show CORE's dissatisfaction with the results of eight months efforts to obtain an intergration plan for the district. It is being timed to coincide with the tenth anniversary of the Supreme Court's historic 1954 desegregation decision, which will be tomorrow.

At the schools, the striking pupils will receive classes in Negro history and art, taught by Negro and white teachers, and will see films on freedom.

Kindergarten through fourth-grade pupils will go to the First Missionary Baptist Church for the special classes. CORE officials have not yet determined where the older pupils will go, but have said they would hold the classes outdoors if necessary.

Meanwhile, the Oakland boycott appeared today to have been averted by an unprecedented action of the State Board of Education, which stepped in to negotiate differences between local school boards and the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

At a two-hour session yesterday, Thomas W. Braden, president of the state board, and State Superintendent of Public Instruction Max Rafferty urged both sides to make concessions.

They asked the Oakland board to submit the dispute to the State Commission on Equal Opportunities, and requested the NAACP to call off the boycott.

Neither side was asked for a definite commitment, but four members of the Oakland board will vote Tuesday on whether to invite the commission to Oakland, and a special session of the Oakland NAACP's directors was expected to be called in time to head off the boycott.

Boaters Warned Of Span Danger

Don't loiter under the Golden Gate Bridge.

That was the warning to Bay Area boaters today from the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District. Officials explained that the bridge is in for a six-month repair job and there is a chance that small chunks of concrete will fall.

There will be lookouts posted with the crews to call off work while boats are passing beneath the bridge. Construction will be from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Five Children Burn

PUEBLO, Colo. (UPI) — Fire swept through a rural farm home near Pueblo early today and burned five children to death. Parents of the victims were at a party several miles away.

Magazine Is Hazard To Health

The Marin County Health Department is checking to make sure that the current issue of Escapade Magazine is being removed from newsstands and magazine racks because it is a health hazard.

The issue contains instructions suggestions that pages of the magazine be soaked in methyl alcohol and that the reader drink the liquid for hallucinatory effects.

"Even aside from the effect of whatever drug may be involved, methyl alcohol (or wood alcohol) is an active poison," reported Dr. Carolyn Albrecht, county health officer. "Instructions in the magazine therefore constitute a danger to public health."

The publisher has ordered distributors to recall the magazine from dealers and remove the pages, and the health department is attempting to make sure that local distributors follow the publisher's instructions, Dr. Albrecht said.

Election Monday On Tax Increase

Members of the Loma Verde Homeowners Assn. will vote on a proposed five-cent tax boost Monday at a meeting at Loma Verde School, commencing at 8 p.m.

The increase would bring the total tax from 19 to 24 cents per $100 assessed valuation, association president John E. Frederick said.

The extra money would support the parkway maintenance portion of the budget, he said.

Mountain Play Opens Tomorrow

"Flamenca," the 47th Mountain Play, opens tomorrow in Cushing Mmeorial Amphitheater on Mount Tamalpais.

Author-director Dan Totheroh was spending today in final dress rehearsal with a cast of almost 150 actors, singers and dancers, in preparation for the 2 p.m. performance tomorrow. The pageant will be repeated May 24.

"Flamenca," in its second production since Totheroh wrote it especially for the Mountain Play in 1928, tells the story of a gypsy princess and the Spanish grandee who loves her more than his position in life. The production, set in the Pyrenees Mountains 200 years ago, takes advantage of th emajestic natural setting of the theater.

Greyhound Bus Lines will run buses from the Seventh Street terminal in San Francisco, beginning at 10 a.m., an dcontinuing at frequent intervals.

Motorist can reach the theater by following Mountain Play signs along Highway 1. Many playgoers plan to take along a picnic lunch to eat prior to the performance.

Tickets will be available at the gate. There is no charge for children under six years.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Iva In Court

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Convicted murderess Iva Kroeger, 45, appeared in court yesterday and was ordered to return May 25 for setting of a date for her new penalty trial.

Mrs. Kroeger was convicted along with her husband for the murder of Jay and Mildred Arneson of Santa Rosa. She was given the death penalty and her husband, Ralph, 61, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

The State Supreme Court set aside Mrs. Kroeger's death penalty March 31 on grounds the jury should not have been told she could be freed after seven years in prison.

Her attorney, Melvin Belli, said he may seek an entire new trial, not just the penalty phase.

'Stop Propaganda'

MOSCOW (AP)—Mongolia has called on Communist China to call off its propaganda warfare against the Soviet Union inside Mongolia, the Soviet news agency Tass reported last night.

Tass said the rebuff was contained in a note by the Mongolian Foreign Ministry to the Chinese Embassy in Ulan Bator, Mongolia's capital.

The note called the attacks "a crude violation of the norms of interstate relations," Tass said.

Both the Soviet Union and China have attempted to woo Mongolia, a buffer state between the two Communist powers.

Cuba Water Shortage

HAVANA (AP)—The regime of Fidel Castro admits it is worried about an acute water shortage in Havana.

Faustino Perez, head of the Cuban Water Resources Institute, acknowledged government concern yesterday, but added: "This problem has been inherited and was not created by the revolution."

Havana newspapers blamed the shortage on a drought, inadequate water mains and daily leakage of 30 million gallons from damaged lines.

Ike's Health Good

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower was found to be in good health after his annual physical checkup, his office in Gettysburg, Pa., reported yesterday. Eisenhower had his checkup at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington.

Why Draft Cuts?

DALLAS (UPI) — Secretary of the Army Stephen Ailes said yesterday current reduction in monthly draft calls was due to decreased need, not to politics. Ailes said he saw no possibility of an end to the draft in the next two or three years.

DINAH SEEKS DIVORCE

Singer Dinah Shore is shown with her second husband, Maurice Smith, whom she sued for divorce in Indio yesterday. The singer, 45, accused Smith, a Palm Springs contractor, of causing her "great and grievous mental anguish and suffering" and said he treated her with extreme cruelty. They are shown at the time of their marriage at San Bernardino on May 26, 1963. Miss Shore divorced cowboy actor George Montgomery May 9, 1962, after 18 years of marriage. She has two children, Melissa Ann, 16, and John David Montgomery, 9. (AP Wirephoto)

North Koreans Release Two Pilots

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP)—North Korean Communists today released two American helicopter pilots forced down by gunfire last May, then claimed the U.N. Command had acknowledged the pilots committed a border violation on an espionage mission.

Stutts

A United Nations Command spokesman confirmed delivery of a receipt for the prisoners admitting they committed espionage. But he said later, that the admission "is, of course, meaningless."

Capts. Ben. W. Stutts, 31, Florence, Ala., and Carleton W. Voltz, 27, Frankfort, Mich., the pilots, were flown to Seoul, where doctors said they were in good condition.

They were to rest overnight in the U.S. Army hospital before questioning by intelligence officers.

Voltz

The pilots, who quickly changed from drab cotton Communist uniforms into U.S. Army khaki, were not permitted to talk to newsmen.

In Seoul, the U.N. spokesman, U.S. Army Col. George Creel, explained the advance receipt and its admission of espionage in a statement.

"UNC representatives were prepared to sign and did sign a receipt which, pursuant to KPA (Communist North Korean army) demands as a condition for the release of the pilots included a statement that the helicopter pilots committed espionage," the statement said.

"Such an admission is, of course, meaningless."

Barry Clears LBJ

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater last night found President Lyndon B. Johnson innocent of any wrongdoing in the famous beagle ear-pulling incident.

"Actually the president didn't pick the dog up by the ear," the Republican presidential candidate said during the taping of the Steve Allen television show.

"I watched it on TV. He was stroking the dog's ear. Dogs like to have their ears stroked," Goldwater commented.

Vetoed By Brown

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown has vetoed a bill that would have changed provisions of the judges' retirement system for a group of judges appointed since 1962. He said yesterday he favored a comprehensive judicial retirement program, but opposed granting piecemeal benefits to a few judges at a time.

Victory In Vietnam

SAIGON (AP)—The South Vietnamese government said today its forces scored a victory in a two-day battle in southern An Giang Province, killing 37 Communist guerrillas. The government said its own losses before the firing ended yesterday were two dead.

Cart Before Horse

BRAINTREE, Mass. (UPI)—For five months the St. Thomas More Church Mothers' Club saved 660 books of trading stamps to buy a new station wagon for the Sisters of Nazareth Convent. It was discovered yesterday none of the nuns knew how to drive. The sister superior said the mother house in Kentucky will appoint a nun to take driving lessons.

Two Children Die In Home Blast

CONCORD (AP)—Two children were killed and another critically injured today in an explosion and fire that demolished the front half of their home at Concord while their parents were away.

The dead were identified as David Littlefield, 10, and his sister Allison, whose seventh birthday was yesterday. The family planned a party today.

Injured was Cheryl Littlefield, 12, who was badly burned and suffering from extensive smoke inhalation.

Firemen said Darrell Littlefield, a high school mathematics teacher, had left the house to pick up his wife, Mari, a nurse at a hospital in Walnut Creek.

POLITICS

Goldwater Junior Due In County

Barry Goldwater Jr., son of the candidate for Republican presidential nomination, will speak on behalf of his father's campaign at College of Marin next Thursday at 12:30 p.m.

Young Goldwater's appearance is sponsored by the College of Marin Young Republicans and the Marin County Youth for Goldwater organization. Robert P. Jaress, who heads both organizations, is coordinating the political rally.

A folksinging group called the Goldwaters is also on the program, Jaress said.

Young Goldwater graduated from Arizona State University in 1962. He now works for a Los Angeles stock broker.

KAISER FETE

Lee Kaiser, who is seeking the Republican nomination for U.S. Senate, will be honored at a breakfast in San Rafael on May 27.

Edgar T. Lindner, Marin chairman for Kaiser, announced that the breakfast will be held at Dominic's Restaurant from 8 to 9:30 a.m.

Voters who want to meet Kaiser should contact Lindner at Growth Properties, San Rafael.

Romney Running For Governor

LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—Gov. George Romney announced today he would seek a second term as governor of Michigan.

Although Romney had stated that he was not a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, some observers had viewed him as a possible dark horse candidate.

Romney said that despite some drawbacks during his 17 months as governor, "it has been real satisfaction to work with state officials and see Michigan progress."

Jackie Robinson Plugs For Rocky

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jackie Robinson, first Negro to play major league baseball, declares that Republican nomination of Barry Goldwater or Richard Nixon for president would lose the Negro vote.

"They're saying they don't want the Negro vote," the 45-year-old former Brooklyn Dodgers star commented yesterday, if the GOP nod goes to the Arizona senator or the former vice president.

"Nixon would be worse" than Goldwater, Robinson told a Sacramento National Assn. for the Advance of Colored People audience. He worked for Nixon as an independent in 1960, but now is plugging the presidential hopes of Now York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

National politics concentrated today on California and the Rockefeller-Goldwater showdown in the primary June 2. The governor flies back to California Tuesday, buoyed by his victory in yesterday's Oregon GOP primary.

Goldwater was to speak in Santa Rosa today, as both he and Rockefeller slated intensive campaigning in an effort to corral California's 86 national convention delegates.

The other key California contest—also attracting national attention — continued with Democratic senatorial hopefuls Alan Cranston and Pierre Salinger seeking votes in each end of the state.

Cranston called on a women's club group in San Diego to enlist in President Lyndon B. Johnson's war on poverty, particularly in working with children.

"Women should enlist to do what they know best—working with children. The roots of poverty lie in illiteracy, ignorance and lack of motivation or, to put it another way, the despair that cames from loss of hope. Children are not born with despair."

Yesterday, the state controller told 4,000 University of California students at Berkeley that between him and Salinger, "The choice is between the back room party of the East or the free and open party I want for California."

He again said that since he and the former White House press secretary differ little on issues, the choice is between control of the party by the rank and file or by behind-the-scenes manipulators—such as Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh.

Salinger, meanwhile, joined Cranston in advocating a means of speeding congressional consideration of key issues. He told a Santa Cruz audience that a change in Senate rules should come so a vote can be taken on the civil rights bill, since " a majority of the Senate favors it. In this, they speak for a majority of the American people."

Salinger campaigned in Marin county today.

Adult School Aide

Ellsworth R. Briggs, dean of the College of Marin adult school, has been elected secretary-treasurer of the Northern California Assn. of Adult Education Administrators for fiscal 1965.

One Of Most Wanted Nabbed

ROME, Ga. (UPI)—Sammy Earl Ammons, one of the FBI's 10 most wanted criminals who was captured last night after a 105 MPH police chase, told authorities today that two children he is suspected of slaying died of natural deaths.

Mrs. John Reed, mother of the dead children and once believed by authorities to be another of the victims, was arrested in Gadsden, Ala., a few hours after Ammons' capture.

The bodies of Mrs. Reed's children, Rose Marie, 4, and John Anthony, 2, were found in a septic tank near Crossville, Tenn., Sept. 2, 1963.

Clausen Works For Highway

Rep. Don H. Clausen (R-Crescent City) and Assemblyman Frank P. Belotti (R-Eureka) conferred in Washington, D.C., this week to urge that Redwood Highway be included in the federal system.

Clausen and Belotti met with Rep. George Fallon (D-Md.), author of a bill aimed at spelling out the future highway needs of the nation. They expressed hope that the bill would result in the extension of the Interstate highway system to include Redwood Highway from the Golden Gate Bridge to the Oregon border.

Because highways placed in the Interstate system are deemed important to the national defense, the federal government pays about 90 per cent of the construction cost.

In the California Legislature, Sen. John F. McCarthy (R-San Rafael) authored a resolution, urging state and federal officials to designate Redwood Highway as a part of the federal interstate system. The resolution has passed both houses of the Legislature and was sent on to the Secretary of State this week.

off the state and stayed out of it during the last five weeks of the campaign. The other four candidates were represented by stand-ins or by no organization at all.

Results from 2,893 of Orego's 3,251 precincts gave: Rockefeller 79,505, Lodge 65,654, Goldwater 43,037, Nixon 40,469, Mrs. Smith 7,035 and Scranton 4,522.

President Lyndon B. Johnson, the only name on the ballot in the Democratic presidential primary, received 201,355 votes. Gov. George C. Wallace, segregationist foe of the Johnson administration, polled 926 write-in votes.

In percentages, the Republican presidential vote gave Rockefeller 33.2 per cent, Lodge 27.3, Goldwater 17.9, Nixon 16.8, Mrs. Smith 2.9 and Scranton 1.9.

FIGHT

youngsters had been trying to enter the dance without paying.

"At least one of the Negro youths inside tried to stop the fight with the help of some club members, but to no avail," Schwartz said.

The fight was broken up and the crowd dispersed, but only temporarily.

At 11:10 p.m. two sheriff's deputies arrived at the Drive-in to assist other officers in stopping a continuation of the fray. Deputy Hilary C. Lannen got out of the car to help one youngster whose head was apparently being "bashed in against the building's wall" and he was surrounded by 15 to 20 Negro youths.

His companion, Deputy Wyman Tong, who was unable to make radio contact with the communications center because of other radio traffic, left the car to help Lannen.

An unidentified citizen jumped into the patrol car and called for help. When word of the citizen's action got around in the crowd, the youths backed off from the deputies and more sheriff's patrol cars soon arrived at the scene to disperse the crowd.

Soviet Nuclear Test Detected

Rod, Gun Club Sorry, But Firm On Charnow

Marin Rod and Gun Club members last night stuck by established policy and voted not to allow use of their clubhouse for a Manny Charnow birthday party expected to draw 300 senior citizens.

A committee including Leo Ciucci, John Marzetta, Silvio Ruffino, G. Paul Jones and Judge Leonard A. Thomas had investigated the request and recommended that Charnow's application be denied. The club's board of directors accepted the recommendation last week, and the membership concurred last night.

Judge Thomas, public relations chairman for the club, explained that the club has reluctantly turned down many worthy requests because of a policy established for years not to permit use of the clubhouse or facilities by individuals or organizations.

"Frequently, adherence to this policy has brought about sincere soul searching by the club because many if not all such requests have been for worthy projects or causes," said Judge Thomas.

"The adoption of this policy came about because of a desire to prevent the arising of a myriad of problems associated with the use of the clubhouse or facilities by other than the club itself.

"Damage to persons or property, insurance liability, lost and misplaced property, injured feelings if one were permitted and another refused, and the like, follow inevitably in the wake of such outside use.

"In 1963 a request was directed to the club for use of the clubhouse and facilities for a seniors outing. Adhering to its established policy, the club reluctantly refused the request.

"This refusal had its basis in several unpleasant incidents which resulted from the one deviation from policy in permitting such an outing in 1960."

Judge Thomas said the committee conferred with leaders in recreation and in senior citizen activities before reaching the decision.

He pointed out that the club has turned down requests from other worthy groups like the Marin Conservation League, Ducks Unlimited, and Tyee (a sportsman's club in San Francisco) on the basis of the same established policy.

Four Injured In Crash At Underpass

Four persons suffered minor injuries in a three-car, chain reaction crash on Highway 101 at the Lincoln Avenue underpass, San Rafael, at 5:25 p.m. yesterday.

The northbound cars traveling in heavy home-bound commuter traffic were involved in two rear-end collisions as traffic halted in front of them, the California Highway Patrol reported.

A car driven by James T. Callaghan, 28, of San Francisco, halted and was struck by a car driven by Cheryle Ann Leahy, 19, of 404 Vendola Drive, Santa Venetia, the CHP reported.

In turn the Leahy car was struck from behind by a car driven by Paul Terry Schimpf, 21, a Navy man stationed aboard the Buchanan in San Francisco.

Miss Leahy suffered a sprained neck, Schimpf suffered a cut lip, and Marie Hummel, 21, of Petaluma, a passenger in Schimpf's car, suffered multiple bruises and scrapes. All were treated at Marin General Hospital and sent home.

Mrs. Marie Callaghan, 59, of San Francisco, complained of pain and told CHP officers she would be treated by a private doctor. She was a passenger in the Callaghan car.

Hamilton Is Taking Part In Mock War

Hamilton Air Force Base will be bombed within the next two weeks.

The bombs, however, will be harmless, just part of a mock war. The training period has been designated Exercise Desert Strike and it will mean increased air activity in the Bay Area.

The Air Force warned Marin County residents that the skies may be a little bit noisier for the next two weeks. There may be some sonic booms.

The planes will be providing ground support for forces in the mock war. The exercise area will include California, Nevada and Arizona.

Industry Boasts Own Gold 'Mining' Setup

FORT MADISON, Ia. (UPI) — Vacuum cleaners and washing machines last year "mined" more than $150,000 worth of 14-karat gold in this Mississippi River community. Gold that flecks off in grinding and polishing of nibs at the Sheaffer Pen plant is salvaged daily from floor sweepings, wash water and workers' aprons, smocks and towels by special attachments on those standard household appliances.

GERTRUDE K. JONES
Still no trace

Woman Missing For Week

The Marin County Sheriff's Office reported today it still has found no trace of Mrs. Gertrude Kavesh Jones, 43, of 301 Richardson Way, Tamalpais Valley, who disappeared from her home Sunday.

A report that Mrs. Jones was seen in a Marin County doctor's office yesterday was not confirmed, deputies said.

Her husband, Bruce B. Jones, a longshoreman and union organizer, told the sheriff's office she left home after an argument. She had attempted to take her own life in 1959, he said.

Mrs. Jones recently had a cataract operation. She has difficulty with her sight, but can drive a car. She did not have the car with her when she vanished Sunday, however.

She is interested in education, has done some substitute teaching and has been active in real estate investment. Jones said his wife was upset about a recent investment.

Kentfield Girl Is Injured As Auto Rolls Over

A 15-year-old Kentfield girl suffered back injuries, cuts and bruises when the car in which she was riding careened out of the Fort Barry - Fort Baker tunnel at 5:30 a.m. today.

The girl, Nancy Lavensaler, of 126 Cypress Avenue, was a passenger in a car driven by Alan R. McCormick, 16, of 16 Spring Road, Kentfield, according to military police.

The eastbound car had just emerged from the tunnel when it struck a bank on the right side of the roadway, rolled over several times, struck a curb on the left side of the roadway and skidded another 111 feet before it stopped, police said.

During the rollovers, Miss Lavensaler was thrown from the car landing on the roadway, police reported. She was sent to Letterman General Hospital where she was reported in good condition today and was scheduled to be sent home or transferred to another hospital.

U.N. Monument Recommended For Alcatraz

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Alcatraz Island should be the site of a monument commemorating the 1945 founding of the United Nations in San Francisco, a special commission recommended yesterday.

Sen. Edward Long (D-Mo.), who is chairman of the five-man commission on the disposition of the island, said the abandoned prison buildings could be razed and the monument constructed at no cost to the taxpayers.

Long said the proposal was submitted to the commission by the San Francisco Chapter of the American Assn. for the United Nations.

"The organization not only suggested a monument commemorating the founding of the United Nations in San Francisco in 1945 and as a symbol of peace," Long said, "but offered to raise and to contribute sufficient funds to conduct the international competition, to demolish the present structures on the island and to construct the monument."

TV Franchise Situation Is Settled

The television cable franchise situated in Fairfax was established yesterday when Clear View Cable Systems posted the required $11,000 bond by deadline.

Fairfax councilmen agreed Monday that if the firm did not post the bond by 6:30 p.m. yesterday, they would consider revoking the television franchise ordinance under which the contract was granted to Clear View.

Councilmen set a special session for 6:30 p.m., but did not have to attend because the bond was posted, reported Mayor Cornelis Van Vliet. The ordinance and contract become effective Thursday.

Councilmen met at 7:30 p.m. with Police Chief James Orr, Fire Chief Charles Thornton and City Clerk Alice Leonesio. They discussed the duties of the department heads and the future needs of the departments, Van Vliet said.

IS IT POSSIBLE that women's role as homemakers has contributed to their failure to achieve top rank in many fields? Answers to this and other related questions will be explored in Mill Valley in a lecture-panel discussion entitled "Woman in Search of Herself." Enacting the roles of career girl and housewife respectively are Mrs. Richard Janson, left, and Mrs. Charles Cutting, two members of the Homestead Valley Improvement Club, which is sponsoring the event.

'Woman In Search Of Herself' Topic For Club Lecture-Panel

Two successful women and two qualified men will discuss "Woman in Search of Herself" or, "Where is the Female Bach?" on Friday at 8 p.m. in Brown's Hall, Mill Valley.

The lecture-panel discusssion is presented by the Homestead Valley Improvement Club.

FEATURED speaker will be Dr. Kurt Schlesinger of Mill Valley, adjunct in psychiatry at Mt. Zion Hospital in San Francisco, and moderator of the panel will be Wanda Ramey of Mill Valley, television news commentator.

Members of the panel will be Edith Thatcher Hurd, well known Mill Valley author of children's books; Mrs. Anne Diamond, San Rafael attorney; and Alfred Azevedo of Tiburon, a leader in the San Francisco school system's education program.

DR. SCHLESINGER says, "some years ago it was held that the equalization of education opportunities would erase or narrow the disparity in intellectual achievement between the sexes. This has not been the case. Our colleges produce few women who become excited by a major research area, work in it, formulate data into a new theoretical statement."

SOME OF the lines of inquiry the panel will discuss with Dr. Schlesinger will include: Can women take their places as full citizens without sacrificing feminine qualities and contributions? Can, and will men allow them to become first class citizens?

Tickets are available at Brown's Hall on Miller Avenue, Mill Valley, Tuesdays through Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Proceeds will go to Brown's Hall rebuilding fund.

Purses Contain Oddments Galore

ODESSA, Tex. (UPI)—Men who think women carry a lot of junk in their purses have some strong ammunition from a spot check by J. L. Wilson, a reporter for the Odessa American.

Wilson visited a large store and asked the first 10 women with over-sized purses to open them for his survey. Four refused to show what they were carrying but the others:

—All had safety pins.

—Carried a wide variety of trading stamps.

—Carried more than 100 items, about 20 of which for makeup purposes.

—One had a toothbrush.

—Half hour overparking tickets.

Wilson also found three pairs of sunshades in one purse, an ice cream wrapper, an electric outlet plug, a deck of playing cards, six tubes of eye shadow in one purse, a high school diploma, a Canadian $2 bill, a flashlight, various toys and a clock.

Two women had diet plans and one carried a knob from the directional signal switch of the family automobile.

SEW SIMPLE

She Could Shed Tears Over A Shift That's Just Too Short

By EUNICE FARMER

"I could just cry! I just cut a beautiful linen shift without checking the length since the pattern envelope pictured a floor length as well as a shorter length dress. Imagine my frustration when I found it is three inches too short. Can anything be done to help me, or will this be my costly lesson?"

Mrs. M. T.

Dear Mrs. M.T.:

You and all the other gals who will be making these shifts this summer should measure and check the patterns carefully. The pattern you used should have been marked "Beach Shift."

If you have any extra fabric, cut another lower skirt section about 8 inches deep and attach this to a separate lining. This should extend about 3 inches below the finish hem of your dress and will have a popular tunic effect. (You may even like it better!)

Reader's Tip

"Here's another one for nylon net! For those of us who still have children who play with tub toys, make net bags the needed size for your toys by using bias seam tape. Draw string the top with tape and also make a loop to hang the bag on the faucet. This keeps the toys off the tub edge and easy to find next bath time.

"When the bodice and skirt have been joined, I never know which direction the seams should be pressed and the pattern never explains it. I don't know what we'd do without you to come to the rescue. You give us that confidence and encouragement we all seem to need.

Mrs. C. C.

Dear Mrs. C.C.:

Thank for your sweet words and I'd love to personally meet and teach each one of you.

The direction of the waistline seams are often determined by the construction. If the bodice is gathered, the seams must go down, if the skirt is gathered, the seams must go up. In other words, you don't change the direction of the gathered edge.

If there are no gathers at the waist, the seams are usually pressed down. Be sure to clip the bodice since it must fit down over a larger area. This will avoid a pulled look.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

"I have discovered a way to make a size 14½ inch white dress shirt grow into a size 15½ inch to meet my growing son's need.

"First, I purchase a size 15½ inch collar replacement (available at most notion counters). After carefully removing the original collar, I pin the inside edge of the new collar to the inside edge of the shirt neckline, matching the center back and front edges, ¼ inch below the original stitching. Next, I stitch the outside edge of collar band to the outside of the shirt, sew on the button and the new shirt collar has grown an inch!"

Mrs. W. F. Carleton, Mountain Home, Idaho is this week's winner of a Tailor Trix Pressing Board for this suggestion.

One of the most outstanding dresses I have seen this year had a row of buttons off center, from shoulder to hem. Each buttonhole was made in a different color and the button was covered to correspond with the buttonhole. This would be so easy to do and so very effective, but you must make a perfect buttonhole. For a detailed instruction leaflet, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Sew Simple in care of the Independent - Journal. Include your request for "Bound Buttonholes."

SAUCY SKIMMER

SEE HOW a bandana yoke and ties add an outstanding touch to this saucy skimmer! Sew it all in bouncy checks, or sew dress in white with real bandana print for contrast.

Printed Pattern 4882: Children's Sizes 2, 4, 6, 8. Size 6 takes 1¼ yards 35-inch fabric.

THIRTY-FIVE CENTS in coins for this pattern—add 15¢ for each pattern for first-class mailing and special handling. Send to ANNE ADAMS, care of Independent - Journal Pattern Dept., 1040 B Street, San Rafael, Calif. Print plainly Name, Address with Zone, Size and Style Number.

He has retired as executive vice president of Honolulu Oil Corporation. He and his wife have bought a home at Marin Golf and Country Club and will also be near their son, Peter Kraft, and his family who live in Terra Linda. The Peter Krafts have two children and the Leydeckers, three.

HONORING Mike McCone, and his wife, the former Nini Charles, his mother, Mrs. Alex McAndrew of Ross, her husband, and Mike's sister, Mrs. Albert Dibblee of Merced are giving an informal dinner party for him and Nini Tuesday night. Invited are long time friends of the young couple. Mike, who was deputy director of the Peace Corps in Sierra Leone, West Africa for several years is now awaiting assignment to another post in which he is being promoted to director of the Peace Corps. He, his wife and three boys, ranging in age from four years to 18 months, returned from Africa several weeks ago. Mike went first to Washington, D.C., for a conference with Peace Corps officials. Following graduation and the presentation of awards for scholastic achievement and citizenship by David W. Jackson, headmaster of the school, luncheon will be served in the dining hall and on the lawn, to the graduates, their parents and friends. That evening the senior dance will be held.

WITH AN ORIENTAL FLAVOR

"Oriental Fantasies" was the theme of yesterday afternoon's fashion luncheon of the Mill Valley Women's Golf Club. In the parade were everything from a gold lame swim suit to "floating" evening gowns. Finale of the show was a group of Orient or Polynesia inspired styles at home in the modern fashion picture. Photographed through one of the Oriental gate table centerpieces which formed Mrs. Donald N. Fox's rave-rating decorations are several of these costumes. In the left foreground is Mrs. Lynn Sumpter. From left, others are commentator, Mrs. Charles Gondak, Mrs. Hugh Richardson in a "Japanese Beatle" outfit that stopped the show, Mrs. Henry Helmboldt and Mrs. Doris Keast.

League Adopts Second State Study Item

A second state study item was adopted by delegates to the third biennial council conference of the League of Women Voters of California held recently at Asilomar.

Convening with the state board of directors were 67 delegates representing over 12,000 league members. Mrs. Robert J. Gicker represented the Central Marin League and Mrs. Keith Kaulum the Southern Marin League.

The second state study item chosen was "The State's Role in Regulating Sales and Rentals of Real Property." Emphasis will be on constitutional guarantees, laws and executive orders and the role of representative government.

Next year the league will also continue its study of the California legislature. Attention was focused on current California legislative session. Delegates affirmed their support of bills abolishing the school land fund and limiting veterans' exemptions to California residents, and their opposition to further extension of property tax exemptions to veterans' widows.

Availability was announced of the league's nonpartisan publication "It's Your Party," a factual picture of California's political party structure and the vital importance of volunteer workers.

Margaret Sanborn Will Be Speaker At Section Meet

Margaret Sanborn, a local author and resident of Mill Valley for many years, will be the speaker at the Reading Section meeting of the Mill Valley Community Church Club Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. in the parish hall.

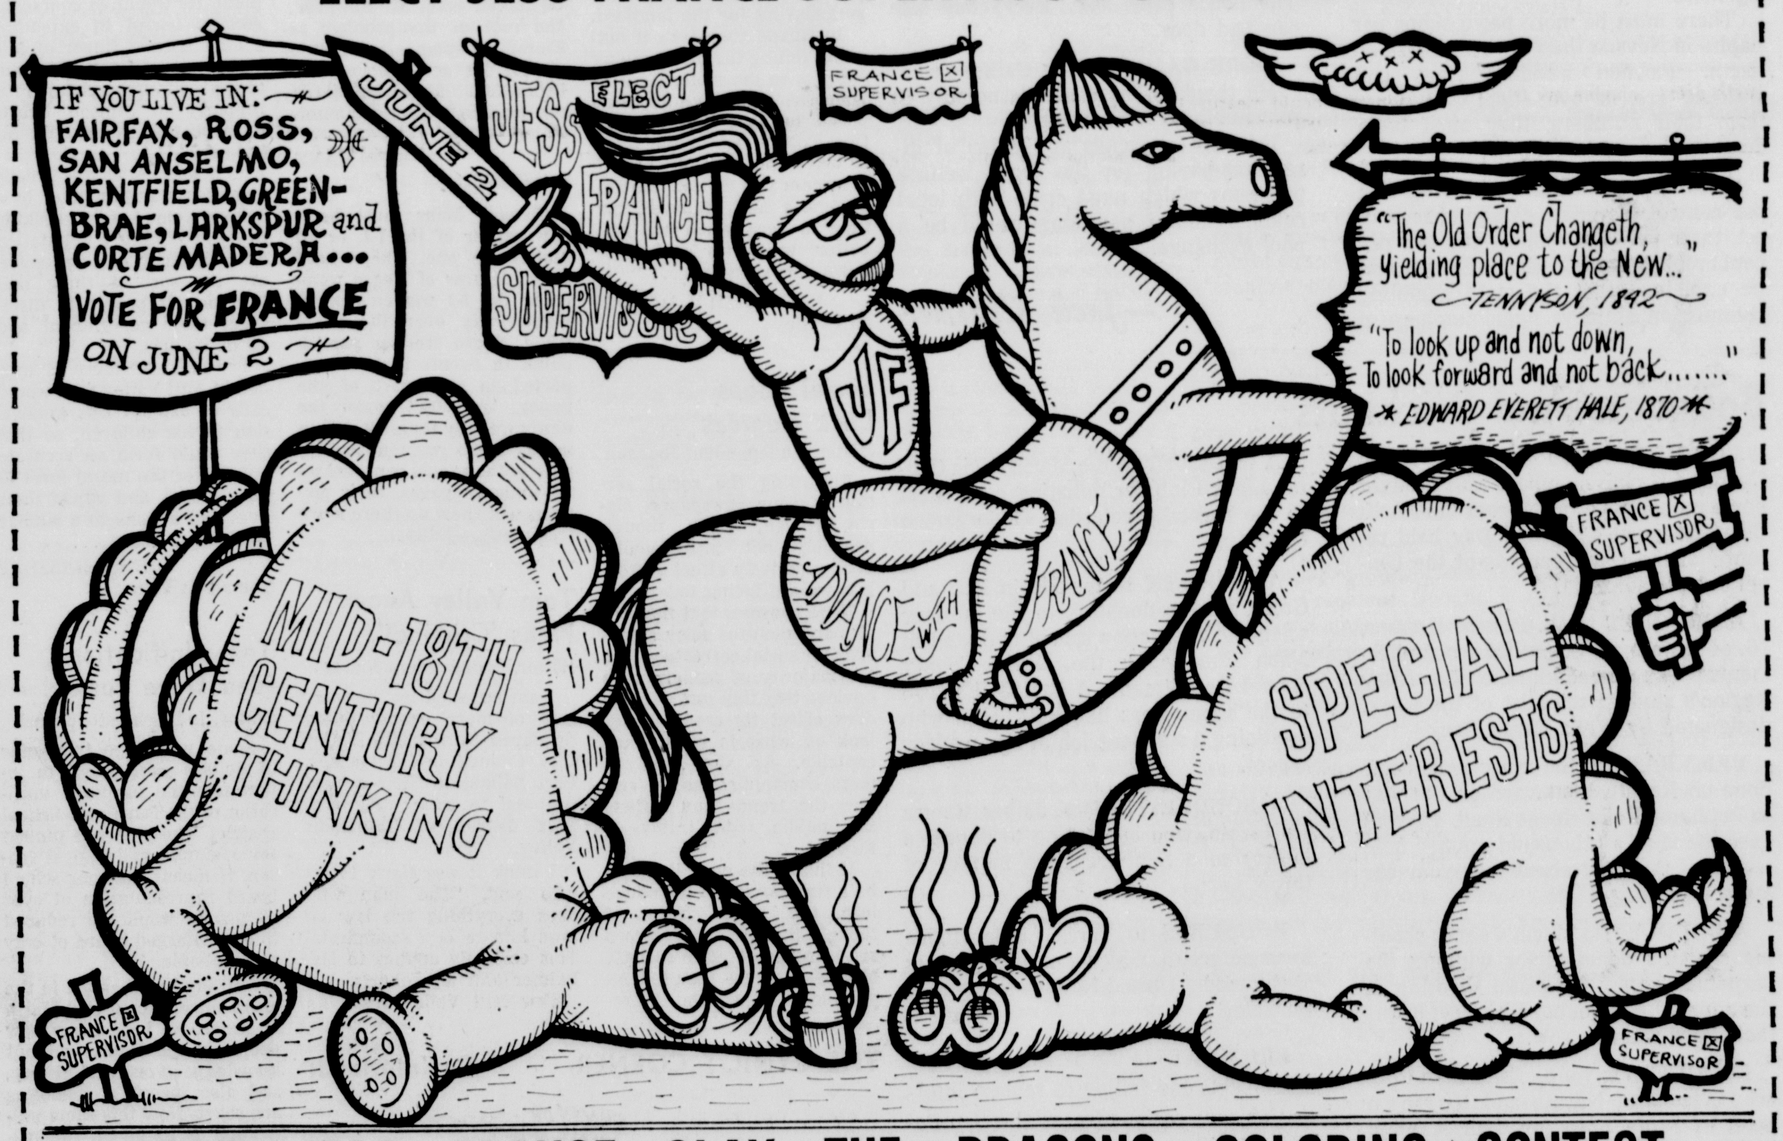

Mrs. Sanborn has recently completed her first book, tentatively entitled "Sword and Plowshare, A study of Robert E. Lee, The Man." It has been accepted by J. B. Lippincott.

A biography which emphasizes the personal rather than the military career of Lee, it is based upon research of the actual letters and papers of Lee and his family in the library of congress and other libraries and archives throughout the South.

Following the program Mrs. Joel Gustafson and her committee will serve tea.

Gambling Not Good As Substitute For Taxes

SOME PEOPLE THINK the solution to California's governmental finance problems lies in some sort of legalized gambling. There is growing sentiment voiced for a state lottery which would, like a magician, suddenly conjure up all sorts of revenues from out of nowhere.

So a visit to Nevada and a look-see there is timely.

Nevada Governor Grant Sawyer, welcoming officers and directors of the California Newspaper Publishers Assn. to Las Vegas where they gathered for a board meeting last week, commented at length on Nevada's gambling.

His state's total "take" from gambling, said Governor Sawyer, is not so great as California's "take" from just one horse race track in Southern California.

Actually, 30 states, including California, have some sort of legalized gambling.

(San Rafael has licensed card rooms; remember?)

BUT ONLY NEVADA has legalized ALL forms of gambling. Along with quick marriage and easy divorce, gambling attracts spenders to the state and constitutes its biggest "industry."

Governor Sawyer refers to California as Nevada's "golden" neighbor and means "golden" in the sense that Californians bring their gilt to Las Vegas, Reno or Lake Tahoe's Stateline casinos.

Nevada's chief executive acknowledged that gambling attracts undesirable elements. And this makes work for law enforcement and social welfare agencies.

There must be more pawn shops per capita in Nevada than anywhere else on earth. Pawned wedding rings and watches are in over-supply. Judging from their numbers, they must be a drug on the market.

CROOKED GAMBLERS? Ninety-five per cent of Nevada's gambling is honest, three per cent suspect and two per cent crooked, said Governor Sawyer and he explained that the state gambling commission employs huge numbers of men to work at the task of eliminating the two per cent.

Are mobsters and other undesirables among holders of gambling casino licenses? No, says Governor Sawyer. The state works hard to make sure that licenses go only to those above reproach. This takes manpower and money for investigation.

NEVADA, UNTIL a few years ago, was a kind of taxpayers' heaven. No sales tax, no income tax, no cigarette tax, only nominal property taxes, and so on.

But it isn't like that anymore. The wealthy still may enjoy state income tax advantages in Nevada, but everyone else pays his full burden of taxes.

POCKETS OF POVERTY? Nevada has them, in abundance. Some are almost within earshot of the ringing of jackpot bells on slot machines. Men and women—lots of women of all ages, shapes and sizes—stand elbow to elbow in Las Vegas downtown casinos feeding nickels, dimes and quarters endlessly into the slot machines. And a few blocks away may huddle the ill-housed, ill-clad and ill-fed segment of the populace which makes up a good part of Nevada's total population.

It is as if people who go to Nevada to gamble leave their consciences at home.

"NEVADANS NEVER gamble, themselves. They know they cannot win," says Governor Sawyer. He implies that the only person with a sure bet in Nevada is the gambling license holder. The house can't lose. Everybody else can and does.

MORE GAMBLING in California?

No thanks. There still is no way to get something for nothing.

Trading the aches and pains of direct tax-paying for the social welfare problems which must come with legal commercialized gambling would be a poor exchange.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS to all the many Marin County 4-H club members who brought home numerous awards from the North Coast Regional 4-H Field Day held recently at the Davis campus of the University of California.

A BOUQUET to W. Donald Dresser, 16, of Novato for scientific accomplishments which earned him the title of Bay Region's student scientist of the week, designated by Wells Fargo Bank.

BRICKBATS to the crazy patchwork done on Novato Boulevard on the way to Petaluma Point Reyes Road. Drivers describe it as a "thousand gopher hole mounds" that just about tear your car apart.

A BOUQUET to Marin's sharp-shooting sheriff's deputies for winning the perpetual trophy for pistol shooting at the annual Lake County Fish Fry. It was their third win in a row.

BOUQUETS to young fishermen Robert Porteous of Novato and Norman Scott of Santa Rosa for their stamina and presence of mind to survive four nights and three days in a Sierra snowstorm.

A BOUQUET to the Marin Civic Center Lions Club for donating a carousel to the mentally retarded kindergarten children.

A BOUQUET to the Marin Rod and Gun Club for donating to the outdoor science conservation school operated in Napa County by the Marin County School Department. A BOUQUET also to the supervisors like Bob Spain who are doing a standout job at the outdoor school.

A BOUQUET to Mrs. James Gomez of Novato, who is offering to donate a kidney to a San Francisco mother of three.

BOUQUETS to Terra Linda High's forensic group, which won high honors at the model United Nations sessions in Berkeley.

BRICKBATS to the person or persons responsible for failing to release information on a serious fracas at a San Rafael drive-in restaurant recently. It was no minor brawl. One of our citizens lost an eye, gouged out with broken glass.

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

ENGINE WITHOUT ENGINEER

A small unmanned engine took off on its own recently and scooted 20 miles over a main line track through northwestern Ontario, before it was finally halted.

Trouble started shortly after the operator stopped the vehicle to chat with another railroad employee. Although he pulled on the brake when he alighted, it worked loose and off went the engine on its merry way.

Chugging along at 25 miles an hour, it zipped past one crossing after another. Railway men finally tried to stop it by erecting a barricade. But somehow the engine flipped over the obstruction and landed back on the tracks. Eventually it was brought to a halt by being forced off the track.

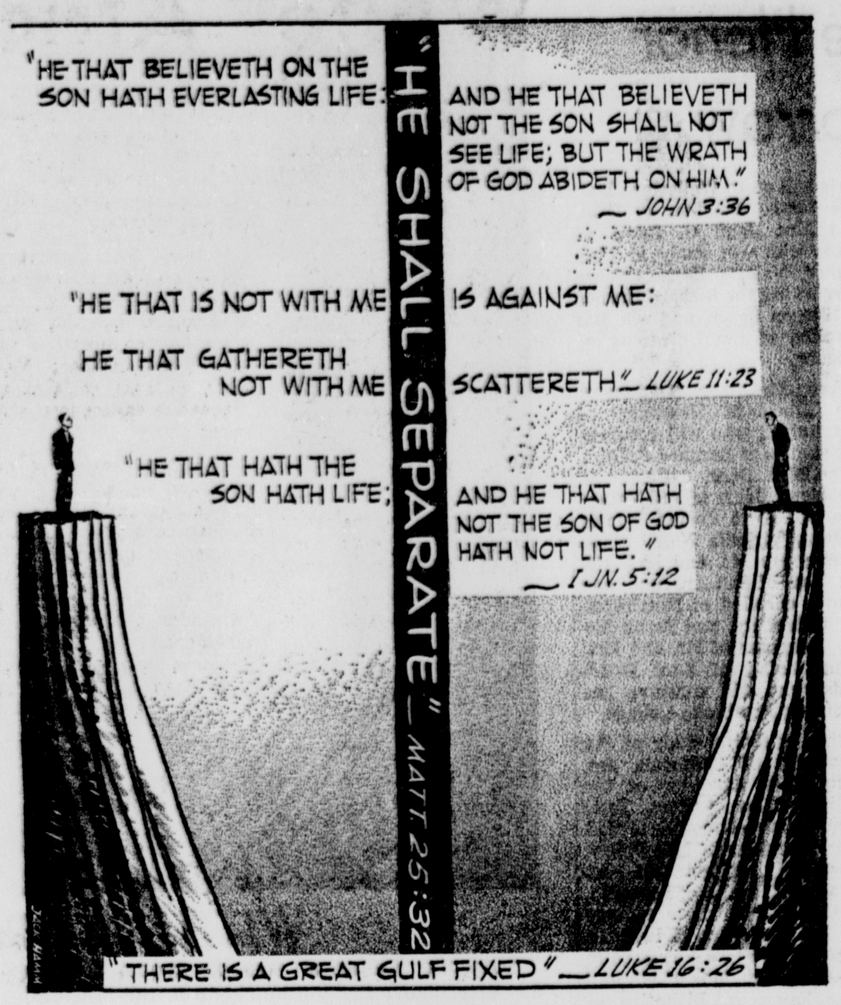

If machines can cause considerable trouble when they get out of control, how much more serious is it when a human being loses mastery of self.

God endows each of us with the ability to govern and direct our own thoughts, words and actions. We enjoy true liberty in the same proportion that we exercise this self-control.

"Live as freemen, yet not using your freedom as a cloak for malice but as servants of God." (I Peter 2:16)

Grant me the wisdom and strength, O Holy Spirit, to be master of myself at all times.

Time Is Here To Fight Taxes

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I would like to shake hands with Don Elda Boutwell on with Don Elda Boutwell in last night's paper (May 11) on rising taxes. If we as taxpayers do not wake up and all join hands and vote for the right people in our government, the time will come when it will be like the days when the many served the few, the serf slaving for the landlord.

In Russia they take it outright, telling them everything belongs to the state. Here in America, where we are supposed to be a free people, they take it out in the form of taxes and such.

In case you do not want to become a serf, taxpayer, the time is here when we had better wake up and vote down the spending....

Social Pages Lack Negroes

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Regarding the social section of your newspaper, Marin Women, which, though probably not intentionally, does negatively affect a problem we are facing today.

If we consider that the articles and pictures relay standards for social correctness for the majority of readers, it is obvious that this sort of news does affect its readers' outlook on what is socially acceptable. As any form of mass communication, it creates the trends and inflicts the public with trains of thought.

If this is the case, it would be a fine service to introduce into the social train of thought the idea that Negroes are being accepted in society. Negroes are not pictured on your social pages, and the result is naturally that the acceptance of them will be hindered. The people need an O. K. before they can feel free to accept the Negro into their affairs. You can give this O. K. by striving to picture a Negro in your social columns. I realize this to be a difficult thing to do at first, but the matter should soon perpetuate itself.

With the current Civil Rights Bill in Congress, it is likely that this equality will be forced upon us. However, the root of the problem is moral acceptance, and this cannot be accomplished by legislation. Moral standards can be affected by communication.

(Reader Manz must be a new reader of the I-J, or an inattentive one. We don't make the news; we only report it. When more Negro women participate in the events reported on I-J women's pages, their pictures will show up there more frequently.—Editor)

Tam Valley Annex Plans 'Criminal'

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I am appalled by the utter lack of moral responsibility displayed by the Mill Valley City Council and City Mgr. Bert Balmer in their cynical proposal to annex the business district of Tamalpais Valley.

I think it was Mark Twain who said, "The man who does everything the law allows him to is a scoundrel." This certainly applies to Mr. Balmer and his cohorts.

Few Mill Valley residents patronize the businesses Balmer & Co. seek to annex. The subject properties are sustained by the residents of Tamalpais Valley. The annexation would really amount to no more than outright pickpocketing—with Tam Valley residents contributing to Mill Valley's tax collections without receiving anything in return.

Mr. Balmer has suavely pointed out that he is within the law in his annexation proposal. He would, of course, be equally lawful in extending a long narrow finger of Mill Valley over Mount Tamalpais to grab all of the commercial property in Stinson Beach. Perhaps that is next on his agenda.

Actions such as this greedy annexation, promulgated by a Johnny-Come-Lately seeking to build himself a reputation as a hotshot city manager, are the sort of thing that lead decent people to disrespect their government and all of its acts.

I wonder if there is anyone in Mill Valley who would care to explain this annexation to his children, so that they could form an accurate opinion of the moral level of their elders, and adjust their lives and actions to a similar level of morality....

Tam Unification Idea Once Junked

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Some years ago thousands of dollars were spent to investigate the proposed unification of the Tamalpais School District. The plan was junked for a simple and logical reason. It meant that our school board representation of over 40 people would be reduced to one enlarged board of only seven people.

Nothing has changed in the years since, except that Marin is larger, we have many new people in the County without knowledge of our past history, and also, people's memories are short. Now this same unification is to be on the ballot in June. The people who want large power with as little representation as possible are still at it.

What about the arguments that unification will save money, give us a better and more coordinated curriculum, etc.? These are, perhaps, moot questions. What is never said is that consolidation — a word that is never breathed — could give us any and all possible benefits claimed for unification plus one all-important advantage. All represenation of present elementary boards would be retained. These boards in turn would select from their members the high school board or boards. Consolidation would retain local control, but of course, it would not satisfy those who reach for power and will get it if the populace doesn't wake up.

LBJ Doing What Comes Naturally —And Country Seems To Like It

WASHINGTON—Lyndon B. Johnson is throwing away most of the old rules about how to be president of the United States — and making his own.

The Johnson administration is getting more Johnsonian every day. He is just doing what comes naturally. The country likes it.

If you were going to list the largest duties of the presidency, wouldn't you likely put down: (1) administering the federal government, (2) enforcing federal laws, (3) conducting the nation's foreign affairs, (4) proposing needed legislation to Congress?

BUT NOT President Johnson. This is not the way he envisions his priority of responsibilities. He sees all of these duties as important, but none of them transcendent. He sees as his overriding duty to exert — powerfully and persuasively—the moral leadership of the presidency behind specific measures which would be neglected if the president failed to arouse the conscience of the nation.

This is what Johnson has been doing the past several weeks and doing it with unique energy and purpose—30 speeches in less than a month, more than 10,000 miles of travel to 10 states, three airplane tours of the Appalachian poverty belt — plus profoundly stirring remarks on "equal rights for all citizens" in the Deep South, speaking as a Southerner to Southerners and as president of all the people.

Johnson is acting with all the vigor and fervor at his command to make both the war on poverty and civil rights crusade compelling moral issues.

HE IS SEEKING to make the sum-total of the 1964 Johnson legislative program a single package of interlocking measures (civil rights, anti-poverty, medicare, aid to education, etc.), each essential to the other and all serving the central objective of a better opportunity for more people.

Obviously President Johnson is aware that a few more speeches south of the Mason-Dixon line are not going to garner any new votes in the Senate for the civil rights bill.

But I think that Johnson is thinking and planning further ahead. He knows that, as the first president from the South since Reconstruction, he has special credentials to speak to the South as a trusted friend and with trusted frankness. Mark these words before the members and wives of the Georgia legislature last week in Atlanta, where no president has visited in 20 years:

"BECAUSE THE Constitution requires it, because justice demands it, we must protect the constitutional rights of all citizens regardless of race, religion, or the color of their skin.

"Heed not those who would come waving the tattered and discredited banners of the past, who seek to stir old hostilities and kindle old hatreds, who preach battle between neighbors and bitterness between states. This is the way back toward the anguish from which we all came."

It seems to me that President Johnson is seeking to accomplish something to which he can make a special contribution. He is helping Southerners feel their identity with the whole nation and is preparing the ground for the fullest possible voluntary acceptance of the civil rights bill after it is passed.

THE ALLEN-SCOTT REPORT

'Give-Away' Grain Sale Costs Probed

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Congressional investigators are taking a close, hard look at the sale of surplus farm commodities to Iron Curtain and other countries.

There is increasing suspicion that in addition to selling large quantities of grain and other commodities on what amounts to a give-away basis, the U. S. also is being stuck for unwarranted transportation charges.

Reason for this growing backstage belief is a report by Comptroller Gen. Joseph Campbell disclosing that the Commodity Credit Corp. paid "excessive ocean transportation costs" on agricultural sales to Communist Yugoslavia and "neutralist" United Arab Republic.

IN BOTH INSTANCES, the wheat and other foodstuffs were, in effect, given away.

These so-called sales were made under Title I of Public Law 480. Under this statute, payment was in Yugoslav and UAR currency. Further, this local money remained in the two countries, some of it to be used for construction and other projects. The remainder was earmarked to the credit of the U. S. in the form of "counterpart funds."

The U. S. has more than 105 million dollars in such "counterpart funds" in Yugoslavia, and upwards of 100 million dollars in the UAR.

IN THE SPECIFIC cases cited by the comptroller general, the Commodity Credit Corp. footed $146,000 in improper transportation costs on give-away sales to Egypt and $132,000 to Yugoslavia—for an over-all total of $278,000.

While these amounts are relatively small, the congressional investigators strongly suspect they are indicative of a widespread practice of bureaucratic bumbling or possibly worse that may run into millions.

CAMPBELL IS VERY explicit about what should be done: The improper charges should be recovered—by direct crackdown, if necessary.

JAMES ROWLEY, highly regarded veteran head of the Secret Service, at a private meeting of the House Appropriations Committee, made one observation about guarding a president that was extremely revealing.

The comment, spontaneous and from Rowley's heart, told a great deal about the problems faced by the Secret Service—and also about the late President John F. Kennedy.

The committee was considering the Secret Service budget, and Rowley was closely questioned.

"Isn't it true that the late president traveled around Washington at night sometimes without a Secret Service guard?" one committeeman asked.

"YES," REPLIED Rowley. "But how in hell could you protect a president who didn't want to be protected? There were a number of times when he slipped away from us at night. He didn't want us, and there wasn't a thing in the world we could do about it."

The committee, in voting a 150-million-dollar budget for the FBI and expanding its authority to include "protection of the person of the president of the U. S.", also empowered it to buy "one armored vehicle."

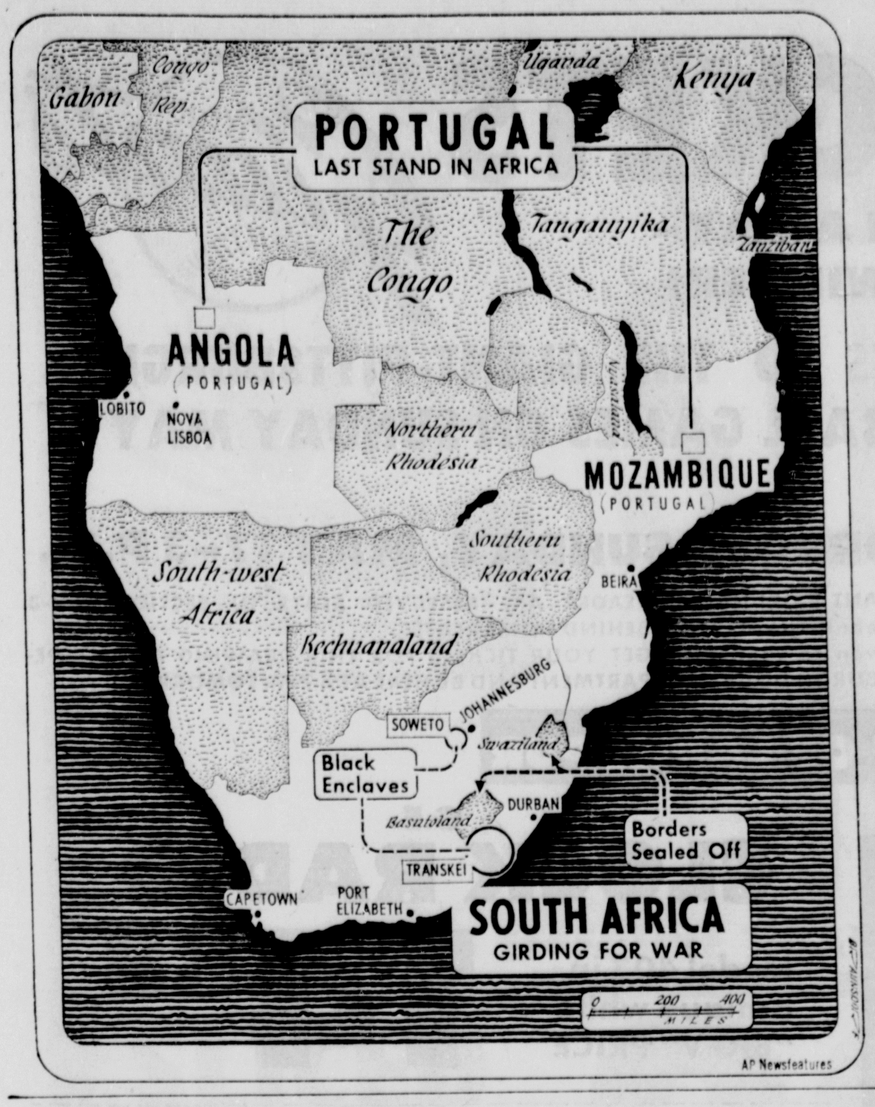

There was no explanation for this mysterious provision.

'White' Africa Trouble Is Brewing

By RICHARD F. NEWCOMB
AP Newsfeatures Writer

South Africa, Angola and Mozambique are run by whites, and the whites intend to keep it that way.

South Africa, a republic, is trying one method and Portugal, which controls Angola and Mozambique, is trying another, but the aim is the same.

Against them are arrayed 30 other nations of Africa, a good share of world opinion, and a powerful trouble-maker—the Soviet Union.

To South Africa this means war, and that is what the nation is girding for. The main question is how soon will it come?

South African policy is clearly and forcefully stated. It is to keep the 12 million non-whites separated — physically and geographically—from the 3.2 million whites. This is being done by first sealing the borders—both with neighboring countries and with two black nations lying entirely within South Africa—the British-ruled territories of Basutoland and Swaziland.

Within South Africa, blacks are kept to their own areas, such as the new state of Transkei and the model black City of Soweto, a suburb of Johannesburg. Many more of these enclaves are planned to ensure total separation.

Some say the war has already begun and South Africa is acting like it agrees. Internal security is harsh. Under recent laws persons suspected of subversion may be held 90 days or more without rights and tried under laws leading to the death penalty.

Defense expenditures are rising steadily and this year will approach 300 million. Planes and heavy weapons are being acquired abroad, and the production of small arms is skyrocketing. Every white household is preparing.

Housewives hold weekly "pistol parties," mingling tea and target practice. Young girls learn arms-handling and hand-to-hand combat. Regular police and home guards total 50,000 and another 250,000 trained reserves are available for emergency. There has been talk of preparing against radioactive fallout, poison gas and germ warfare.

The Portuguese are trying a different tack. There is no racial segregation in Angola or Mozambique. There the policy is to woo the friendship and support of the natives in keeping out "infiltrators" from nearby African nations. The Portuguese reportedly have 40,000 troops in the field, white and blacks serving side by side. Their wounded are treated in the same hospitals, and throughout the territories the races work side by side, often in the same occupations.

There is cause for mobilization. A year ago, at the first African summit conference, the leaders of 207 million Africans declared war on South Africa and the Portuguese territories. Most of the new nations are poor and weak, but they have a strong friend.

Ahmed Ben Bella, president of Algeria, has just returned from Moscow, where he was made a Hero of the Soviet Union. It was Ben Bella who, a year ago, aroused the African conference to a fever with his call for "a bond of blood with those who are fighting in South Africa, Angola and Mozambique."

When he left Moscow Ben Bella had another 127 million dollars in Soviet credits, promises of "small arms," and the blessings of President Leonid Brezhnev. Brezhnev said Algeria's "revolutionary banner is fluttering proudly over the vastness of Africa as a call to all those who have not yet acquired freedom and must fight for it."

Ben Bella replied that Algeria has been turned into a training camp for those fighting in South Africa, Angola and Mozambique, and is supplying them with weapons.

A "Freedom Radio" is now heard in South Africa. It is thought to be in Ghana, and it broadcasts in English and the tribal languages. Late in 1962 nationalists and Communists from many African nations reportedly met secretly in Bechuanaland. They vowed "the immediate liberation of South Africa and the overthrow of the all-white Verwoerd government."

RUSSIAN MOOD VOLATILE

Riots, Strikes In Soviet Union Show Rising Tide Of Discontent

By JOSEPH M. HOCHSTEIN
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — A rising tide of discontent has been developing inside the Soviet Union in the past six months, experts here believe.

Local riots, impromptu strikes, anti-government pamphleteering and other signs of widespread dissatisfaction have been reported since last fall in the Soviet press.

The signs of tension lead some Washington analysts to believe that the mood of the Soviet population today is more volatile than at any time since the mid-1950s when premier Nikita Khrushchev was consolidating his power.

No nationwide uprising against Khrushchev's government is expected. As in earlier periods of stress inside the USSR, the odds today against open rebellion are overwhelming.

What is likely, experts here feel, is a situation of continued unrest in which the Soviet leadership will exercise extreme caution.

Evidence assembled by U.S. officials and other observers of Soviet affairs supports the following conclusions about the current situation:

1. It is serious.
2. It is partly out of control.
3. It stems from complex causes, the most recent of which is probably last fall's poor grain harvest with consequent food shortages in many areas.

In concluding that the situation inside the USSR is serious, experts here say the regime is evidently trying hard to keep matters from becoming worse.

Individual trouble-makers have been arrested, while in cases of mass protests the regime has gone to lengths to avoid harsh crackdowns that could trigger explosions such as occurred in 1962 when Red Army troops in the Don basin fired on a crowd and touched off bloody rioting.

The use of troops has apparently been avoided in the more recent disturbances.

Belief that the situation is party out of control is based on the types of incidents now known to have occurred since the fall. Many are characterized by hair-trigger eruptions of popular feeling, often over seemingly trival matters.

Such flare-ups are unpredictable and apparently can happen at any time in the present climate, Washington specialists believe.

At the same time, the regime's tight control of news and communications has kept these disturbances localized. A recent crackdown against operators of unauthorized radios has probably strengthened the regime's ability to keep word of local unrest from spreading to other parts of the USSR.

The main source of evidence about current unrest is the Soviet press, especially local newspapers and other specialized publications not circulated among the general public.

These press accounts are fragmentary, and details often reach the West only belatedly.

For example, apparent disorders in one community of the Georgian Republic are indicated in the March 22 issue of the provincial newspaper Zarya Vostoka, which refers to 'ineffective maintenance of law and order" in Zugdidi. Information necessary to determine whether the newspaper was talking about large-scale disorder is unavailable today and probably will not become known for several months, if at all.

A demonstration last fall by housewives in the rail center of Pskov not far from Leningrad is cited as illustrating some of the new developments.

After local stores ran out of bread for two days in a row, a crowd of housewives marched on the city hall, shattering storewindows on the way and threatening that their husbands would stage a strike the following day.

Flour was quickly shipped to Pskov to allay the discontent and troops were not brought in, according to Radio Liberty, an anti-Communist network that says it was able to confirm the story only this month after obtaining eyewitness accounts.

"Some of the foreign correspondents in Moscow had knowledge of this event, but evidently considered that there was too much risk involved in dispatching it abroad," radio Liberty said.

Although the incident last fall in Pskov went unreported until this spring, several Soviet publications printed reports in the fall of local bread shortages. Because bread traditionally has been among the most plentiful Soviet food items, its shortage is believed to have contributed to serious unrest in many areas.

A rise in food prices has also apparently affected the mood of Soviet workers. According to figures published this year, food prices rose 4 per cent in 1963, reducing the buying power of millions of Soviet citizens whose wages did not keep pace.

Other signs of unrest are seen in a developing press campaign against "anti-Soviet acts" such as pamphleteering, insulting the regime or listening to foreign radio broadcasts.

Speeding Ambulances Not Necessary For Most Part

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—Ambulances which exceed speed limits in carrying injured or ill persons seldom have accidents which involve further injuries, but they don't save many lives by the excessive speed either.

A report on the first study of ambulance operations brought out these facts, Dr. Irma West, of the State Department of Public Health reported. She said there had been controversy over excessive ambulance speeds for many years, with little statistical information to support either side.

Some of the information turned up by the study of about 5,000 reports of ambulance trips made over speed limits during the first six months of 1963 included:

1. Attending physicians felt the time saved by extra speed was of benefit for about 8 per cent of the patients. In most of these cases, the patient was a victim of serious poisoning.

2. Most people carried by ambulance exceeding the speed limit were critically ill or injured.

3. Not one ambulance exceeding the speed limit while carrying a patient was involved in an injury accident.

4. The decision to speed was made by the police for 36 per cent of the trips, by the ambulance crew for 34 per cent, by physicians for 17 per cent and by others for 13 per cent.

5. In most instances ambulance personnel were accurate in deciding the seriousness of the patient's condition.

6. The average trip reported was eight miles and the average time saved by exceeding the speed limit was 2.7 minutes. In about 80 per cent of the trips, the speed limit was exceeded by less than 16 miles an hour.

7. About two-thirds of California ambulance operators did not report any trips where speed limits were exceeded while patients were being transported.

Dr. West said ambulance personnel, in her opinion, were doing a good job.

"Families and friends of the ill or injured usually are the persons most anxious for speed," Dr. West said. "In the majority of instances, a slower, gentler ride would be more beneficial to the patient. The public must come to realize this."

TRANSIT SYSTEM PLANS OUTLINED

San Francisco, East Bay Will Be Served By Most Modern Transportation In World

By JOHN BARNETT

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A rapid transit system that may provide a prototype for the world's big cities will soon be under construction in the Bay Area.

Within a month, bulldozers will carve into the grassy slopes of eastern Contra Costa County and a start will be made toward putting years of planning into the three-dimensional terms of reality.

The first step will be a 4.5-mile test track on which test trains will be running within a year.

For the suburban commuter, the groundbreaking won't mean much — except that he now can see some results from the 792-million-dollar bond issue he passed for the Bay Area Rapid Transit District in November, 1962.

It still will be at least four years before he can plunk down his credit card and whoosh into the city in the wide-seated elegance of a computer-operated high speed electric train designed to be faster and more comfortable than his own car.

But the test track is a start, and it has attracted the attention of mass transit experts throughout the world. On it engineers and designers will work out the details of a system they believe will be the world's finest — and possibly the prototype of the future.

Enthusiasm over the system has brought a parade of out-of-town transit experts through the BARTD headquarters.

"We get so busy playing host sometimes that we can hardly get any work done," one official said. "We host around half a dozen transit-oriented groups a month. They're from everywhere—Tokyo, London, Paris, you name it. And, of course, all over the United States.

"One group that's been missing is the Scandinavians. That's because they're waiting for us to build the test track."

By 1968, if the schedule holds, the first leg of the system will be in operation between downtown Oakland and the suburbs of Hayward to the south and Richmond to the north.

By 1971, the entire basic 75-mile network will be in service, shuttling passengers among three counties—and under San Francisco Bay—at an average speed of 45 miles an hour, including stops.

Rapid Transit was necessitated in the Bay Area by the same kind of population explosion and choking automobile traffic that plagues most of the world's major cities.

Demographers calculate that by 1985 San Francisco and its surroundings — with a 1960 population of four million — will have grown to eight million population. The number of automobiles will increase proportionately.

Despite this, there was considerable opposition to the 1962 bond issue. One suburban county — San Mateo — refused to be included in the district, and a taxpayers' suit in Contra Costa set the schedule back about eight months after the election.

Finally, however, rapid transit seems destined to happen—and district is determined to prove itself.

"Rapid transit must compete in attractiveness with the automobile," is the principle preached by B. R. Stokes, the energetic director of project.

"The Bay Area's system," he says, "will be the most modern in the world. It will provide the highest of speeds, operating efficiency, passenger comfort and convenience — as well as engineering flexibility and safety."

The details of much of this comfort and convenience are still to be proved on the test track.

But Darrell W. Halligan, the crewcut young chief equipment engineer for the district, already has some clear ideas about what the passenger will find when he steps on a train in 1968.

"He'll find wide seats," Halligan said. "They'll be much wider than on the normal commuter bus, and they'll be as comfortable as we can make them. There will be enough front-to-back space between seats so he can read a newspaper without wrapping it around the passenger in front of him.

"The lighting will be good, the air circulation will be good and the view will be good."

The trains, Halligan said, will be the smoothest ever.

"They will accelerate quickly and stop quickly," he said, "but without jerk."

Train control will be automatic; a computer system will start and stop the trains, shuttle them about, take them in and out of service as needed. Aboard each train will be an attendant who can stop the train in an emergency—if the computer doesn't beat him to it.

The trains will have absolute right of way — fenced tracks with no grade crossings, just overpasses and underpasses.

Speeds will range up to 70 miles an hour. Trains will run as often as every 90 seconds during peak hours.

Each car will be self-propelled, with electric motors on each axle.

Fares will be handled by some sort of automatic system.

"There are several possibilities," Halligan said. "One is a credit card system, where the passenger will put his card into a slot when he gets on and again when he gets off. He'll get a bill at the end of the month."

The fare will be 25 cents to a dollar, depending on the length of the ride.

The trains will be of lightweight aluminum. They will zip over 24 miles of ground-level track, 31 miles of aerial lines and through 16 miles of subway, most of it in downtown San Francisco and Oakland. The two key cities will be linked by a four-mile-long earthquake-proof tube under San Francisco Bay.

The track will be conventional dual rail of an extra-wide gauge to give the lightweight cars stability.

PRESIDENT DE VALERA
Plans sixth visit

De Valera Will Renew Ties In U.S.

DUBLIN (UPI) — President Eamon De Valera, scholar, revolutionary, patriot and elder statesman, visits the United States this month for the sixth time, to renew deep personal ties with the land of his birth.

On May 27, he will begin a state visit to Washington at the invitation of President Lyndon B. Johnson whom he met at the funeral of his "beloved young friend," John F. Kennedy.

It will be De Valera's sixth visit to the United States, a country he described as "my second home" and which played an important role in his turbulent life, first as a refugee when he was on "the run" from the British and later as a reservoir for the muscles his independence fight needed.

Now in his 82nd year, the tall, somewhat austere De Valera is virtually blind, but he has retained an astonishing vigor and clarity of mind that has made him Ireland's most active head of state.

Catapulted from the rarified atmosphere of a mathematical professorship into the smoke of rebellion, the bespectacaled, bookish De Valera became the symbol Ireland's struggle for freedom nearly 50 years ago.

Born in New York in 1882 of a Spanish father and an Irish mother, De Valera was brought to Ireland while still an infant. He always looked to the new world for inspiration in his determination to cut away an Irish Republic of a united Ire-Empire.

The old Irish patriot looks — and sounds — much as he ever did, the ardent Irish nationalist still dreaming of a united Ireland speaking the Gaelic language.

On the twin subjects of partition and revival of the Gaelic language as a spoken tongue, De Valera can talk for hours.

To realize that dream De Valera must first see six northeastern countries of Ireland join the Irish Republic, counties manifestly loyal to the British crown from which he led southern Irishmen in their fight for independence.

"Whenever I wanted to know what the Irish people wanted, I had only to examine my own heart and it told me straight off what they wanted," he said.

This utterance of De Valera has, in many ways, been the key to his political life — an unbounding faith — his opponents call it conceit — in his own judgment as to the needs of his people.

THIS WEEK In The World

The Spotlight Is On Politics

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York appeared victorious in the closely watched Oregon Republican primary that listed all the key GOP hopefuls.

Ambassador to South Vietnam Henry Cabot Lodge had the lead over Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater for second place.

The results added support to published reports that a joint battle by Rockefeller and Lodge forces might now be waged to defeat Goldwater in the crucial California primary.

Lodge would have to throw his support to Rockefeller, whose name is on the ballot, because no write-ins will be allowed.

Rockefeller won nearly two-thirds of the West Virginia primary vote this week. Goldwater won in the Nebraska primary, but more than half the total vote went to write-ins for former Vice President Richard M. Nixon (about 30 per cent), Lodge and Rockefeller.

The California test became more critical to moderate Republican forces with the declaration by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower that he would not name his choice for the top nomination. Ike had been named as the one man whose voice might stop a Goldwater victory in the nominating convention.

In what might be a taste of the campaign to come, two House Republicans returned from a campaign swing through Alabama with the gleeful report they had found families living in poverty on land owned by Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson.

Meanwhile, there were reports Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy was giving serious consideration to urgings that he run for senator in New York State.

Around The World Around The Clock

Washington—President Lyndon B. Johnson was expected to ask soon for approval of increased aid for the continuing anti-Communist war in Vietnam. The National Security Council was told that war would be difficult and lengthy by Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, on return from his second trip to Vietnam in two months.

Vientiane—Pro-Communist Pathet Lao troops attacked and captured the important town of Tha Thom as hopes dimmed for any quick reconciliation between left-wing neutralist and right-wing revolutionary factions in Laos.

Belgrade—In line with its policy of active peaceful coexistence, the Yugoslav regime of President Tito advised Cuba to stop using violence to export revolution in Latin America. Several effective exile raids on the island were reported. And the U.S. tightened restrictions on food and medicine exports to the island.

Aswan—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev helped UAR President Gamal Abdel Nasser push the button that detonated a dynamite charge which diverted the waters of the Nile River. It marked completion of the first stage in construction of the Moscow-aided Aswan high dam.

Famagusta—Signs of a toughening United Nations attitude toward Cyprus were revealed in a surprise dressing down of Greek Cypriots officials by Lt. Gen. Prem Singh Gyani, U.N. troop commander.

Philadelphia—Teamster Union officials filed suit to force their president, James R. Hoffa, to refund union money used in his various legal defenses and to avoid using such funds in the future.

Today is Saturday, May 16, the 137th day of 1965 with 229 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter. The morning star is Saturn. The evening star is Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1866, the Treasury Department was authorized to manufacture and place in circulation the first U. S. five cent piece.

In 1927, despite the fact that the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages was unlawful, the Supreme Court ruled that "bootleggers" must file income taxes.

In 1933, President Franklin Roosevelt called on national governments to adopt a series of non-aggression pacts.

In 1962, U. S. forces began landing in Thailand to bolster the Asian nation against any spread of fighting from bordering Laos.

A thought for the day — French philosopher and author Voltaire said, "I disapprove of what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it."

Really Rare Deal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Like to have a perfect bridge hand? Chances are slim — about one in 55 billion billion billion, as a matter of fact. That's how many bridge hand combinations are possible, according to computer experts who participated in the scoring of a bridge championship here recently. The Honeywell 800 computer was used to score the championships.

MARIN BRIDGE

By JOE CASTRO

I-J Scribe Gives Kudos To Fellow Members Of Marin Unit Committee

Last Tuesday the Marin Unit Committee for 1964 held its final meeting. All of you who read this column must know something about bridge players and their temperaments. Do you believe you could put 14 bridge players together for one year and direct a unit and have anything left of them at the end of that time? Let me tell you what happened to the following 14 duplicate bridge players during the past year.

CASTRO

Our characters or rather the Marin Unit for 1964 was as follows: Unit president, Ludovica Bigelow of Belvedere; vice president, Mrs. Margarite Tognoli of San Rafael; secretary, Mrs. Kay Bates of Kentfield; treasurer, Frank Delaplane of Kentfield; second treasurer (to watch over the first?), Mrs. Esther Ulrich of San Rafael; memberships, Mrs. Claire Cooke of San Anselmo; equipment, George Gustafson of Mill Valley; transportation, Ted Wolcott of San Anselmo; tournament director, Lou Sasselli of Corte Madera; refreshments, Mrs. Hazel Strittmatter of Belvedere; publicity, this writer; troubleshooter, Mrs. Ruth Holmes of Novato, and representatives from Hamilton Air Force Base, Mrs. Julie Cahill of Novato and Lt. Col. Bill Kelley of HAFB.

Now take the following three hands and ask each one above how they would answer them and I bet you receive 42 different answers.

You are north and hold these hands in each case.

Hand 1: Spades—xxx, hearts K Q 10 8 5, diamonds—xx, clubs—A 9 4. S—1C W—1S, N—What do you bid?

Hand 2: Spades — K J 3, hearts—7, diamonds—A J 7 5 2, clubs—A Q 8 5. N—1D, E—Pass, S—1S, W—pass, N—?

Hand 3: Spades — K 7 5 3, hearts—4 2, diamonds—A 9 5, clubs—J 6 3 2. W—1H, N—pass, E—3D, S—pass, W—3H, N—pass, E—4H, S—pass, W—6H. All pass. What do you lead?

I'll start off with my answers:

1. Pass, I hope to be able to figure out what to bid after hearing from my partner once more. Ten points is too weak to bid two hearts and it is too dangerous with only three clubs to raise freely.

2. Two clubs. This hand is worth 18 points which is not enough to jump shift with and it is too strong to say only two spades and not enough spades to say three spades so I'll temporize one round and hope my partner doesn't pass.

3. I'll lead the three of spades. I believe the only way to set this bid is to build up a spade trick before your diamond stopper is dislodged. This is one time you must lead from a king and fast.

Now to get back to what happened to the 14 above. We had a ball. I have never been on a committee that had so much spirit and compatability. Not one drop of blood was shed and we accomplished the following: Over $1,100 was donated to charity, $700 through the American Contract Bridge League, and $400 directly from us to charities in Marin County. Two children are being sent to summer camp through the Jewish Community Center.

Doug Drury and Evan Bailey gave talks on their respective systems during our master-point games.

Our third home grown life master, Mrs. Hazel Strittmatter, was given her gold card.

Our membership is up over 40 per cent and it looks like there will be over 400 ACBL members in Marin County at the end of the year.

And so, when our meetings were being held everyone was 100 per cent in accord with each other. Sometimes the members would even tell me how much they enjoyed this column; but, after the meeting when they held 13 cards in their hot little fingers you should have heard what went on. Then I was told the only subject I should write about for the I-J was how to catch rabid skunks in Marin County!

Uganda Exchange Student Would Like To Take Some Customs Home

By TINA PRESS
Drake High School Student

What effect does a year in America have an a 17-year-old girl from Africa? Listen to Margaret Kazibwe, Sir Francis Drake High School's American Field Service exchange student from Uganda.

" At home, if a girl holds hands with a boy, she is out of school for a week!" Then her large brown eyes flashed as she sang "I wanna hold your hand" under her breath.

The American influence is obvious.

Some of Margaret's concepts of America have been drastically changed. Some she wishes to take back to Uganda with her; others she would as soon forget.

Margaret seldom remained in one place during the interview. Her bubbling spirit is highly contagious. Her face is extremely expressive; this is part of her charm.

Margaret lives with the Eugene Hammond family at 40 Tarry Road in Sleepy Hollow, and is a senior at Drake.

She laughed as she said, "I expected cowboys and gangsters (she pronounces it gangesters) to be roaming around. In Uganda, everyone thinks that Americans are all very rich and that they carry pistols." She said this is a result of American movies.

Jane Hammond, one of Margaret's "sisters," said that some of the AFS forms characterized Margaret as "shy and retiring."

"I really laughed at that

MARGARET KAZIBWE
What? No gangsters?

one," said Jane, "she is an actress all over and lives life to the fullest."

When Margaret first came, she spoke "very proper schoolbook British English."

"It was always 'perhaps' instead of 'maybe'!" said Jane. "Now she has more slang than anyone I know!"

Margaret compared Drake to schools in Uganda: "All our schools are private; you have to pay to attend. Here, students have no choice; they must go. I think that is why there is so little interest in the schools in America.

"And we are much more serious academically than here. We take nine subjects. For instance I have had four years of chemistry, four of biology, four of physics, and nine of English. I speak three languages."

But ironically, she finds the homework is harder at Drake. In Margaret's schools there are only two subjects of homework a night. "That was the hardest thing to get used to — homework in every subject." Still, Margaret qualified for membership in Drake's honor society, Honor Crew.

The American custom she'd like to introduce to Uganda? "I love sweatshirts and cutoffs. And hamburgers."

Ugandan society frowns on teen-age dating, but, says Margaret, "we do it anyway." Ugandan teen-agers don't have their own cars. Bicycles are the main method of transportation.

"The family unit is much closer at home — and much stricter. Kids seem to be better behaved when they come from a family that cares," she said thoughtfully.

Teen-agers in Africa, as the world over, "go mad" for Elvis Presley. Some American music filters into Uganda, but mostly it is British records. Margaret "likes Cliff Richard," would "die for Frank Sinatra," and is "in love with Lawrence Olivier."

Serious again, Margaret spoke of her college plans. Entrance requirements are as difficult as here, she said. "At the end of the senior secondary school (like our high school senior year) there is a test on seven subjects which contains all things learned in the four years of high school. This decides whether or not you go on to college."

A year in America has truly affected Margaret's outlook on life. It has also added a considerable amount of world insight to Drake's student body.

Mays Getting Tip-Offs? Ridiculous, Says Dark

Manager Alvin Dark called off batting practice today in an effort to get his slump-ridden San Francisco Giants back on the track against the New York Mets.

"We couldn't do any worse," the tight-lipped manager said briefly following last night's 4-2 loss at the hands of the Mets. "No batting practice."

Dark also dismissed a published speculation that Willie Mays, who went hitless for the second straight night, had gotten off to a hot start because somebody in the stands might be spotting the catcher's signs and tipping Willie off.

"The most ridiculous thing I ever heard of," Dark said.

The Giants were held to three safeties last night at Candlestick Park while the Mets pounded four of Dark's hurlers for 12. It marked the fifth loss in six games for the pre-season pennant choices who fell back into second place behind Philadelphia.

The Mets who now have won three in a row and six of their last nine, went ahead 4-2 in the eighth inning when Charlie Smith crashed a long double that drove home two runs. The blow cracked a 2-2 tie and cost Don Larsen his first setback of the season.

"We got a good fastballer goin' for us today—Jerry Hinsley—although this is his first season of professional ball," Manager Casey Stengel said afterward.

Dark countered with nifty Juan Marichal, who was after his seventh win of the season and 13th in a victory streak that started last Sept. 3.

The best that the Giants could manage against starter Tracy Stallard last night was a double in the first inning by Chuck Hiller, a triple by Jim Davenport and Duke Snider's pinch single. Mays went hitless for the second straight night and his average dropped to .431.

The latter two blows came in the fifth frame as the Giants tallied twice to deadlock the score at 2-2. Davenport opened the inning with his triple to right field and then Snider's single to the same spot plus an infield out by Hiller drove in one run.

Stallard left the game with a stiff arm after six innings and Larry Bearnarth checked the Giants in the seventh to pick up the win.

The Mets got it for him in the eighth when Joe Chistopher drew a pass off Larsen and went to second on a single by Jim Hickman, who had belted Billy O'Dell for a two-run homer in the second inning.

After Roy McMillan sacrificed the runners along, Smith clubbed a double to the foot of the left-center field fence and both men came across.

Stanford's Bill Wakefield then hurled the last two frames and picked up a save in the ninth when he fanned pinch-hitter Matty Alou with a man on first and two out.

ALONG MARIN'S SPORTS TRAIL

Here's A Vote For Hodges-Simmons As Top-Rate Baseball Announcers

I'm not in the habit of defending radio broadcasters, nor are they dependent on my support (they probably couldn't care less), but I'm applying for membership in the Russ Hodges-Lon Simmons Fan Club.

I think they do a fine job of describing for us transistor-toters the trials and tribulations of the San Francisco Giants.

I bring up the subject today only because certain columnists have been taking pot shots at the Gold Dust Twins of the Golden West Radio Network, magnifying their faults, ignoring their better points.

At least one sporting author has been needling Russ and Lon (Golly, I'm on a first name basis already!) something awful. The needle sounds like a guy about to leave town in a hurry. You know the type; get in a good kick, then take it on the Arthur Duffy, beyond the arm of retaliation—to some far off country. The cops call it a 20002. You and I call it hit and run. You wonder where the yellow went when you brush your back with Pepsodent. That type of guy.

AS NEAR as I can figure it, our fancy writin' author does not like the way Lon and Russ read the commercials or interview players. I think he thinks they're biased (what else is new?) and they deserve 10 lashes with a poison quill for idolizing a many-splendored thing who wears No. 24.

Sure, commercials can be annoying, but I've learned to enjoy them. Where else can you get a tankful, a snootful and a tour of Columbia with a has-bean in between foul balls?

GRIN AND bear it, like I do with the pre and post-game interviews. Necessary evils, I calls 'em. I realize the self-answered - question-isn't-that-right - Jose? techniques used by Lon are at times silly, but in most cases quite vital to the continuity of a radio show. I know what it is to struggle through an interview with a professional baseball player. Sometimes their reticence is deafening; other times it's like asking a hypochondriac how he feels.

Messrs. Hodges and Simmons have been accused of favoring the home team. No! Shame! Certainly, their enthusiasm is geared for the home town ears, but let me say one thing: I think they fulfill their reportorial obligations with the skill and integrity of the veteran newsmen they are and they do this without drowning us in a maze of boring statistics.

Further, I think the Gold Dust Twins do an excellent job of explaining some of the technical and confusing situations that arise during a game without insulting the intelligence of the more knowledgable, baseball-wise, listeners in the audience.

SOME FOLKS prefer to listen to L.A.'s Vince Scully when the Giants play the Dodgers. Vince is a great broadcaster, one of the best in sports. If you don't mind about two and a half hours of nasal twang at a spell, one hundred and sixty two times a year. Dristan is big in L.A. Subtle advertising.

While we're on the subject of broadcasters, let us count our blessings. We could be stuck with Mal-al Ay-al-en, you know. HOWWW A-BOWWWT THAY-AT?

It may sound corny to some of the so-called sophisticated listeners, but to me, "Bye-bye Baby!" is an exciting little part of the game.

And the Hodges-Simmons team can play in my transistor league any time.

BOB TONEFF, the former 49er star now with the Washington Redskins, will soon call Marin his home. Big Bob, his wife, Minerva-Vaux, a former ski instructor, and their three kids will move into their new Sleepy Hollow home next week.

Dave Scofield, the "Voice of Kezar" and sales rep for Gallagher-Sturiale Realtors, negotiated the deal.

Incidentally, in the off-season Toneff works for Geary Motors.

GINO CIMOLI, resident of Tiburon and veteran major league outfielder, began a two week's tryout with the Baltimore Orioles today.

Hobbled by a bad knee, Cimoli, 34, was released earlier this week by the K.C. Athletics, with whom he batted .263 in 145 games last season.

EX-TERRA LINDA High School star outfielder received his block letter in frosh baseball at Fresno State College this season.

NEXT SPORTS INJURY Conference, co-sponsored by the Marin Medical Society and Marin County Superintendent of Schools Office, is set for Jan. 30, 1965 in San Rafael, reports Dr. Carl E. Schlichtmann of Mill Valley, one of the guiding lights of the successful annual conference.

Phillies Vault Into Nat'l League Lead

Dodgers Cards, Cincy Also Post Victories

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

While Casey Stengel's rag-tag New York Mets were humiliating San Francisco 4-2 last night at Candlestick Park, the surprising Philadelphia Phillies leap-frogged over the slumping Giants into the National League lead by blanking the Houston Colts, 4-0.

Elsewhere in the National League yesterday the Dodgers blanked the Pirates 6-0, the Cardinals outslugged the Braves 10-6 and the Reds beat the Cubs 10-5.

In the American League, the Athletics crushed the Yankees, 11-0, the White Sox shut out the Senators, 2-0, the Twins nipped the Red Sox, 1-0, the Indians downed the Tigers, 10-6, and the Orioles swept a pair from the Angles, 6-1 and 12-0.

Dennis Bennett held Houston to five hits and drove in the Phillies' first run with a single in notching his fourth victory against two losses. Richie Allen drove in two runs with a pair of singles as Don Nottebart suffered his fifth straight defeat without a victory.

The Dodgers rallied for four runs in the fourth inning against the Pirates on four singles and three errors as Phil Ortega registered his second victory with a five-hit effort. Willie Davis drove in three runs to help tap Bob Friend with his second defeat in five decisions.

FOUR HOMERS

Four home runs, two of them by Charlie James, powered the Cardinals to their victory over the Braves. Julian Javier hit a grand-slam during a five-run first inning rally and after the Braves tied the score at 6-all, Jeoff Long homered to break the deadlock in the seventh inning and James belted his second homer of the contest.

Lee Maye homered for Milwaukee. Roger Craig (3-1) was the winner and Bobby Tiefenauer (1-3) the loser.

The Reds belted Larry Jackson for eigth hits and eight runs in less than three innings to subdue the Cubs. Jackson, trying for his fifth straight win, was tagged for Frank Robinson's fourth homer in the second inning and Vada Pinson contributed a bases-loaded double in the third. Bob Purkey, the winner, allowed 11 hits, including homers by Billy Williams and Ron Santo.

Mill Valleyan In Seniors Tennis Semis

Bob Hill of Mill Valley, with two victories yesterday, advanced to the semi-finals of the 64th annual California State senior tennis championships being held at the Peninsula Club in Burlingame.

Hill, seeded number two from Northern California, downed Harold Demarest, 6-0, 6-0, in the opening round, and then took a quarter-final match from Bob Shephard by default. He was to meet Bob Galloway of San Diego, the top seed from the Southland, in a semi-final match today.

Norm Brooks of San Mateo, the top-seeded player from the northern half of the state, was pitted against Bill Smith of Los Angeles, the second-ranked player from the south.

Winner of the two singles matches today will meet tomorrow to decide the championship.

L.A. COLISEUM RELAYS

U.S. Olympians Near Peak

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Villanova University's two-mile relay team came west with the determination to break the home today with the satisfaction of having equalled the best time ever posted with a sparkling 7:19 performance.

The two-mile relay highlighted the 24th annual Coliseum Relays last night in which speed was the keynote and indicated the United States runners were nearing their peak efforts in this Olympic year.

Nine records were equalled or broken despite the chilly weather with the temperature in the low 50s which held the crowd down to 26,713.

The widely-heralded duel between two of the world's fastest sprinters in the 200-meter dash was won by Henry Carr of Arizona State University in 20.6 seconds with Bob Hayes of Florida A. & M. finishing two yards behind.

Grambling College of Louisiana, which annually turns out speedy sprint relay teams, captured both the 440 and 880-yard relays, the quarter-mile event in a brilliant 40.2 and the half-mile in 1:23.8.

The battle of the behemoths in the shot put, however, fell short of its billing as a possible record-smashing event. Dallas Long won with a throw of 65 feet, 5¼ inches and the rising young star, Randy Matson of Texas A. & M. was second with a throw of 63-6¾.

Two New Zealanders scored victories as expected. Distance star Bill Baillie captured the 5,000 meter run in 13:54.4 although he said he was not in top condition because of a long plane ride. Feminine sprinter Doreen Porter won the women's 100-yard dash in 10.8 seconds but Marilyn White of the Los Angeles Mercurettes was given the same time for finishing only inches back.

Other outstanding performances included Ralph Boston's long jump of 26 feet even, Darrell Horn's triple jump of 52 feet, 1¾ inches and Frank Covelli's throw of 261 feet, 11 inches in the javelin.

Cadets Tie For Title

Senior Jim Sulger made his San Rafael Military Academy athletic finale a rousing success yesterday by striking out 17 batters in a five-hit, 7-0 victory over Lick-Wilmerding to give the Cadets a tie for the Bay Counties League baseball championship.

The Cadets and Emery each finished the season with a 9-3 record.

Sulger finished the season with a personal 6-1 record and a great .060 earned run average. He also batted .375 on the year.

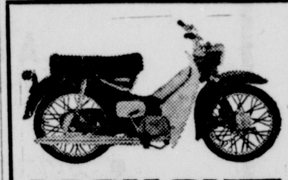

In yesterday's victory senior Ron Kassis drove home three runs with a pair of doubles that boosted his batting average to .454; Chris Candee had a perfect three-for-three day at the plate; Dick Thompson had two for four and two RBI and Dick Allen, Randy Townsend, Tom Davis and Sulger each contributed one hit.

Trojans Nip Tamalpais By One Run

The Terra Linda baseball team got the most out of three hits to eke a 2-1 decision over Tamalpais in a Marin Athletic League game played last night at Albert Field.

The Trojans' Dan Herrera led off the game for his team with a triple. John Forry grounded out, and then, while Tam Pitcher Dick Daniels was striking out John Clifford, Herrera came in on a wild pitch. Bill DiGrazia then walked, stole second, and took third on a passed ball. He ran in with the winning run on another passed ball.

The single Indian score came in the second when Daniels walked, Gary Stephens flied out, and Larry Gray forced Daniels at second. Woodward then singled, and teamed with Gray for a run-producing double-steal.

Redwood Is Tennis Champ

Redwood High School's netmen clinched the 1964 Marin Athletic League tennis championship yesterday with a 4-1 lashing of Tamalpais' tennis players.

The Giant racket squad now has an 8-0 MAL record with two games to play. San Rafael and Tamalpais both boast 5-3 marks in their tie for second, so neither team has a chance of catching the Redwood team.

In the day's only other match, San Rafael trounced Drake, also 4-1.

Pirates Whip San Rafael Baseballers

The Drake High School baseballers jumped into second place in the Marin Athletic League standings with a 9-2 pasting of the San Rafael team yesterday.

Gary Kerch, junior hurler for the Pirates, limited the Bulldogs to just one hit. Kerch struck out seven and walked four, but seemed to have fine stuff as, after a horrendous opening frame, he settled down to pitch no-hit ball.

The only hit was a single by Dan Bell, Bulldog catcher. The ball, well-tagged, bounced off second-sacker Larry Gerughty's glove and went on into right-center. It was a tough call—hit or error—but the official scorer called it a safety after some discussion. Bell's hit came after Ken Lampert, on with a free pass, had scored on a fielding error. The single drove in Leon Center, who was also on the runways through a walk.

Builders Face San Francisco

The Billings-Hutchison Builders will take on Misracks Sporting Goods baseballers of San Francisco tomorrow at 1 p.m. at Albert Field in San Rafael.

The last time the Marin team met Misracks was in the San Rafael Invitational Tournament and the Builders were nipped in 14 innings, 6-5. The Builders then went on to win the tourney, winning the rest of the games.

Misracks will send their ace righthander Frank Gamba to the mound and Builder manager Joe Anselmo will counter with either lefthander Bob DeRosa or righthander Jerry DeRosa.

The Builders have added to their lineup Doug Wilson, formerly the property of the San Francisco Giants, and Jerry Daniele, former star at Terra Linda High who hit .379 this year for the Fresno State team.

Giants Edge Wildcats In 8th Inning

The Redwood High School nine continued its upset pattern yesterday by virtue of an eight-inning, 5-4 triumph over Marin Catholic in a Marin Athletic League game.

Scott Davi, coming back after a month's absence due to a respiratory ailment, went five innings to get the win for the Giants. Davi was the relief hero of Redwood's ten-inning victory over MAL-leading Terra Linda last Tuesday.

Davi also punched two hits, including a double, to drive in two of the Red-and-Gray tallies.

Marin Catholic got off to a flying start with two runs in the first, but Redwood got one back in the third when Dave Cox and Tom Gootherts executed a delayed double-steal for the score. The Giants tied it up in the next frame when Curt Richardson and Steve LeBeck drew walks, advanced on Steve Minutoli's sacrifice, and then Russell Smith, running for Richardson, scored on a wild pitch.

The winners took the lead in the sixth, scoring one run. Davi knocking it in on a single.

Redding got Marin Catholic a tie in the seventh by walking, stealing second and scoring on a dropped fly ball.

In the eighth, after two were out, Kilcoyne walked, Davi doubled to score him, and Len Pieri singled to score Davi with the winning run.

Marin Catholic managed a futile run in the bottom of that inning, but the ten walks the Wildcat hurlers gave to the Giants proved too much of a hurdle.

MISS CONGDON PLANS TO DO SOME RUNNING

Diane Congdon, terrific Terra Linda High School athlete, will be among six young women competing in the "Bay to Breakers" Cross City Race tomorrow in San Francisco, or at least the last mile and a quarter of the race.

The gals will join in the last part of the 7.6 mile race sponsored by the San Francisco News Call Bulletin and Amateur Athletic Union. The cross country jog from the Ferry Building to the skating rink at the beach is designed for men. It starts at 10 a.m.

The six gals are using the race as a warm-up for the first National Cross Country championship race for women Nov. 14 in Seattle. Diane was the first girl to finish the 50-mile hike last year staged by a swarm of Redwood High School students.

Diane walked and ran the distance in 13 hours and 25 minutes.

New Stadium Is Started In Oakland

OAKLAND (UPI) — The $25,000,000 stadium complex which eventually will house the Oakland Raiders, a hoped-for American League baseball club, conventions and special events, was finally under construction today.

Ground was broken yesterday for the stadium, which will seat 48,000 and an arena that will seat about 13,000.

The opening ceremonies featured Mayor John C. Houlihan, chairman Kent D. Pursel of the Alameda County Board of Supervisors; and Robert T. Nahas, president of Coliseum, Inc., the non-profit organization that is erecting the structure.

More than 100 men went to work today on the first phase of the project—clearing off the land, leveling it and digging a 35-foot holes where the stadium will be set.

DOWN MEXICO WAY

South Of Border Sports

By JIM GILMARTIN
I-J Sports Editor

Mexico has been billed as a paradise for enthusiasts of everything from scuba-diving to mountain climbing to golf, but little has ever been said about her attraction for spectator sports fans.

On my recent whirl-wind, five-day trip through Mexico I found that, actually, most of the North American sports are enjoyed there year-round, plus some exciting, colorful regional games.

American baseball has been completely adopted by our southern amigos. The Mexican League of eight teams plays during the summer months and during the spring a few of our major league clubs schedule exhibition tilts there. Our national pastinme is called juegos de beisbol down there. I theenk.

American-style football has become increasingly popular in Mexico and can be seen in most college stadia around the country from September through December. In Mexico City, the huge Insurgentes Stadium has college games every Saturday afternoon during these months.

Soccer is a big attraction at this same stadium on Sunday afternoons all during the year. Mexican professional teams are on a par with European clubs and international matches are frequent attractions in the major cities. For instance, for a month during late January and February annual all-star international matches are played in Mexico City.

THE AZTEC Indians played a game called ((deep breath) tlaihiyotentli that was so similar to the fast-moving game of jai alai that some historians claim Mexico introduced the game to Spain. However, the present Basque-inspired game of jai alai is played regularly at two large frontons in Mexico City and many private residences and sports clubs have their own courts.

Cockfights are illegal in Mexico City, and not particularly popular except in the rural areas. If you are a fan of cockfights you can see them any day just across the line from Mexico City in the State of Mexico. The best fights are staged at country fairs, village festivals or at private ranches, they tell me.

I took a tour of Mexico City's beautiful race track, Hipodromo de las Americas, which means Golden Gate Fields in Spanish, I theenk. It features top races with all the trimmings every Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday throughout most of the year. All announcements are made in English and Spanish and, likewise, you can drop a bundle in two languages.

WHILE WRESTLING isn't such-a-much south of the border, boxing commands considerable space on the sports pages and Cauliflower set down that-a-way can become almost as lavish in their praise as they are the bullfighters, especially when a Mexican gains prominence in the U. S. or Europe. They do best in the fly, light and welterweight classes. Many Mexican-born fighters dominate the Southern California ring scene and develop enthusiastic followings among the Latinos.

Annual sporting events in Mexico include International Track and Field meet (April 12), International cycling tour of Mexico (September); Grand Prix auto races (Oct. 25); National Open Golf Championship with U. S. and European entries in November.

And, of course, there are the bullfights. This exciting art can be seen in most of Mexico's major cities at 4 p.m. every Sunday. The formal season is November to March while the "novilleros" (amateurs) take over the rings the rest of the year.

THE GRANDADDY of all sports spectaculars—the Olympic Games— will be staged in Mexico City in 1968 and already preparations are underway to make the spectacle the greatest in history. Huge contingents of Mexican experts will view the Tokyo Olympics this year to pick up some pointers.

Already you hear heated arguments on whether Mexico City's high altitude of 7,300 feet will affect the performances of world athletes. The Mexicans pooh-pooh the idea, claiming it should take only a few days for well-trained athletes to become acclimated to the rarefied air. We shall see. I broke the Olympic record for most breaths in one minute by a blue eyed Caucasian on a Saturday afternoon.

The 1968 Olympics should be a boon to American Sports fans, what with the proximity and low cost in Mexico. It probably will be the most heavily press-covered Olympics of all time for those same reason.

So much for sports, South of the Border.

P.S. During my trip I learned that the Mexicans found a cure for lung cancer: Seventy-two cents for a pack of Americano cigarettes.

And, haircuts can be had for 37 cents, tip included. At those prices you can get one every day.

RETAIN BILL FUSSELMAN
INCUMBENT
SUPERVISOR DISTRICT 2
A Well Trained Public Official

THIS IS WHAT A CONSTITUENT SAID IN A LETTER TO ONE OF THE CANDIDATES

"I am Pledged to Bill Fusselman. When I first started in San Anselmo more than thirty years ago, Bill Fusselman was in public service. He served San Anselmo in many capacities before going on the Board of Supervisors. In my judgment, he has been completely dedicated to this community and has made public service his life's work. Many times I have disagreed with Bill, but I have always known that whatever action he has taken has been because of his judgment backed by a good mind and thought and supporting facts. I am sure there may have been times when Bill has erred, and I may have one or two in mind, but his every act has, in his judgment, been in the public interest and it is entirely probable that in nearly every case he has been correct."

BILL UNDERSTANDS the problems of County Government, because he has had the experience rarely the privilege of any one person. He has personal knowledge of most of the areas in the County and the background of these matters before the board.

BILL STANDS FOR ECONOMY in government, consistent with necessary services that must be performed.

HE STANDS FOR THE RIGHTS of the individual. He stands for completely fair treatment.

HE IS FIRM IN HIS CONVICTION that large expenditures for capital outlay, should be submitted to the electorate with full and frank explanation.

BILL IS DEPENDABLE and efficient and is a man of his word.

HE HAS NO BUSINESS INTERESTS BUT YOUR COUNTY BUSINESS. He stands ready to devote the major portion of his time to this.

Vote for William D. (Bill) Fusselman . . . A man who is truly your friend.

Christian Church Came Into Being At Memorable Gathering 1934 Years Ago

New Testament Recalls Exact Date Of Event

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Tomorrow is the 1,934th birthday of the Christian Church.

It commemorates an event which took place in the city of Jerusalem in the spring of the year A.D. 30.

The New Testament records the precise date. It was a Jewish holiday called Pentecost. One week had gone by since Christ ceased His post-resurrection appearances among His disciples. In accordance with His instructions, the disciples were gathered together in a house in Jerusalem, waiting.

Suddenly, they felt among them a Presence which seemed to take possession of their hearts and minds, filling them with a stranget sense of joy, a consciousness of power, and a boldness which they had never known before. They went out and began to proclaim the gospel of Christ to the people of the city with such fervor and conviction that the infant church won 3,000 converts by nightfall.

The transforming Presence which the disciples experienced on Pentecost is known to Christians as the Holy Spirit.

The Bible has a great deal to say about the Holy Spirit. It speaks of Him as God-in-action dwelling within men, working within history. We encounter Him often in the Old Testament guiding the leaders of Israel and speaking through the prophets. The New Testament asserts that He was supremely and uniquely present in Jesus Christ.

When the time came for Jesus to terminate His relatively brief stay among men, He assured His deciples that "I will not leave you comfortless." In His stead, He promised, they would have the Holy Spirit to guide them into truth, and to strengthen them against all trials.

During the early years of the church's history, the Holy Spirit made His presence felt in the Christian community in very vivid ways.

The Book of Acts speaks of the apostles being "empowered" by the Holy Spirit to heal the sick, to speak in foreign languages hitherto unknown to them, and to perform other miraculous works.

St. Paul in his letters to young churches refers to these and other "manifestations of the Spirit" as though they were commonplace occurrences with which all Christians were quite familiar.

But the great apostle did not attach primary importance to the signs and wonders which sometimes accompanied the experience of being "filled with the Spirit."

The really important "fruits of the Spirit," he said, are "live, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self-control."

It is a cardinal tenet of Christian belief that the Holy Spirit is still at work in the world, and particularly within community of faith which is called the Church. Sometimes it is very hard indeed to discern His guiding hand in the affairs of weak and sinful men — in or out of the church.

But there are also times when His presence becomes as unmistakably real and compelling to individuals or groups of contemporary Christians as it was to the disciples on the day of Pentecost.

Many protestants and Catholics are quite certain that the Christian unity movement, which has flowered so miraculously in recent years, is being led by the Holy Spirit. The late Pope John XXIII insisted that he did not think up the idea of calling an ecumenical council. It was, he said in his usual matter-of-fact way, entirely the Holy Spirit's idea.

Five Churches Plan Identical Pentecost Rite

Five San Rafael churches tomorrow will observe Pentecost in identical services.

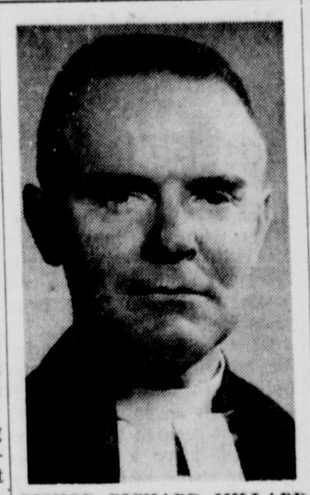

Built around the theme, "With one accord at Pentecost," the service will have a common litany, same hymn and same Gospel readings.

The five participating churches are St. Paul's Episcopal, First Presbyterian, First First Methodist, Congregational, Faith Lutheran and St. Raphael's Catholic.

Clergy and lay members of the congregation met for two hours in a planning session for tomorrow's services.

After tomorrow's services, conducted at each of the participating churches, 10 couples representing each church, will meet in the courtyard at St. Paul's for a coffee hour.

Pentecost marks the coming of the Holy Spirit among the earlier followers of Christ.

BISHOP RICHARD MILLARD

Iron Curtain Journey To Be Lecture Topic

A trip behind the Iron Curtain "with cowl, cross, college kids and camera" will be described by Rt. Rev. Richard Millard, suffragen bishop of California diocese, Episcopal church, for the audience at a dinner meeting in the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer, Glenwood.

Bishop Millard's slide-illustrated talk on his tour of the Soviet Union will begin at 7:15 p. m., Wednesday. It will be preceded by a potluck dinner in the parish house.

During the program for the adults, children will be shown cartoon movies in the parish house.

Dedication Rite In Marin City For Baptists

Dedication ceremonies will be held at the newly-constructed First Missionary Baptist Church in Marin City at 2:30 p.m., Sunday.

Rev. R. Johnson, pastor of Evergreen Baptist Church in San Francisco, will be guest speaker at the event and a respond reading will be given by Rev. J. P. Henry, pastor of the Marin City church. Henry, who said the public is invited, added that refreshments will be served.

The church was organized in 1944 in the home of its first pastor, Rev. W. E. Franklin, of Marin City. In 1945 it moved into the old Marin City School next to the firehouse. This building was torn down recently. Rev. Henry became pastor in 1960 and services were held in the new church the first time last Dec. 21.

Mother In Iron Lung To Watch

Parents of some 60 boys will be proudly watching their youngsters take confirmation at St. Vincent's school in San Rafael at 4:30 p. m. tomorrow.

But few will have undergone more effort to attend the special ceremonies, than Mrs. Maria Mullen of San Francisco. She will be there, if all goes well, in a wheel chair specially equipped with a mobile iron lung. At her side will be skilled personnel from Laguna Honda Rehabilitation Center in San Francisco.

The National Foundation, financed by the familiar March of Dimes, is making it possible for Mrs. Mullen to watch her sons Kevin, 13, and Richard, 12, take confirmation.

Officials of the rehabilitation center inspected the grounds of St. Vincent earlier this week, to make sure that all would go well for Mrs. Mullan's trip to San Rafael.

Most Rev. Merlin J. Guilfoyle, auxiliary bishop of San Francisco will celebrate the confirmation of Mrs. Mullan's sixth and seventh grade youngsters and the others.

Lutherans Boost Mission Funds

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI) — The Lutheran Church in America's Board of American Missions recently approved $1,750,000 in loans to help 132 of its mission congregations in the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico build 18 churches and 21 parsonages and purchase 19 church sites.

The Rev. Donald L. Houser, Chicago, the board's executive secretary, said construction and site costs on the approved projects total nearly $5 million.

Protestant Role In South America

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI) — Protestants must learn to accept a "supporting role" in areas such as Latin America where the Roman Catholic Church historically has had a major responsibility, a former missionary in China and executive of the United Church's Board for World Ministries declared here.

The Rev. Dr. David M. Stowe told the Board that "competitive practices of the past are no longer acceptable and anti-Catholicism is simply impossible as a motive and basis for mission."

Nazarene Church Gains

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A total of 75 new Nazarene churches were started last year, according to the church's Department of Home Missions and Church Extension.

Open House At Lucas Valley's New Church

Community-wide open-house will be conducted at the Lucas Valley Community Church tomorrow. The fete, scheduled for 3:00 to 4:30 p.m. is an informal hosting of the newly organized church for becoming acquainted with their facilities.

Refreshments will be served by the ladies of the church, with special treats for visiting children. Although many residents are being personally invited to the affair, Pastor Dale Nystrom expressed his desire for everyone to attend because of the physically impossibility to contact everyone personally.

Pastor Nystrom — a professional singer during seminary days — will present brief musical introductions to the visitors; he will be accompanied by Mrs. Betty Johnson on the organ.

Faith Lutheran Will Confirm 14 Youths

Fourteen young persons will receive the rite of confirmation Sunday, during Pentecost services at Faith Lutheran Church, San Rafael, this Sunday, according to Pastor B. W. Bellinger.

They are Chris and Wayne Arnsbarger of Northbridge; Ted Babine, Carol Blakeslee, Eric Swanson, Ellen Ostern, Mitzi Jackson, Dan Wegner and Peter and Wendy Wells, all of Terra Linda; Brenda Boerst, Rhoann Ponseti and David Kutlik of San Rafael, and Carl Flower of Mill Valley

To Church Conclave

H. Gordon Beasley of 17 Garden Road, San Anselmo, will be one of the 841 commissioners at the United Presbyterian General Assembly in Oklahoma City May 21 through 27.

Retires After 41 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — After 41 years of service, William E. Leidt has retired as director of publications for the national council of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Congregation Rodef Shalom Will Honor Pioneer Member

Congregation Rodef Sholom will hold a special service Friday evening to honor Sidney Braverman, who is retiring from the congregation's board of directors at the conclusion of this term.

Abe Blumenfeld — who like Braverman was a founder of the Synagogue, but returned from the board two years ago—will present a scroll of tribute to the honoree.

Braverman was the first president of the board eight years ago, served as general chairman of the first building fund four and a half years ago, and presently is co-chairman of the building fund committee campaigning for construction of a religious school facility.

SIDNEY BRAVERMAN

Women's Society Holds Service Of Installation

Women's Society of Christian Service in the First Methodist Church of San Rafael installed Mrs. Phillip Strick as new president, in a pledge service in the church sanctuary Wednesday evening. Mrs. Frank Wessel was in charge of the service.

The occasion commemorated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the nationwide Women's Society of Christian Service, and members of Joy Anderson Circle served cake, decorated with the society's emblem.

Outgoing president was Mrs. John Parsons.

Medical Professor Will Visit Lucas Valley

Dr. H. Yuemaya, faculty member of the University of California medical school, will speak tomorrow at the Lucas Valley Community Church in Marinwood, at 7 p.m. He is an active Presbyterian layman who speaks frequently to religious bodies, and sponsors a medical student's religious seminary weekly at the Moffet Hospital.

The public is invited to this service.

Tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. the guest speaker will be Rev. Jack LeGate, recent seminary graduate, designatee for work in Tacoma, Wash.

Kol Shofar To Celebrate Fete Of Shavuot

The giving of the Ten Commandments on Mount Sinai is being commemorated by Jewish congregations throughout the world which began celebrating the Festival of Shavout last night.

At Congregation Kol Shofar in San Rafael, Rabbi Morris Schussheim will share the pulpit tomorrow at 9:30 a. m. with Robbin Chartock, daughter of Col. William and Mrs. Chartock, in celebration of her Bat-Mitzvah.

During the Shavout service, a memorial portion will be chanted; names of departed congregation members will be read from the Book of Eternal Life, and the traditional Kaddish will be said in memory of six million Jews who lost their lives during World War II.

Fellowship Will Hear Attorney

George D. Hardisty, San Rafael attorney, will speak on "Murder — and On Being Involved" Thursday night, at the Men's Fellowship of the First Baptist Church of San Anselmo.

The dinner meeting starting at 6:30 p.m. is open to all men, with reservations in advance.

Confirmation Class Numbers 30 Youngsters

Confirmation rites Sunday afternoon will open Congregation Rodef Shalom's observance of Shavout, one of the five major Jewish holy days of the year.

Thirty young persons will receive confirmation during the rites in the sanctuary beginning at 2 p. m. Theme of this year's class is "Progress and Prophecy;" members will present a series of brief interpretations of prophetic messages on which they have done research.

Completing the tenth grade of the congregation's religious school and receiving confirmation are:

Church Service Work In Millions

NEW YORK (UPI) — Church people in the United States, through their agency, Church World Service, last year sent overseas 433,191,234 pounds of food, clothing, drugs and other needed commodities, valued at almost $34 million.

CWS rushed this aid to victims of the year's unprecedented number of typhoons, earthquakes, floods and hurricanes while carrying on regular programs of self-help, mass feeding and rehabilitation around the globe.

FOOT LOOSE . . .

isn't it about time you moved up to a really luxurious 2-bedroom apartment that's "typically Marin"? . . . enjoy the pleasant combination of warm sunny Marin weather and the cool water front breezes practically at your patio . . . enjoy private spaciousness, weather insulation and sound conditioning throughout your apartment . . . join in the pleasures of your own putting green, swimming pool, sauna bath and beautifully landscaped (and maintained) gardens . . . now you can content yourself with the convenience of elevators, separate laundry rooms on each floor, fully equipped kitchens, wall-to-wall carpeting and full draperies.

FANCY FREE . . .

if you choose, we'll move you FREE by Republic Van & Storage . . . or perhaps — absolutely free — the best set of Wilson golf clubs that money can buy (to give that putting green a workout), or a FREE portable GE TV set! We want you to be happy getting here . . . and staying here . . . whether you lease or buy, there's more square feet of quality and luxury for the same dollar spent here, than anywhere else in Marin. . .

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Treating Criminals In Hospitals? Medic, Legal Professions Watching

VAN DELLEN

The English mental health laws were revised in 1959. Under section 60 of the act, a court may order a criminal to be detained in a mental institution. The responsible medical officer can discharge him; and he cannot be held longer than one year without a recommendation by a pschiatrist Under this section, the individual is admitted into the hospital as a patient and not as a criminal.

Under section 65 of the act, the court restricts the discharge of the person for a limited time or indefinitely, for the protection of the public. Some psychiatrists resent this section because it sets a limit on how long the man or woman must remain in the institution. Those whose mental status improves may have to stay longer than necessary. The patient may resent this section; if he feels it is unjust, he may create disturbances in the ward.

THE MEDICAL and legal professions are watching this experiment because it conflicts somewhat with the new approach to psychiatry. Nowadays, community care, informal admissions, and the open door policy are emphasized.

More and more institutions are switching from an authoritarian to a more relaxed and permissive atmosphere. British psychiatrists accepted the challenge of the revised law but some believe it has put back "both the locks and the clocks."

THE ACT MAY increase security because one person needs measures that also would confine others. The insane criminal is a public menace and must be detained at the expense of the others. In addition, many are difficult to treat and too much time may be wasted "in managing the untreatable."

Certain mental hospitals are trying to balance the demands for security, therapy, and reputation. The act has not led to a flood of criminal admissions but some of the offenders "distress and deter informal patients." The absconders are proving the hardest to handle.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

NOT TUBERCULOSIS

Mrs. P. C. writes: Is lupus erythematosus tuberculosis of the blood?

REPLY

No. Years ago, European clinics considered this condition a manifestation of tuberculosis and the word "lupus" has been used in referring to tuberculosis of the skin. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on lupus erythematosus.

ADULT ADENOIDS

R.P. writes: Can enlarged adenoids in an adult be healed without surgery?

REPLY

Yes, provided the enlargement is caused by infection that would respond to medication. Surgical removal seldom is done in adults but radium is used occasionally.

CONGENITAL CATARACT

J.M. writes: Is good vision or any vision possible after an operation for congenital cataract?

REPLY

Yes, provided there are no other defects. These cataracts can be removed and good vision is obtainable with the use of contact lenses.

SAFE SHOTS

Mrs. S. writes: Is it safe for a pregnant woman to start immunization shots against hay fever?

REPLY

Yes. They will not harm the baby.

BREAST CANCER

A.C. writes: At what age is cancer of the breast most likely to appear?

REPLY

In women between the ages of 40 to 60.

BURN DEGREES

B. R. writes: What is the difference between first and third degree burns?

REPLY

The depth of the burn. First degree involves the surface of the skin whereas third degree affects also the underlying tissues, including the muscles.

RISING PRESSURE

Mrs. J. B. writes: Does the blood pressure usually rise with age?

REPLY

Slightly. But an increase over the established limits is abnormal, regardless of age.

Today's Health Hint—When tense, stop and relax a few minutes.

Water For Space Hop Big Problem

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Boeing Co. scientists estimate that astronauts on extended space flights will require about a gallon of water a day. The price tag on putting a gallon into orbit under current rocket launching costs is about $2,000.

With the high price, plus the fact there is a limitation to what can be orbited regardless of cost, Boeing is studying ways of recovering, processing and recycling water used in a space capsule.

Even so, it won't be like home. It is estimated that every man, woman and child in the United States uses an average 50 gallons of water a day for drinking, washing, cooking and watering the lawn.

Flower Seeds Costly But What Of Weeds?

BERKELEY (UPI) — To say that flower seeds are worth their weight in gold would be a misstatement. Some seeds are worth much more than that.

One ounce of gloxina seeds commands $800 on the market, according to Jack Bivins of the University of California Agriculture Extension Service. And red satin petunia seeds bring $340 an ounce.

Lots Of Pots

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 150 million red clay flower pots are produced annually in sizes to meet growing professional and amateur gardening needs by about 40 companies in the United States. Some of the companies date back to predecessor firms founded in the Colonies as early as 1600.

Teacher Is Retiring —For Second Time

Tired of staying at home after five years of successful high school teaching, Mrs. Julie Crawford decided to do a little substitute teaching.

That was back in 1940 at Tamalpais High School.

She's been teaching ever since, but on a fulltime basis.

Mrs. Crawford, resident of San Anselmo, will retire from the classroom at the end of this term, 24 years after her small fit of restlessness at home, winding up her career at Sir Francis Drake High School.

In all she has taught mathe-

In all she has taught mathematics for 29 years. On graduation from the University of California, she felt fortunate to get a post at Galileo High School in San Francisco, her native city. It was depression, and such positions—in fact, all positions—were scarce.

Mrs. Crawford stayed at Galileo five years, during which time she married and moved to Marin County. She then commuted from San Anselmo, an experience she remembers as delightful—the leisurely country ride to Sausalito, a crossing by Golden Gate ferry, and a short walk to Galileo High.

Then she retired to home and family. But briefly.

From Tam High, she went to Drake, one of the "veterans" to help open Tamalpais High School District's new school in 1951.

Her interest in teaching mathematics is keen, almost a total involvement. She played a leading role in bringing the "new" mathematics to the district schools five years ago, a program which has wrought big changes.

Even beyond her interest in math is her abundant interest in young people.

She particularly pushes the girls. The boys, she said, have a natural inclination to go into mathematics. Girls need special counseling and added encouragement to bolster their confidence.

One girl, good in high school mathematics, brilliant at the university, employed immediately as a highly-paid mathematician, invited Mrs. Crawford to her wedding. "I just couldn't get married without you," she said.

Her own daughter, however, is an English teacher.

Reflecting upon her 29 years in the classroom, Mrs. Crawford sums it up: "I'd do it over again the same way. Teaching has many rewards."

Her retirement plans are unmade. "This time, with no children in the home, I really want to find out what people do when they stay home all day."

Vatican Approves English Instead Of Latin In Mass

NEW YORK (AP)—Francis Cardinal Spellman announced yesterday that the Vatican has approved use of the vernacular—English instead of Latin—in the liturgy of Roman Catholic churches in the United States.

Cardinal Spellman, archbishop of the New York diocese and presiding officer of the Conference of American Bishops, said the vernacular texts that were submitted by the bishops for use have been approved by the liturgical commission in Rome.

"As soon as the necessary liturgical books can be published," the cardinal said, "the Conference of American Bishops will announce the date when the use of the vernacular will be authorized."

A spokesman for the cardinal said the proposal to use the vernacular, submitted by U. S. bishops to the Holy See, is intended to give Roman Catholic congregations a better understanding of Church rites formerly conducted in Latin.

Driver License Examiners Sought

The State of California needs driver license examiners, and applications for examination for the job are being taken at the San Rafael office of the State Department of Motor Vehicles, 1926 Fourth Street.

Deadline for applications is scheduled for June 20.

The job requires a college degree or equivalent of four years of work with the public involving explanation and interpretation of products and policies. Applicants must be U.S. citizens. And they must have valid California driver licenses.

Quentin Parolee Is Bound Over

Humberto Zelaya Jr., 29-year-old San Quentin prison parolee charged with armed robbery of an Alto service station attendant Wednesday, waived preliminary hearing in Marin Municipal Court yesterday and was bound over to Marin Superior Court for arraignment at 9:30 a.m. Monday.

The public defender's office was appointed to represent him.

Zelaya, of Santa Rosa, allegedly robbed Paul B. McCarrick, 18, attendant at Standard Service Station, 580 Redwood Highway, of $30. He was arrested only three hours after the robbery when his car, identified by McCarrick, was spotted near the commercial fishing boat, Irish Rose, in Sausalito. Zelaya was aboard the boat.

Tourists Favor Cape Kennedy

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — One of the most popular new Florida tourist attractions is a visit to Cape Kennedy where Americans can see the rockets and launching facilities their tax dollars have bought.

In December, 1963, more than 13 years after the Cape first started firing rockets, the Air Force opened the gates to public drive-throughs from 1 to 4 p.m. each Sunday. The non-stop, 25-mile-an-hour drive lasts 65 minutes and takes the visitors close to most launching and rocket assembly areas.

When the National Aeronautics and Space Administration completes its sprawling moonport on adjacent Merritt Island in 1966, it plans regular bus tours of the man-to-the-moon facilities.

Pleasant Valley Runs Through Heart Of Marin

The Ross Valley stretches from Larkspur to San Anselmo and on to Fairfax and beyond to White Hill on the horizon.

Marin Catholic High School can be seen on the right just where Sir Francis Drake Boulevard ducks behind a tree covered slope. New buildings for the College of Marin can be spotted at the edge of an open field farther up the valley.

Ross is beyond and then San Anselmo. Most of these communities are well hidden by trees. However, a large building that appears as a white speck far up the valley is the tallest on the hilltop site of the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

The Mountain Theater As It Looked Then

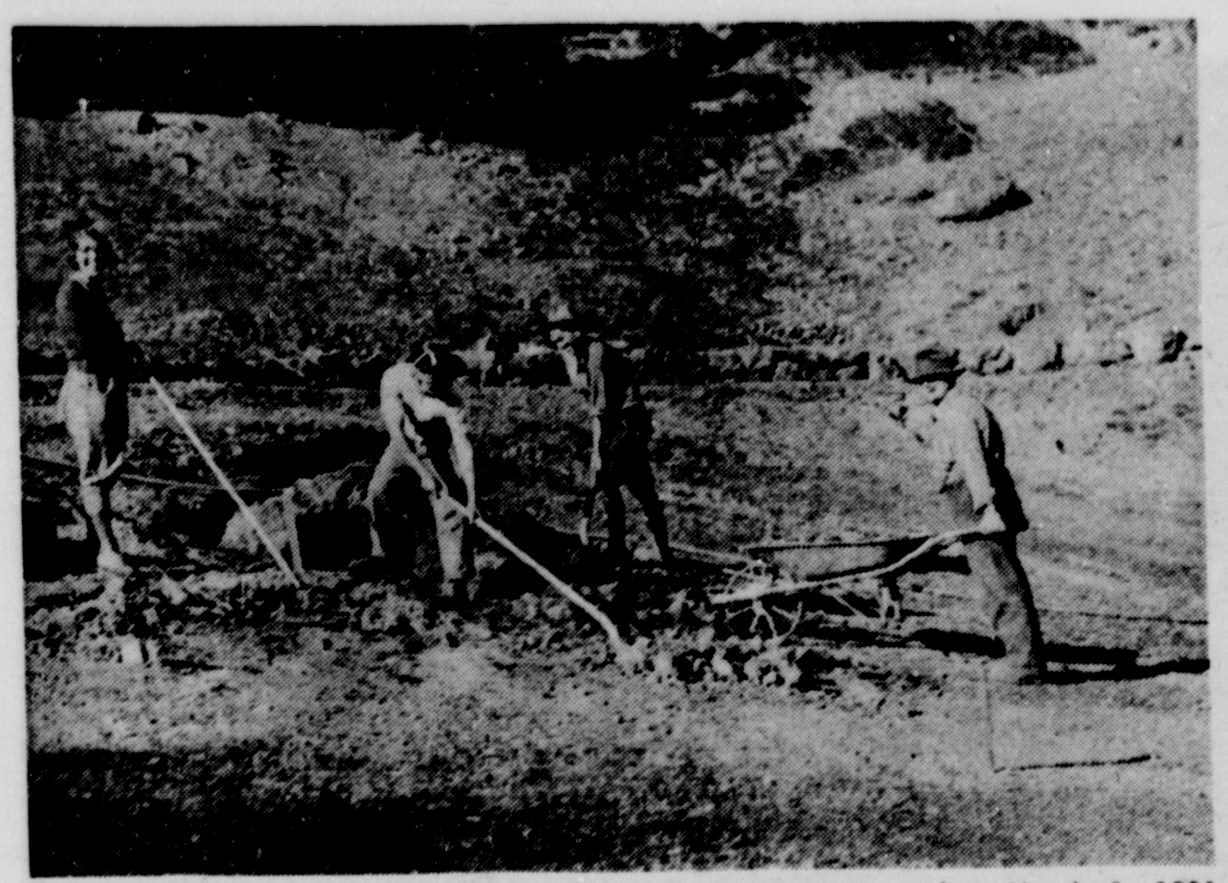

IN THE EARLY YEARS of the Mountain Play in the natural amphitheater on the slopes of Mt. Tamalpais, actors played "uphill" to their audience instead of upstage, and the spectators sat on newspapers spread on the grass. One result was that the audience gradually slid downhill during performances, old-timers recall, and wound up almost on stage. This photo was taken during the 1925 performance of "Drake." Then, the Mountain Theater was still virtually unchanged physically from 1913 when the first play was staged there.

And The Same Theater Today

TIERED SEATS OF native stone at the Mountain Theater in Mt. Tamalpais State Park are the result of the efforts of Civilian Conservation Corps boys back in the 1930s. They completed an improvement program for the amphitheater begun by Mountain Theater Assn. volunteers, always careful not to change the essential beauty of the rugged outdoor setting. There are 40 rows of seating tiers, accommodating 5,000 spectators. Here "Flamenca," the 1964 play, is seen being rehearsed for presentation tomorrow and again the following Sunday at 2 p.m. (Photo by Andrew E. Feiner)

WITH SHOVELS, wheelbarrows and "elbow grease," these volunteers made their contribution to the project that gave the Mountain Theater its present appearance. This picture was taken March 1, 1931, as work began. Three years later, the Civilian Conservation Corps took over and completed the improvement program. (Photo by Charlie Agner)

Audiences No Longer Slide Down The Hill

A Perfect Setting For Pageantry

Both audience and actors used to slide down hill a bit in the old days, but it didn't seem to mar anyone's pleasure.

Tomorrow and the following Sunday, audiences who trek up Mt. Tamalpais to see "Flamenca," the 1964 Mountain Play, will sit in relative comfort and watch actors play out their pageant on a level greensward far removed from that original stage of 1913.

It was in the early spring of that year that one of a trio of mountain hikers, looking at an area they often had passed before, paused and said: "What a perfect setting for an outdoor theater!"

FROM THAT observation, by San Francisco attorney John C. Catlin, has grown the present Mountain Theater, in its 51st year and 47th production. Catlin is known as "the father of the Mountain Play."

Catlin's companions on that nippy morning were Garnet Holme, drama professor at University of California, and R. F. (Dad) O'Rourke.

What Catlin saw and recognized as a natural theatrical setting was a long grassy slope which leveled off to a potential stage area, before dropping off quite sharply into a wooded hillside.

With a play ready-made, the hikers went to the owner of the land, Wiiliam Kent, and received permission to attempt their project. The play was "Abraham and Isaac," which Holme already had in rehearsal at Cal. To round out the entertainment, the Malvolio scenes from Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" were added to the program.

THREE THOUSAND people hiked or rode the "crookedest railroad in the world" up the mountain that Sunday in May, 1913, for the first Mountain Play, to become possibly the world's first sliding audience.

Carol Aronovici, Berkeley theatrical supplier who is costuming "Flamenca," and who first appeared in a Mountain Play in 1927, recounts how spectators slid in those early years.

"Most of them sat on newspapers, and, in the funny plays, each laugh would slide them a little further down the hill until, by the final curtain, they'd be right on stage with us."

Officially the amphitheater was given the name of Sidney B. Cushing, the president of the colorful railway which once wound its way from Mill Valley up Mt. Tamalpais.

But through the years, it has become the custom to refer to the home of the annual pageant simply as the Mountain Theater.

Improvements to the original site for those first productions, if any, were not of sufficient scale to be noted in the publicity. Nor do they seem to have stuck in the memories of those dating back to the early performances.

DAN TOTHEROH, author and director of this year's pageant, will begin laughing when invited to reminiscence, as he thinks of people, rather than things, and the fun they had. Totheroh remembers many such people, for his first participation as an actor was in 1915, and he wrote his first play specifically for the Mountain Theater, "Tamalpa," in 1921.

The history of ownership of the theater site is clear.

The Mountain Theater Story

The Ideal Site Has Become A Better One of the Mountain Play Assn. in 1915. In 1940, when the surrounding land became a California State Park, the association deeded it to the state.

The first concrete plan for development of the outdoor theater shows in publicity for "The Sunken Bell," the 1930 production. A plan by landscape architect Emerson Knight, labeled then as a "proposed development," seems to be essentially what now exists.

IT WAS ON March 1, 1931, that a small bulldozer was brought into the area and implemented the Knight plan, filling low spots on stage, cutting out a definite dividing line between audience and actors, and stepping the seat areas.

This was done by volunteer workers. But the final steps of the plan might have taken much longer, for they involved a tremendous amount of labor, had it not been for a national calamity, the depression, that boded good for the Mountain Theater.

In January, 1934, the Civilian Conservation Corps, formed to aid young men in desperate need of jobs, took over the task of completing the Knight plan.

THE STATED project of the CCC was to make the theater into "a structure more comfortable for human use."

The workers were instructed to use native stone and plant material "to achieve a character of age-old ruggedness, thus faithfully preserving the spirit of the mountain."

The result of the CCC contribution stands today in the form of 40 rows of native stone seat tiers, accommodating approximately 5,000 spectators, plus rest and work rooms to one side, which serve as costume storage places during the show.

Another step in progress which affected the Mountain Play, although not directly a part of the theater, came in 1923. Just ahead of the play date, Mt. Tamalpais-Ridgecrest Boulevard was completed, linking Shoreline Highway and Fairfax-Bolinas Road, and in the process, putting parking areas within easy walking distance of the Mountain Theater.

THERE HAVE been few actual physical changes since the CCC job, and herein lies a large part of the Mountain Play's charm.

Those who drive or hike to the theater in time for the 2 p.m. curtain, or earlier in order to picnic before the show, do so not to see a monument to progress. These are all around us. Mountain Play audiences, instead, go to be transported into a past close enough to be remembered by oldsters, dreamed of by youngsters. A past of grace and grandeur, unhurried, and strangely, in this wilderness, civilized.

Mrs. D. E. F. Easton, secretary-manager of the Mountain Play Assn. from 1914 to 1941, said in an article preceding the 1923 second production of "Tamalpa":

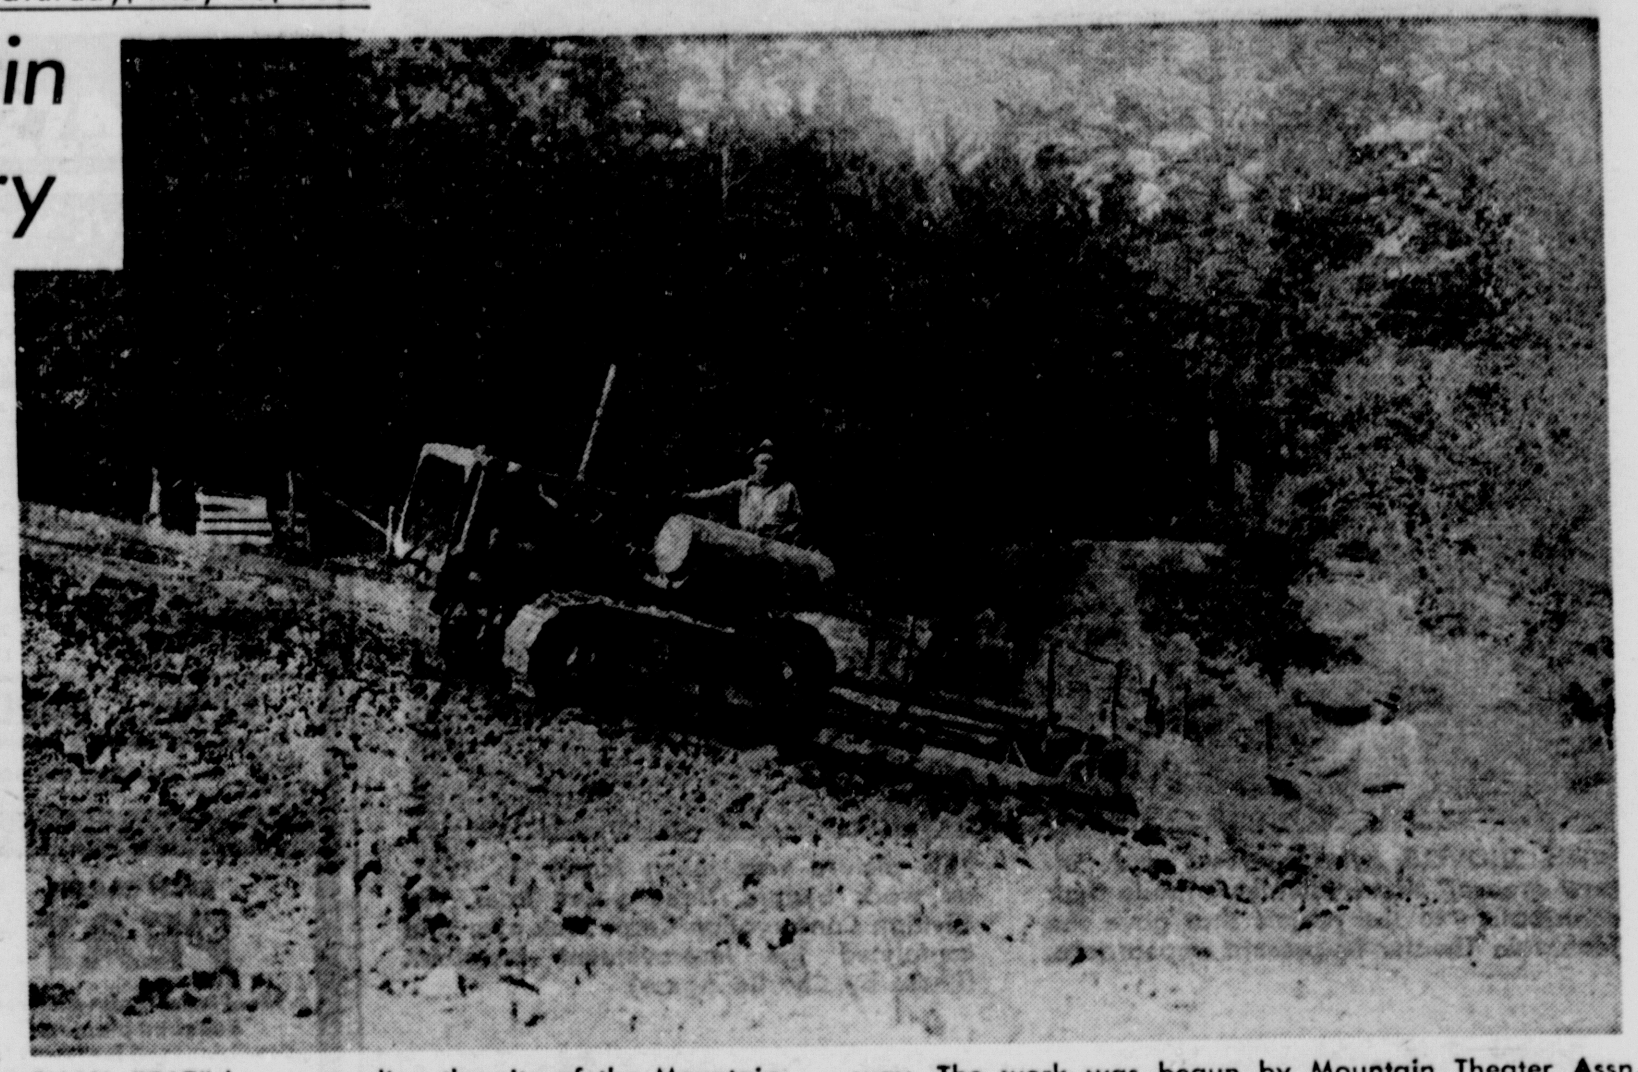

"You who gem the mountainside with ten thousand smiles have made it California's Maytime Festival."

AND THOSE who this year gem the mountain with a sparkling pageant will remember as they labor a list of names, some gone, some still working: Al Pinther, Catlin, O'Rourke, Holme, Easton, Guy Kibbee, Ben Legere, Sam Hayes, Baldwin McGaw, Everett Mason, Aronovici, Marion Hayes Cain, the list is long, too long for here.

They were actors, directors, make-up men, costume women, sound people, old people, young people who grew with the play, they were people.

The audience no longer slides down the hill, nor do the actors.

They have changed — "the perfect setting for an outdoor theater" really has not fundamentally. It remains just that.

A SMALL "CAT" began grading the site of the Mountain Theater on March 1, 1931, as an improvement program outlined by landscape architect Emerson Knight got under way. The work was begun by Mountain Theater Assn. supporters, and completed by Civilian Conservation Corps boys. (Photos by Charlie Agner)

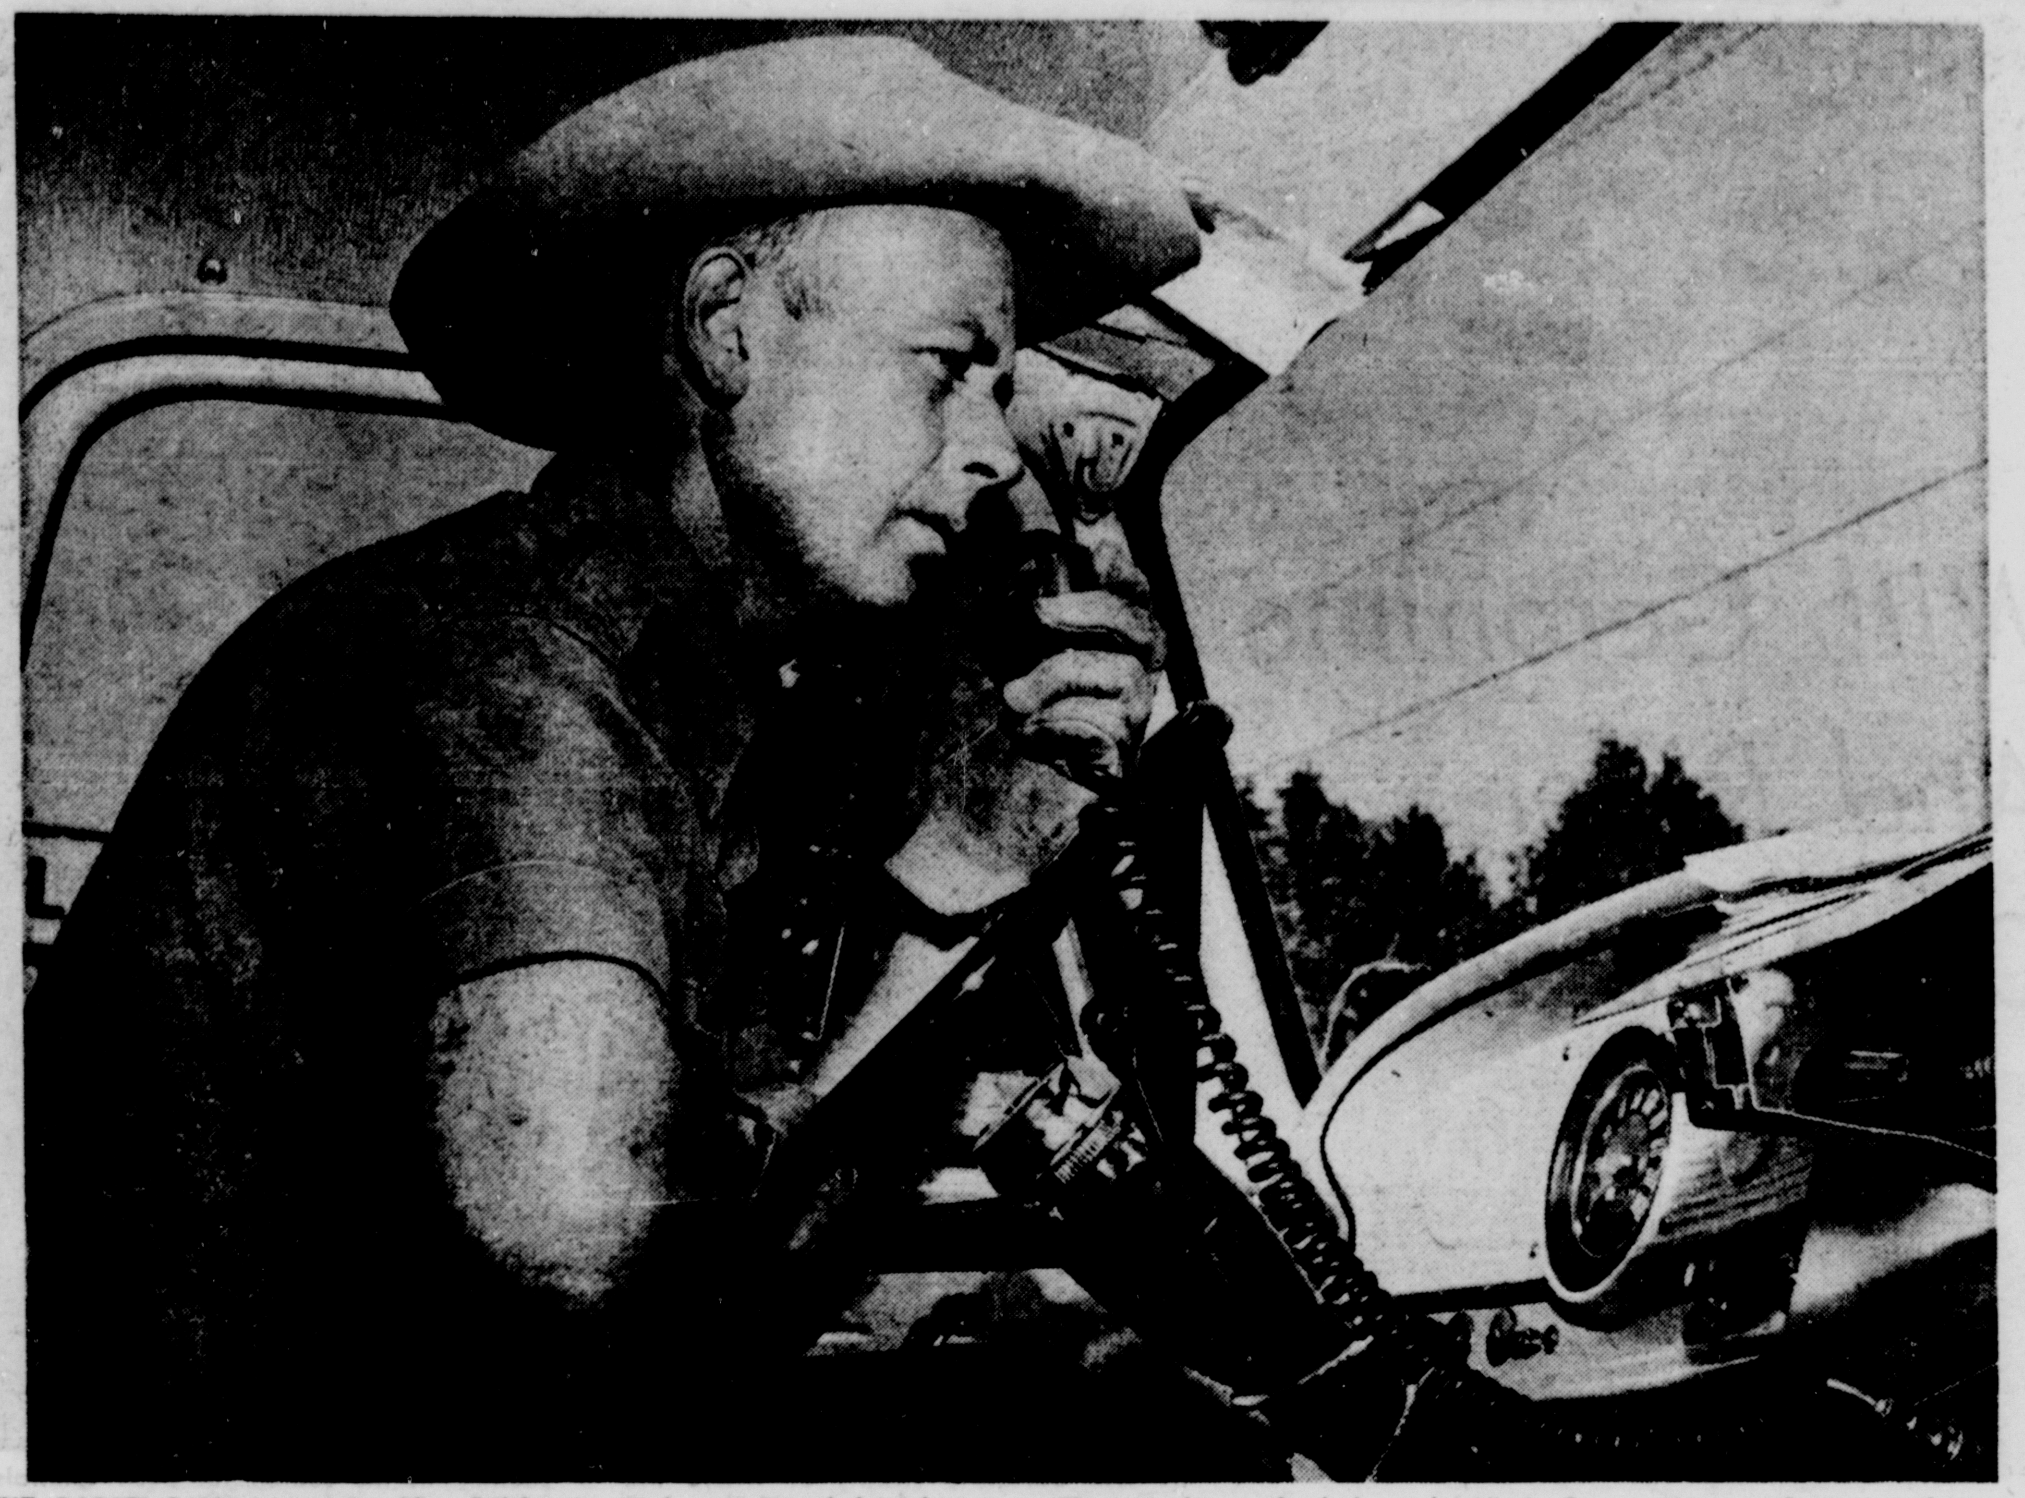

A TEMPORARY SOLUTION to the problem of how to keep the Mountain Play audiences from sliding down the hillside was this stone barrier, shown as it was being installed in 1931. Later, Civilian Conservation Corps workers erected more effective tiers along the slope.

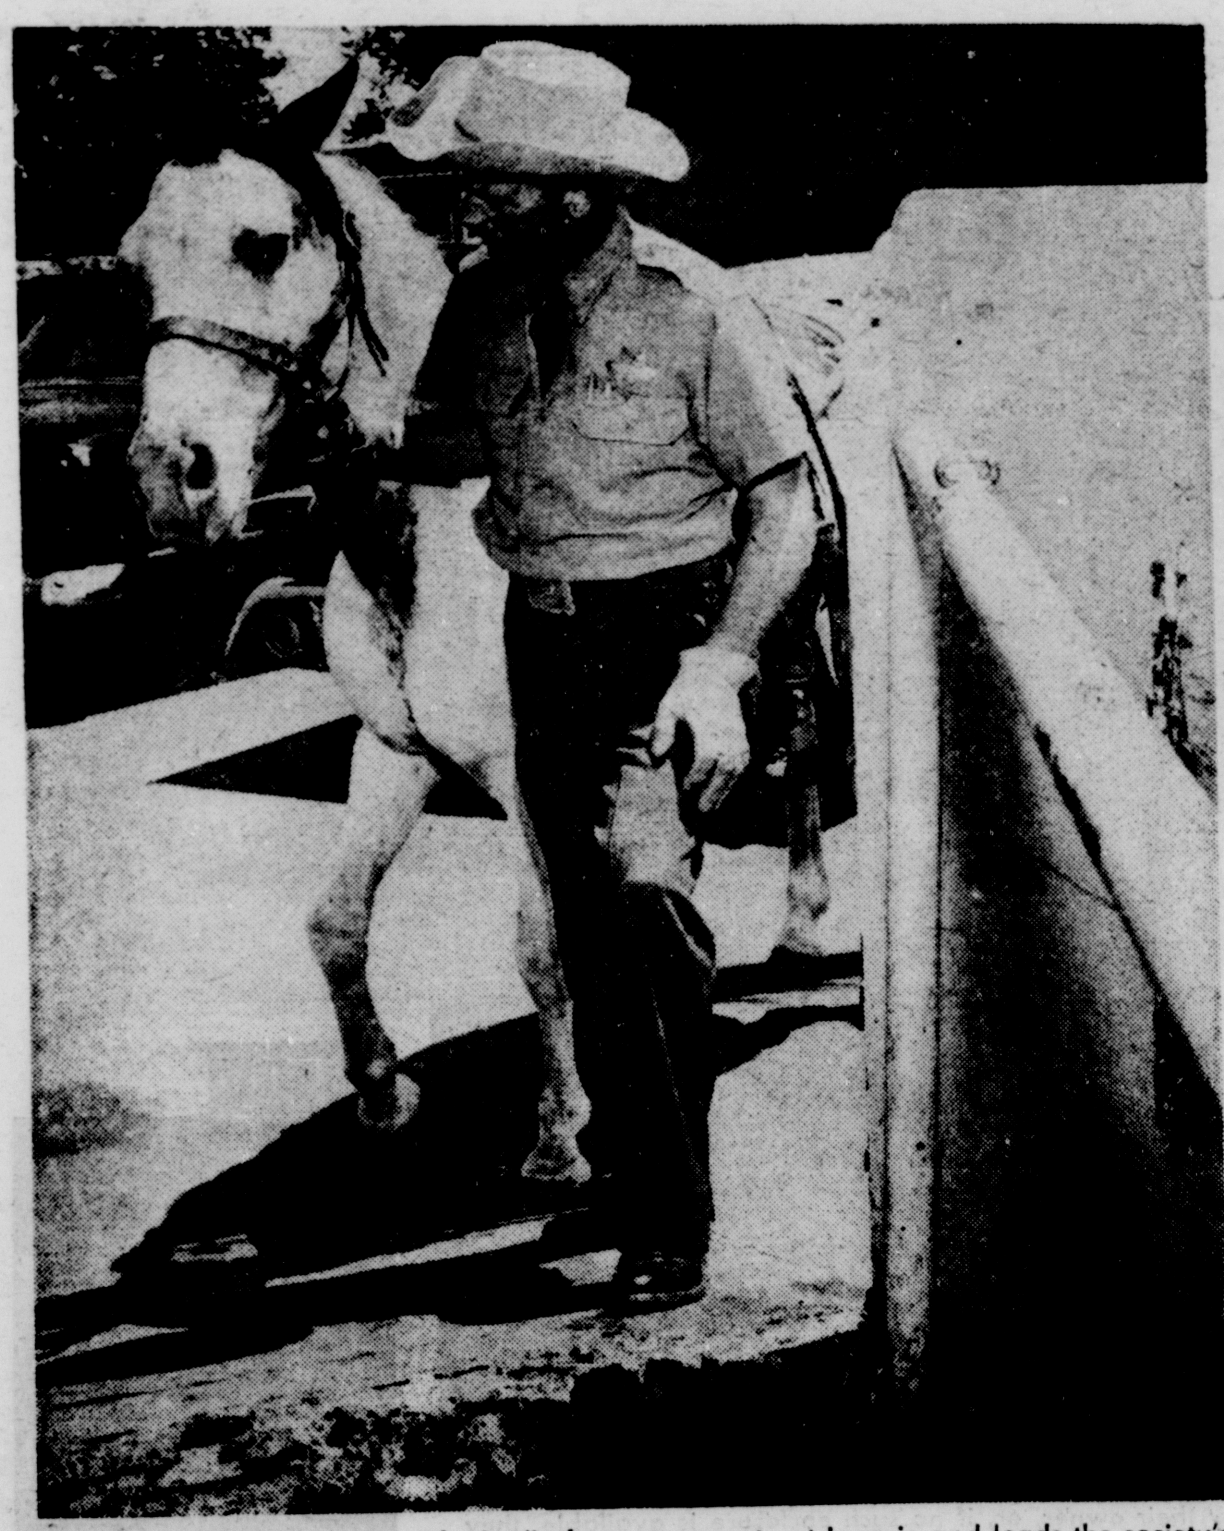

THE FIRST TIER of rockwork had been completed when this photo of the Mountain Theater was taken. But the hillside beyond still awaited the efforts of the CCC boys before it, too, was "terraced" with seats of native stone.

THE RADIO CALL comes in. The California Highway Patrol has been notified that stray cattle are on a roadway, thus endangering traffic. The patrol turns for help to the Marin County Humane Society and Humane Officer Bernard Weller, who learns here that the assignment will probably require the services of a "mounted unit," (Independent-Journal photos)

FOR ROUNDING UP stray "dogies," the assistance of Geronimo is needed. So Weller stops at the Humane Society's property at Ignacio and loads the society's "rehabilitated" horse into a horse trailer. Then they'll be off to find those strays. (Additional photos on Pages M6 and M7.)

The Humane Society Mounted Unit On An Emergency Call

Bernard Weller of Novato is one of four state humane officers working out of the Marin County Humane Society offices.

It's a job he's been performing for five years now, and work he enjoys.

Once a welder and an auxiliary policeman, he now plans to make his career in the animal welfare field.

It is to men like Weller and his fellow humane officers that calls for services come. Perhaps it's a stray or vicious dog. Or a report of an abused or neglected animal. Or a dog chasing and worrying cattle. Or cattle roaming onto and along the roadway.

In the case shown in the photos on these pages, it was a combination of the last two circumstances. Cattle were reported to have escaped their enclosure and to be endangering traffic. And Weller's investigation subsequently disclosed that a dog had been responsible for frightening the bovines into crashing through the fence.

In answering and handling the call, he had the assistance of another Humane Society veteran—Geronimo the horse.

Geronimo first came to the society's attention as a neglected animal. Rehabilitated, he now serves as the mount for humane assignments requiring the services of a mounted unit.

With Geronimo And Rider On A Roundup

IN THE GENERAL vicinity of where the cattle were last sighted, Weller and Geronimo take to the trail. His mount permits the humane officer to cut across country in his search for such animals. Working from a vehicle, the officer would be restricted to roadways only, and his task would be much tougher.

WELLER AND GERONIMO have found the cattle. And now they proceed with the sometimes difficult job of rounding up the skitterish bovines. The cattle will either be driven into a nearby enclosure to be held until claimed by their owner, or, if no such enclosure is available, they will be loaded into the Humane Society livestock truck and transported to a temporary home at the Marin County Farm. The photo above and the cover picture shown at right were taken by Harry Mathias.

AT THE SCENE, Weller, at right, has also found the "culprit" responsible for all his trouble. This dog, running at large, apparently had chased the cattle, causing the frightened animals to break through a fence and from their enclosure to become a roadway hazard. Weller will take the dog back with him to the Marin County Humane Society shelter in San Rafael.

BACK IN THE Humane Society headquarters in San Rafael, Weller still has not completed his assignment. There are reports that must be filled out. And he must locate the owners of the cattle and the dog. Along with the return of their animals, the owners will receive instructions from the society on their legal responsibilities for actions of their pets and livestock. (Independent-Journal photos)

REDWOOD HIGH SCHOOL librarian and teacher Philip Pease, whose father's many mystery and adventure books for young readers are on the library's shelves, checks out a copy of Bookmark to senior Phil De Fremery. In addition to his post as assistant librarian, the son of author Howard Pease is also adviser to the staff of the student publication, Bookmark. (Photos by Tim Ingham)

He Was Tod Moran's 'Little Brother'

School Librarian Is Son Of Fiction Hero's Creator

By WALTER BEECH

What does a boy read when his father is one of this century's most popular American writers of boys' adventure tales?

In the case of Philip Pease, now an English teacher and librarian at Redwood High School, there was little faith in the "home brew" until the age of 13.

From then on Philip was not only an avid Howard Pease fan, but also his author-father's "severest critic," according to a dedication in one of his father's books.

PHILIP PEASE was already behind in reading his father's books when he was born. By that time Howard Pease had written three or four Tod Moran mystery stories.

Well over one million people have read 22 Pease books since then.

Philip, as a young boy, was given a collection of his father's first editions. These were not read by Philip, but they were often borrowed by his friends.

Philip, himself, was absorbed in Civil War and frontier adventure stories written by Joseph Altsheler, the "Tarzan" series by Edgar Rice Burroughs, and the westerns of Zane Grey.

One day, after finishing a book, Philip picked up one of his father's out of boredom. "I was fascinated," he recalls, "and exclaimed to my mother, 'Gee, they're good'!"

PHILIP LIVED up to his father's dedicatory remarks.

Howard Pease did not actually "test" his books on his son. Before a new manuscript was sent to the publisher, however, Philip read it and suggested improvements.

There was encouragement, but no pressure on Philip to make him a writer also. " 'I hope my son won't be a plumber—an occupation that offers lots of money for little brain power,' " Philip remembers his father saying.

Philip Pease points to his father's deft writing skill in handling structure and effective dramatization.

Howard Pease has shared his talent with others. At a recent meeting of the California Assn. of School, librarians Philip Pease and Miss Mildred Mateer saw the senior Pease with eight of his former students. All had successfully published children's books.

PHILIP PEASE attributes his father's skill not only to his natural talent but also to the pleasure and freedom of his environment. The Pease family possessed "a freedom separate from the community in that it did not depend on anyone."

Howard Pease had an independent income. By writing a book every year or two, he could support himself and his family. His first book, "The Tattooed Man," was published in 1926 and is still selling.

A hard worker who writes and rewrites, Howard Pease lives in an environment which allows him to take pleasure in writing about different kinds of people.

Pease's first publication appeared in a popular magazine, "American Boy." His writing instructor selected Pease and a partner to "make a story" out of North Africa. The two spent three to four weeks in research and came through with an excellent story.

With the intimacy of father and son, and yet with the eye of a critic, Philip Pease says that his father is a first-rate story teller. Writing about 18-year-old Tod Moran, wiper and third-mate aboard the steamer "Araby," Howard Pease appeals to all kinds of kids who face all kinds of problems.

In Tod Moran, about whom 20 stories have been written, there is something of the youth of creator Howard Pease. The elder Pease went to sea as a wiper in an engine room just as Tod Moran did in "The Tattooed Man." Pease was also a fireman in the Caribbean.

During his two years in Europe as an "idealistic, noncombatant ambulance driver in the U.S. Army," he secured World War I documents and maps. Much of this material is found in Tod Moran's experiences in "The Heart of Danger."

CAPTAIN JARVIS, Moran's paternal master, has little similarity to Howard Pease except for the writer's "tone of voice," Philip notes. Jarvis was created from a mixture of two real persons: A tall, burly bright man and a skinny man tattooed all over.

Pease has written two books, "Dark Adventure" and 'Road Kid," not of the Tod Moran series.

All of his manuscripts except two have been published. One unpublished book is an adult adventure mystery about a whimsical old lady's home. Unfortunately, Pease's publishers are much more interested in Tod Moran than in old ladies, his son implies.

THE PEASE family often made trips about the United States by car some 30 years ago. New Mexico was a favorite place with them in the 1930s. They went to Mexico in 1937. Howard Pease has also spent three months in Tahiti but has never traveled specifically to accumulate writing material.

"Boys' books," Philip Pease explains, "should be accurate, but do not need the depth of background material required for adult books."

Philip remembers seeing the mind of a gifted writer at work.

His father would spend the hours from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at his office. As a book developed, office time was extended. He would write evenings at home in a soundproof study that "smelled heavily of pipes which he smoked constantly."

"BEGINNINGS to books are 'trained creatures;' they do not appear out of the blue," Philip Pease says. "A large percentage of writers spend an immense amount of time thinking before starting to write. They find that the hardest part is the beginning."

Howard Pease sits down at the typewriter, gets an idea of what he wants to happen in the book, and writes a rough draft in which "the bones (of the story) are laid out in skeleton form at the beginning."

Philip saw his father use the following pattern in writing a book:

1. Rough out the first quarter of the book, paying no attention to detail.

2. Rewrite the first quarter, thus completing the first rough draft of the first quarter. This is grammatically smooth and descriptive.

FROM THE above it is simple to conclude that an inspiration is only a bare beginning. Philip Pease says that hard work is more important than an inspiration.

It is also not difficult to conclude that Howard Pease is a highly accomplished person. A doctor of philosophy has said of him: "The two writers who have meant the most to me are Howard Pease and Tolstoy."

Pease is a graduate of Stanford University, where he received a Bachelor of Arts Degree, majoring in history and minoring in English.

IN ADDITION to his writing profession, Pease has been a teacher. He was a professor of English at Vassar College in 1934 and has taught in junior high schools including an eighth grade class in Stockton where he was born.

Philip Pease was hesitant to forecast his father's future plans.

He says that his father, now 70 years old, lives in Livermore for the warm climate. He has remarried, after having been a widower for two years, and is now writing a book about how to write. He often lectures at Bay Area colleges and universities.

HOWARD PEASE writes in an introduction to "Night Boat": "This report of Tod's adventure on the night boat, like the more extended reports of several of his voyages, has already been transcribed into Braille for the blind; for the use of young people who are unable to see hands or a star shining far off in a velvet night. Perhaps such readers understand better than the rest of us that eyes alone are not enough. A brain and a heart are needed, too. Tod Moran, I think, has all three."

Tod Moran's eyes, brain and heart, this interviewer thinks, will continue to fascinate all kinds of kids who face all kinds of problems.

(One closing suggestion: Stop by the Redwood High School library where 8,000 volumes are located for the 500 to 800 students who visit it daily. There, or rather, outside the library door, continue the conversation I had with Philip Pease. You'll find him a man of captivating experiences and opinions.)

ADVENTURE BOOKS written by his father, Howard Pease, hold the attention of Philip Pease in the Redwood High School Library. The book he holds is a German translation of a Tod Moran tale.

There's Music For All In The San Rafael City Schools

By ELLEN DIETSCHY

"Our over-all goal is to provide musical training that reaches all students without sacrificing quality."

In this way Hugo Rinaldi, director of music for San Rafael City Schools, summarizes the objectives of the program he heads.

He elaborates: "We hope to encourage intelligent consumption of music and provide meaningful musical experience for each student, some of whom would not be given that opportunity outside of school."

AS EVIDENCE of the popularity of the music program with San Rafael students, Rinaldi can point to a steadily growing enrollment and to an unusually low drop-out rate.

He says that less than 5 per cent of the students who begin participation in the program fall by the wayside.

This, he adds, is an extraordinarily low drop-out percentage for a public school system.

Rinaldi gives much of the credit to the districts' music staff members, who serve under him.

"WE ARE most fortunate," he says, "in having a staff of instructors who are not only educators but excellent performers as well in their own right."

Rinaldi also praises the private music teachers of Marin County who have encouraged their pupils to participate in both private and public music programs and recitals.

Once a year, the public receives a prime opportunity to judge for itself the success and scope of the music program in the San Rafael schools when the high school and elementary districts stage their annual joint music festival.

The 14th annual festival will be held tomorrow starting at 3 p.m. in the San Rafael High School gymnasium.

THAT SCHOOL patrons are quick to seize the opportunity to enjoy and appraise the talents of the young musicians is indicated by the fact that the 1964 festival has been a "sell-out" now for several weeks. In fact, it is the seating capacity of the gym — 2,200 persons—, not the interest in the community, that limits the turnout.

Parents of the 1,000 participating students alone are sufficient to fill most of the gymnasium seats.

(When the festival was initiated in 1951, there were 300 participating students.)

A HIGH POINT of tomorrow afternoon's festival will be the announcement of the winners of 19 cash awards totaling nearly $1,000 and one $200 scholarship, to be presented to outstanding music students by Dr. Bert Corona, superintendent of schools, and Rinaldi.

Approximately 250 students, fourth through the twelfth grades, auditioned for the awards before the districts' eight music department staff members. The educators - musicians narrowed the field to 76 finalists, who then performed for six musicians and music experts upon whom fell the difficult task

Music In The San Rafael Schools

The Goal: 'Training For All, Without Sacrificing Quality' of selecting the ultimate winners.

THE DAVIDSON SCHOOL band rehearses under the baton of Mel Stanley in preparation for the annual San Rafael City Schools Music Festival, to be held tomorrow afternoon in the San Rafael High School gymnasium. Approximately one-thousand students will participate.

Parent-Teacher Assn. units, another group praised by Rinaldi for their support of the music program, have provided a portion of the money for the awards and scholarship.

The largest single group on tomorrow afternoon's program will be the combined 585-voice choir from the elementary schools, followed by the 140-member combined elementary schools' band and the 120-member combined elementary schools' orchestra.

Other participating groups will include the orchestras, bands and choirs of San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools; the combined junior and senior high school string orchestras; the combined bands of Santa Venetia and Davidson junior high schools; the combined junior high school choirs and string orchestras, and the Davidson School boys' ensemble.

FOR SOME of the participating groups, the concert tomorrow will mark the culmination of many rehearsals. But it will be preceded by only a single rehearsal by the combined groups — held today, just 24 hours prior to the festival itself.

"This is daring," Rinaldo, coordinator for the festival, admits, "but this procedure works if the individual members of these combined groups all know their music well before gathering for the final rehearsal."

"Of course," he adds, "it also necessitates good rehearsal techniques."

The festival was initiated under Rinaldi's direction two years after he came to the San Rafael schools.

"WE HAD three purposes in mind when we started the annual affair," he explains. "We wanted to provide the youngsters with musical experience they could not get in small groups as well as focus on the importance of music as a part of the total educational program and not just as an extracurricular activity.

"It was also important, we believed, that both the students and their parents see and hear the results of the many hours of practicing. We hoped to give the younger students a chance to see what they could look forward to, if they continued studying music throughout their school careers."

Those original purposes of the successful program remain important, but a new emphasis has been added.

"We are striving toward performing better scores with more aesthetic depth," Rinaldi explains. "The music in tomorrow's festival will be generally much more challenging to the musicians and much more inspiring than the works played in past years."

ADJUDICATORS Cy Trobbe and Jo Anne Zimmermann listen with approval to Tina Digesti, one of the 250 talented students who auditioned in the music awards competition. Awaiting their turns are Mark Jordon and Peggy Carter. Winners will be announced at tomorrow's festival.

BYRON JONES WILL conduct his San Rafael High School a cappella choir in one of the highlights of tomorrow's festival. The choir recently presented a concert program of its own.

YOUNG VOICES ARE LIFTED in song by the boys and girls of the Hartzell School choir during a rehearsal for tomorrow afternoon's big musicfest. Leading the singing at right is Jane Pokorny, music specialist for the San Rafael City Schools. At the piano is Lawrence McArdell, choir director at Hartzell. (Independent-Journal photos)

SINGING TO GUITAR accompaniment is definitely "in" in this era of the hootenanny. Student teacher Jean Murphy and girls from the Santa Venetia Junior High School chorus do just that. They'll appear tomorrow with the combined junior high school choir.

THE BOOK PAGES

Perusing Some Smaller Tomes Covering A Variety Of Topics

By DON KEOWN

A quick scanning of some of the smaller books:

An unusual case history of and insight into the coronary thrombosis, which has become all too common in tension-ridden America, is provided by "The Doctor Has a Heart Attack" by Samuel Goodstone, M.D.

The New England physician provides a detailed account of his own personal experience with a heart attack.

Some may be surprised that at the outset, the doctor, despite his work with coronary patients, acted no more wisely than would you or I. But during his convalescence, Dr. Goodstone's medical background provided him with an ideal vantage point from which to evaluate his own case. He also offers his profession's best current thought on how to avoid a coronary, how to survive should one occur, and how to regain a normal or near-normal existence.

The tone is generally reassuring. But there is also a cautionary note against ill-advised practices by which we inflict abuse upon that marvelous instrument, the human heart.

ONE POINT stressed by Dr. Goodstone is the value of exercise—especially walking. In this sedentary, automated age, few of us travel "shank's mare" when such effort is avoidable. And when we do, we generally think of mountain trails or the countryside as the proper places for our hikes.

Cities, too, can provide stimulating routes for strolls —especially a city as cosmopolitan and colorful as San Francisco.

THE DOCTOR HAS A HEART ATTACK by Samuel Goodstone M. D., Beacon Press, 118 pages, $3.50.

SAN FRANCISCO AT YOUR FEET by Margot Patterson Doss, Grove Press, 188 pages, paperback, $1.95.

THE FORGOTTEN CHARACTERS OF OLD SAN FRANCISCO by Robert E. Cowan, Anne Bancroft and Addie L. Ballou, Ward Ritchie Press, 120 pages, $5.95.

HORSELESS CARRIAGE DAYS by Hiram Percy Maxim, Dover Publications, 175 pages, paperback, $1.35.

SO YOU THINK YOU KNOW BASEBALL! by Harry Simmons, Fawcett, 140 pages, paperback, 40 cents.

Margot Patterson Doss has been making that point in her "San Francisco at Your Feet" series in the San Francisco Chronicle Bonanza Magazine for several years. Her articles are now available as a paperback book bearing the same title.

Illustrations are used, but are sparse in number, considering the nature of the book. The walks, therefore, appear somewhat less enticing than when they were previously published in the newspaper supplement with a more generous photo accompaniment. But the ideas for walks are there, along with interesting background to give such endeavors added enjoyment and meaning.

We've undertaken many of the suggested walks ourselves, both at Mrs. Doss' instigation and prior to the publication of her suggestions. City-dwellers like to get away from their metropolitan surroundings upon occasion. It can be equally satisfying for the suburbanite to reverse those proceedings and explore the city streets, shops, galleries, parks and by-ways —if his feet are pointed in the proper direction and (important!) he is properly attired and shod.

ANOTHER addition to San Francisciana literature is "The Forgotten Characters of Old San Francisco." It is a collection of a 1938 address by historian-librarian Robert Ernest Cowan, a manuscript by Anne Bancroft (granddaughter of the eminent H. H. Bancroft) and a 1908 newspaper article by Addie L. Ballou.

Despite the title, the scope of the material is restricted largely to Emperor Norton and the dogs, Bummer and Lazarus, except for a few periphery characters. Even with the illustrations, the material is not of sufficient weight to justify the book format, for actually little, if anything, is added to the common folklore about the legendary emperor or the two stray mongrels.

DOVER Publications Inc. has republished in paperback format two books by the late inventor Hiram Percy Maxim.

The first is "Horseless Carriage Days," a classic for automobile buffs originally published by Harper in 1937. It is Maxim's account of his own involvement in the Gay 90s with the effort to develop the gasoline engine principle and apply it to transportation.

Maxim's role began with an explosive engine of his own design which he attached to a tricycle. The result was a near-disaster. But he survived to make major contributions to the automotive field. Chapter heads such as "The Explosive Tricycle," "Springfield or Bust" and "I Beat the Stanley Steamer" are sufficient to whet the appetites of those buffs who do not already have copies of the hardcover edition on their shelves.

Also by Maxim and republished by Dover is "A Genius in the Family," his memoirs of his father, Sir Hiram Stevens Maxim, inventor of the Maxim gun, the incandescent lamp and many other things, and a freesoul with an undisciplined sense of humor and weakness for outlandish pranks.

No professional writer, Hiram Percy Maxim nevertheless had a flair for storytelling. His humor and enthusiasm served to compliment his ability to provide mechanical detail and historical authenticity.

SO YOU'RE not an automobile buff—then, how about baseball? If so, the Crest paperback, "So You Think You Know Baseball!" should be of seasonal interest to you right now.

Harry Simmons has put together a collection of tricky questions involving baseball rules from the brainteasing series that originally appeared in the Saturday Evening Post.

Baseball rules and technicalities, argued too seriously by the "nut," can be a bore. But as a "fun game," this kind of thing is entertaining. It'll also give you a better appreciation of just what the umpires are up against. Not so simple, some of those situations the harrassed men-in-blue encounter.

WHAT'S NEW in cook books? Well, for one thing, canine cuisine. Martin Gardner goes over his new recipe book, "The Secret of Cooking for Dogs," with a friend. Illustrations are by Clare Barnes Jr. Doubleday is the publisher and the book sells for $3.50.

A GUIDED TOUR past the great work in the National Gallery of Art is available to art-lovers without leaving their armchairs in the new book, "National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C." John Walker, director of the gallery, "conducts" the tour, and Harry N. Abrams Inc. is the publisher. The book with 324 pages and 366 illustrations, 116 in full color, sells for $7.50.

WELL AWARE that a million and a quarter Americans will visit Europe this year, Random House has published revised editions of 10 Holiday Magazine travel guides covering Britain and countries on the continent.

"THE TORCH Is Passed," the Associated Press book on the assassination of John F. Kennedy, is nearing the 3,700,000-mark in sales through member newspapers of the press cooperative.

Sleuths & Suspense

WILL ANYONE WHO SAW THE ACCIDENT by Jeffrey Ashford, Harper and Row, 186 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

Steve Predaux, drunk and disgusted with the meanderings of his girl friend at a party, climbs into his green Jaguar and heads for home.

A bicycle factory worker, walking home from a late shift, dies as a fastly driven automobile careens off the road into the shoulder.

A truck driver, taking a break, and someone else who wants money, see a green car jerk away from the scene of the accident. Predaux can't remember anything about it. His father tries to protect him, patches up the chipped off green paint, hires the young man a good lawyer.

And the trial begins. All along the way, Ashford, setting his story in England, spins a tale of suspense. It reaches a climax at the very end with a surprising twist and satisfying solution.

Adding to the plot is a touch of blackmail and the father's mistress. A main pattern evolves and all the parts are brought together in a successful conclusion.

THE FLYING HORSE by Simon Harvester, Walker, 207 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

We felt a bit let down by our personal favorite in the spy thriller field, Simon Harvester, his last time out. But he regains our unreserved esteem with his newest, "The Flying Horse."

It is a hard, tense, utterly realistic story of a British agent on a perilous mission into North Korea to contact and bring back a defected scientist who now wishes to return to his mother land.

The hero is Heron Murmur, who performed so well in Harvester's earlier "The Chinese Hammer," and who is equally effective now in "The Flying Horse."

Along with his ability to make espionage believable and to sustain suspense, Harvester again demonstrates his special skill at making maximum use of his unusual geographical and cultural settings.

It's exciting, satisfying reading all the way.

A FRENCH actress, Suzanne Dor, has the title role in Guy Bolton's new suspense novel, "The Enchantress" (Doubleday, $4.95). Jacket painting is by Charles McCurry.

Our Reviewers On The New Reading

Valuable History

DOOLITTLE'S TOKYO RAIDERS by Lt. Col. Carroll V. Glines, D. Van Nostrand Co., 447 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Richard Lyttle.

Colonel Glines has added another valuable documentary to the history of World War II.

This reads particularly well because he has included accounts from crew members who flew the B-25 bombers from the pitching deck of the aircraft carrier Hornet.

The daring venture is brought sharply to life through the eyes of these men on the 16 bombers. It is also a sharp reminder of the naivete of America as it entered World War II.

Crewmen packed several pounds of candy bars with them as they flew off to adventure. One man carried a record player with him, asking a crewman in another plane to carry the records.

Colonel Glines, happily, does not go to lengths in finding fault for failures in the mission. All but one plane (it landed in Siberia) crashed in China. This was due in the main to National China's failure in arranging radio signals and fields to receive the bombers.

The significance of the venture as a major cooperative effort between Army and Navy is brought to focus, particularly through the description of how Capt. Francis S. Low, a submarine officer, got the idea and brought it before Adm. Ernest J. King, chief of naval operations.

Glines' research also shows how the raid influenced Japan's military leaders in shaping strategy. One resultant decision led to the Battle of Midway and Japan's first licking at sea.

Haunting Novel

THE MISTY CURTAIN by Lucy Cores, Harper & Row, 214 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Jean Lyttle.

The world of New York luxury hotels, the theater and mists of Hollywood's glamorous past are all interwoven here into a haunting novel.

The plot concerns a young woman, Elizabeth, who had been a child of a broken marriage in Hollywood and who now is flying East at the bidding of her fabled movie star mother, Anna, whom she has not seen for years.

When the plane reaches New York, no one meets the girl. Where is Anna? Why are the people closest to her so mysterious, so reluctant to acknowledge her invitation to her daughter?

The story tells what can happen to a girl whose mother belongs to everyone more than to her.

Golding's Fable

THE SPIRE by William Golding, Harcourt, Brace & World, 215 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Jean Lyttle.

Like William Golding's other books, the most celebrated being "The Lord of the Flies," this work is less a novel than a kind of fable in which a thin skin of realism is stretched to cover a rigid allegorical frame.

Faith or folly is the theme as old Jocelin, the dean of a cathedral, envisions a new spire as a living prayer of praise. At first Jocelin is shown as a kind of saint who believes that God has chosen him for his post in the cathedral. Before he is done, however, Golding has stripped the old dean of every shred of self-delusion.

Starting with the opposition of his fellows in the cathedral chapel, his troubles mount as he goes into debt, disrupts the services of the cathedral and fills the choir with sinful and dirty workmen. Consumed by his dream, he continues although his master mason and architect threaten to quit as the cathedral has no real foundations, and the spire as it grows heavenward, threatens to topple with every strong wind.

As the spire rises, octagon by octagon, pinnacle by pinnacle, an immense impossibility in stone, its shadow falls darkly on the world below—but most darkly of all on Jocelin himself.

Although Golding's style makes for a rather vague and unsure beginning, the reader soon is presented with a fascinating and thought-provoking metaphysical message that comes through loud and clear.

Biblical Fiction

MAN ON FIRE by LeGette Blythe, Funk and Wagnalls, 376 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

The author of many works of Biblical fiction, LeGette Blythe now has written a novel of the life of St. Paul, from his early manhood through his death in Rome as ordered by the Emperor Nero.

From the time of his dramatic conversion on the road outside Damascus, Paul began the preaching and journeys that were to mold and broaden the foundations of the Christian church through Asia Minor and west to Rome. Blythe tells this story in a very simple narrative. Occasionally Paul is left in Jerusalem while the machinations of the Roman court worlds of Tiberius, Caligula, Claudius and Nero successively are detailed.

This is a lightly entertaining story of a man's life, with the more profound conception of Christian principles left to the Biblical scholars.

British Humor

NEVER PUT OFF TO GOMORRAH . . . by Michael Frayn, Pantheon, 192 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Yes!—It's Frayn for satirical humour in the best British mold.

Now he's the man on the London Observer, but it's the Manchester Guardian columns, collected here, that so deftly put the needle to Parliament and peerage, the classics clubs, the gentlemen from PR, the Fleet Street media, video parlor games, patent-leather personalities and nearly anybody's quote—varnished or unvarnished.

Here Frayn strikes back in 68 succinct ways.

In his introduction, Walt Kelly gives a clue to Frayn's true identity — wondering whatever happened to the little boy who had the last and definitive line in "The Emperor's New Clothes. . . ."

Political Primer

PARTIES AND POLITICS IN AMERICA by Clinton Rossiter, Signet, paperback reprint, 60 cents, 206 pages. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

A presidential election year is the ideal time to read Rossiter's analysis of the Democratic and Republican parties and the two-party system itself.

Compared to Europeans, citizens of the United States are cool toward politics, but do step up their political tempo in a presidential election.

Ironically, Rossiter points out, the elections closest to home, where the voters know the candidates and the issues, attract the smallest turnout.

Rossiter believes the two-party system is here to stay for a while, and this is all right with him because he believes it serves the processes of democracy.

What is needed in politics is more principle, clarity, discipline, responsibility and enthusiasm, he says. But only the people can bring this about.

His study is scholarly in approach, yet very readable—and invaluable to any student of politics.

Highly Esoteric

THE BROKEN IMAGE by Floyd W. Matson, George Braziller, 349 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallader.

Floyd Matson, lecturer in speech at the University of California, presents, for a limited audience, "a report on the encounter between the 'two cultures' (the scientific and the humane) at the point of its greatest impact; that is, the field of the social sciences." He believes, "our most pressing educational and cultural need is not for the indoctrination of men in the directives of science, but for the enlistment of science in the cause of man." Highly esoteric.

Fun Books For The Youngsters

Some recommended reading for the young, younger and youngest:

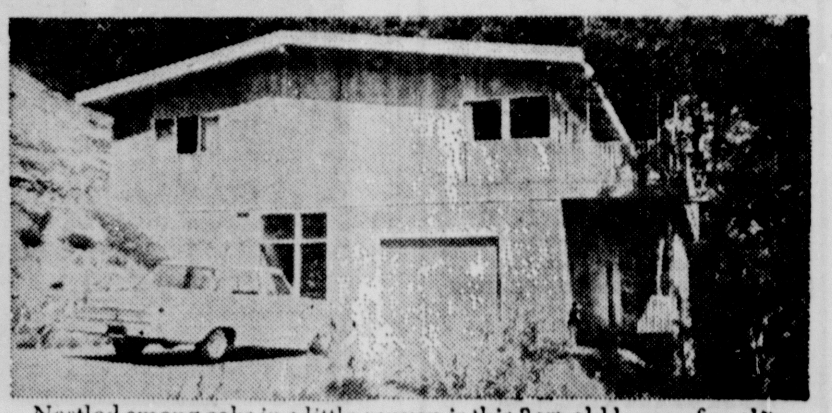

"Basil and the Lost Colony" by Eve Titus (McGraw-Hill, $2.95) is another delightful Basil of Baker Street mystery for young elementary school who-dun-it fans. Again author Titus collaborates with illustrator Paul Galdrone to record the extraordinary exploits of the Sherlock Holmes of the Mouse World. This time Basil scurries off to Switzerland in search of the Lost Colony. Such characters as Zelda, the famous mouse soprano, and Professor Ratigan, sinister ruler of the mouse underworld, help make this a humorously exciting tale.

Mr. Musgrove, "The Flying Postman," is not the usual English country postman. He delivers mail by helicopter, tossing letters through windows directly onto the bedcovers. Of course, this character created by writer-illustrator V. H. Drummond for the Walck-published book ($3.25) is a hit with the children. But while trying to please the youngsters, he loses his job. Then his patch of strawberries and Nina his cow figure in the amusing happy ending.

"The Vengeance of Abel Wright" by Clifford Alderman (Doubleday, $2.95) is the story of a 15-year-old boy living in the American colony of Massachusetts in 1675. When Abel sees a war party of Squakeags, he does not realize that the King Philip's War will change both his life and the future of the American colonies. Author Alderman, having spent his boyhood roving over much of western Massachusetts, is familiar with both the history about which he writes and the area in which this history was made.

"Benjie" by Joan M. Lexau (Dial, $3) is about a preschooler who lives with his grandmother in a large city tenement. He's shy and avoids contact with anyone other than his beloved Granny. But he overcomes his shyness as he courageously searches his neighborhood alone for her treasured lost earring. This outstanding book is valuable for the thoughtful questions it stimulates. Marin children often know a great deal about children of other lands, but very little about American children in large cities because there are so few good books about them. Illustrations are by Don Bolognese.

"The Danger Island" by Ben Masselink (Little, Brown, $3.75) is the tale of a young man's fight for survival when he is marooned on a coral atoll in the South Seas. His tools for survival are his skill and knowledge of the sea. This story is an adventure tale, colorful and teeming with life, written in the style of the jet age which will appeal to the early teen-ager.

LATIN-AMERICAN FIESTA — VILLA-LOBOS: Bachianas Brasileiras No. 5; GUARNIERI: Brazilian Dance; REVUELTAS: Sensemaya; FERNANDEZ: Batuque; COPLAND. Danson Cubano; CHAVEZ: Sinfonia India — The New York Philharmonic/ Leonard Bernstein — Columbia Stereo MS 6514:

Toward the end of each year, Columbia Records brings out a batch of releases concentrating on music of the 20th century. This and the following four lp's are part of the new items just released.

No other major American record company devotes so many releases to modern music as Columbia. The label is the "home" of such greats as Igor Stravinsky, Robert Craft, Aaron Copland, Roy Harris, Leonard Bernstein and other leaders of music in this country. Their series such as "Stravinsky Conducts Stravinsky" and the Complete Recorded Works of both Webern and Schoenberg are milestones in the phonographic art.

Bernstein's latest is a smoldering set of Latin-rhythmed pieces which will set your foot to tapping and show off your stereo to good advantage too.

The Villa-Lobos work has been recorded often, but the sensual voice of Miss Natania Davrath puts this version at or near to the top of the stack. The strange brass and woodwind sounds of "Sensemaya" may make you think your turntable has a bad "wow," but this is the way the players are instructed to play their instruments for a suitably evil and primitive sound.

The "Sinfonia India" refers to Mexican-type Indians, not India-type Indians. It is a major work which will surely be heard more often in the future.

COPLAND: Concerto for Clarinet and String Orchestra; Benny Goodman, clarinet / Columbia Symphony Strings/Copland—Old American Songs, Sets I and II; William Warfield, baritone/ Columbia Symphony/Copland —Columbia Stereo MS 6497:

His performance of the Mozart Clarinet Concerto established Benny Goodman as a classical performer on records, and here is his latest effort in the long-hair field. The piece is dedicated to the jazzman, and has several jazzy sections in the score, combined with the sort of sharp and stark writing of Copland's music of the 1920s, before he vowed to begin composing "for the people."

The "Old American Songs" are Copland arrangements of of songs from the early 1800s, many of which will be familiar to folksong addicts of the present day.

Warfield is enthralling in his varied interpretations of the songs.

WILLIAM SCHUMAN: Symphony No. 8; SAMUEL BARBER: Andromache's Farewell —New York Philharmonic (a) Leonard Bernstein (b) Thomas Schippers — Columbia Stereo MS 6512:

These new works by two of the top U.S. composers were commissioned in celebration of the opening season in Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts.

Both are rather thorny to grasp at one hearing, but repeated listening and study show them to be major works by composers who have not exhausted the possibilities of tonality for their own work, as have so many others in this 12-tone age.

The Schuman work is big in idea, full of melodies which can be grasped quite easily, and possessing of vital and varied rhythms.

The Samuel Barber piece is based on a section of a Greek tragedy taking place after the fall of Troy. Hector's widow, Andromache, is forced to kill her young son. In the vocal part she tearfully bids him farewell.

THREE CONTEMPORARY CANADIAN COMPOSERS — HARRY SOMERS: Suite for Harp and Chamber Orchestra (Judy Loman, harp); MURRAY ADASKIN: Serenade Concertante; JEAN PAPINEAU-COUTURE: Piece Concertante No. 1 (Mario Bernardi, piano) — Walter Susskind conducting the CBC Orchestra — Columbia Stereo MS 6521:

Our friends to the north have been doing a great deal in modern music, and much of their activity has been supported by the only symphony orchestra in the network-broadcasting field in North America — the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. Symphony. Its Czech-born conductor has chosen three representative works in three very different styles and moods.

The Harp Suite is simply a delight and much needed by harpists, whose library is scant. The "Serenade Concertante" is an unassuming short piece spotlighting various instrumentalists during its course.

The weird prize goes to the third work, which is laid out like a "crab fugue," going to a middle point and then back to the start again in reverse —except that this piece is not a fugue.

BENNY GOODMAN
A long-hair again

RICHARD YARDUMIAN: Symphony No. 1; Violin Concerto—Anshel Brusilow, violin / Philadelphia Orchestra / Ormandy — Columbia Stereo MS 6462:

This American composer of Armenian descent has been fortunate in having Eugene Ormandy as a mentor for many years. Without frequent performances of this music by the Philadelphia Orchestra, his name would not even be as widely known as it is becoming now.

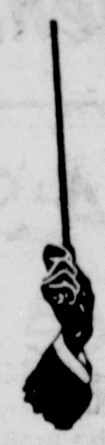

His work shares several similarities with the other Armenian-background composer, Alan Hovhaness — a tonal idiom rooted in the 16th century, and a certain mysticism. Yardumian is a follower of the philosophy of the 17th century Swede, Swedenborg.

The Symphony was inspired by the opening chapters of Genesis with their story of Noah and the Flood. It is an extremely interesting work.

The Concerto is a simpler and more direct work.

Stereo Hi-Fi

FM RECEPTION is still a major problem with some Marin County listeners. A discussion of some of the characteristics of FM may be of help in understanding and correcting some of these problems.

FM radio signals are line-of-sight transmissions as are TV signals; in other words, only stations within a 50 to 90 mile radius can be expected to be received, depending on the height of the receiving antenna. After the signal strength arriving into the receiver from the antenna reaches a certain minimum amount, usually 2 to 6 micro-volts depending on the sensitivity of the receiver, the receiver or tuner will reject static noises such as heard on AM. If you hear noise and static on your FM stations, car ignition noise, etc., your receiver is not getting enough signal. If you are not getting static noise, but the FM program sounds distorted, and your signal strength or tuning indicator show that you are receiving a strong signal, chances are that multipath signal is causing the distortion. Multipath signals are those that arrive from bounces off mountains or high structures. They are comparable to ghosts on the TV screen.

The answer to most reception problems is an adequate antenna system. In our area, best results are usually achieved by using a 6 or more element yagi type FM antenna properly placed on the roof. The antenna should be directed toward the stations, and so located that it will minimize reception from bounces.

We have found that in some cases, there is so much signal received on the ribbon type FM line that connects the antenna to the set, that the antenna does not seem to have any directional qualities. In these cases, the signal picked up on the down lead may actually be the major cause for the FM distortion and for bad FM multiplex reception. To improve this condition, the ribbon type FM line should be replaced with shielded 300 ohm twin lead, and the shielding grounded at the set end only.

In some parts of Mill Valley, Sausalito and Belvedere-Tiburon, we have found cases of severe overload causing continual frying sounds when listening to FM. One simple remedy that we have used is to cut the twin lead near the set and then tape 1 to 4 inches together without making electrical contact. This reduces the overloading signal and eliminates the frying.

Here's A Solution To Space Problem

In some respects, gardeners today face some of the problems of their European ancestors a couple of centuries ago.

Chief of these—where can I find room to grow fruit when there is no space for trees?

The French and English solved the problem with a device called "espalier." Walls facing the sun for the better part of the day supplied background support for fruit trees. The branches were trained in a single plane horizontally and vertically. The warmth of reflected heat from the walls ripened fruits to delicious perfection.

MORE AND MORE espalier-type plantings occur in California gardens, chiefly for the production of fruit, but many times just for the enjoyment of flowers and foliage.

To grow a good espalier fruit tree requires that it be grafted on a dwarfing rootstock. The principle is to slow up growth of the grafted variety by putting it on a stock that is barely compatible.

The slowdown is of benefit to the gardener because it places an otherwise vigorous grower in smaller perspective. He is able to keep the branches under control in a restricted area.

YOU CAN start your fruit tree espaliers from either ready-made trees on which two or three cordons have already been developed, or you can start from scratch with a well-branched dwarf tree. Accommodate one tree within each eight-foot section of fence, always facing the sun for at least eight hours of a day.

Provide horizontal wires, starting a foot and a half from the ground and one foot apart to the top of the fence. Choose an opposite set of branches for each strand of wire. When they reach the outer horizontal limits, let the branches grow upright, creating "U's" inside of "U's." Oldtimers call this the "candelabra system."

Most of the pruning is done during the growing season, pinching back the lateral growth and encouraging terminal growth.

Some gardeners prefer citrus to the deciduous fruits. They start with plants growing on dwarf rootstocks, choosing well-branched specimens of five-gallon container size. There are between 25 and 30 citrus varieties available.

A FAVORITE fruiting espalier is the loquat. When kept to a few well-chosen branches, growth is rapid and vigorous. The foliage is large and bold. Fragrant blossoms appear in October, clusters of fruit in April.

The modest-sized Magnolia St. Mary has glossy foliage with bronzy tomentose reverse. The blooms, as large as the regular evergreen magnolia, are sweetly scented. Close relative is the Banana Shrub (Michelia). Everything is on a smaller scale, including the leaves and the banana-scented flowers.

A variation of the straight-up or straight-across system of forming espaliers is the system used to train vines against fences. The wires are run on 30-degree to 45-degree angles, creating a diamond effect. Use it with Star Jasmine or Variegated Algerian Ivy for startling and handsome results.

THE IVY is particularly effective against dark redwood. The jasmine is beautiful in late spring when it is loaded with fragrant white flowers. During the balance of the year, beauty depends upon the neat, shiny foliage.

To get the best and quickest results requires regular attention from several directions. The plants should be fed once every other month during the growing season and watered regularly to keep up a continuous supply of new growth. The pruning shears should be applied once a month to thin out and cut back. The ultimate growth pattern is quite obvious with espaliers.

THE ACTUAL dimensions of your yard may not permit large trees or bushes. Then try espaliers. Even this evergreen magnolia, certainly one of our largest trees, can be contained very easily. Most other plants and trees are suited to this treatment. Your nurseryman can advise you as to what trees and shrubs are best suited to espaliering in Marin. (Photo by California Assn. of Nurserymen)

Flowering Favorite—The Maple

The Abutilon, better known as the flowering maple, sports its evergreen splendor throughout the state of California.

This shrub is rapid in growth and reaches heights from six to 10 feet depending on the variety. The flowering maple, hardy and yet beautiful, is a welcome addition to any garden or an exciting color accent in the patio area.

Abutilons are practically no-care plants. Place this shrub in moist soil and with partial shade from the sun's rays, you will enjoy the variety of color and pleasant coolness they can give.

FROM THE very beginning, tip the branches to encourage thick, compact growth. You can shape and train the flowering maple for use as a container plant indoors during the winter months and for terrace decoration in the warmer seasons. Just how lucky can you get? Year-round enjoyment and adaptation to any setting for very little care!

Check with your nurseryman and he will tell you which of the four most popular varieties is best suited for you. He can show you an example of the Abutilon hybridum, an upright shrub with gracefully arching growth reaching an average of eight to 10 feet. The maple-like foliage is an excellent background for the small, bell-like flowers in white, yellow, pink and red.

The vine-like Abutilon megapotamicum reaches 10 feet in height and just about the same in width. The small, cut-leaf maple leaves are an elegant background for the red and yellow small flowers. These delicate bits of color are even more enjoyable when you train the shrub to the particular pattern or shape that suits your garden.

THE ABUTILON vitifolium rapidly reaches a height of eight feet when planted alone. However, if you decide to train this flowering maple to cover a wall, it will attain a height of 20 feet.

There are gray-green leaves and light lavender-blue blossoms. The A.v. Vesuvius is the shortest of the family. It quickly grows to six feet and boasts orange-scarlet flowers of approximately two inches in diameter.

It seems like there is a flowering maple for just about everyone . . . check with your nursery for a complete selection and the one flowering maple just suited for your particular garden.

Handy Herbs Also Hardy

There are distinct advantages to growing herbs.

First and foremost, very few of them demand good soil. In fact most thrive in average to poor soil. This is an advantage to the gardener who does not wish to replace his soil.

Next, a wide variety of herbs may be grown in a small area. This will delight many a gardener with a small yard who is looking for something living to create an interesting picture.

And, not only will a warm, sunny place be the perfect spot for a good many herbs, but just think of all the delightful seasonings you will have for your food if you grow herbs.

If you fear that some herbs may become invasive, one good way to confine these is to set each plant in a hollow building tile sunk in the soil.

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✔You can still plant those dahlias and gladiolus bulbs. Check with you nurseryman for first quality tubers and corms to insure the biggest, healthiest blooms.

✔Now is the time to look for your favorite tuberous begonia.

✔When picking early rose blooms, don't try for long stems by cutting back too far. Leave as much of the leaf surface as possible for proper plant development.

✔For best results from your spring flowering, deciduous shrubs (i.e. spraea, philadelphus, weigela and forsythia) prune after they have finished blooming.

✔With the exception of column stocks and asters, pinch out the terminal bud after transplanting annuals from nursery flats. This insures bigger blooms and better branching.

✔Don't be stingy with the water for your lawn. A regular and thorough soaking is preferable to more frequent erratic light applications of water.

Just How Efficiently Have You Laid Out Your Home Workshop?

Lucky indeed is the home handyman whose workshop is as large as he would like it to be. Some, in fact, have to get along with a shop that really isn't a shop at all but a part of another room or section of the house or garage.

For those who have a minimum amount of workshop space at their disposal, here are 10 ways to make the most of that space:

1. Provide storage space for everything. Nothing takes up more space than unorganized clutter. When you get a new tool or piece of material, assign a storage space to it.

2. Use adjustable shelves for paint and other shelf-stored items. They can be made with metal support racks designed for this purpose or by drilling a row of holes vertically inside shelf sides and using wooden or metal dowels in the holes to support the shelves. Store items of the same height on each shelf.

3. Store all small hardware—nuts, bolts, cotter pins, etc., in small glass jars. Nail the tops of the jars to the underside of a shelf so that the items are both visible and handy.

4. Use overlapping tool panels. If there is not enough space for all your hand tools and power tool accessories above your workbench, hinge two or three swinging panels above the bench and hang tools on both sides of them.

5. Use overhead space for the storage of lumber. This can be done with one of the specially made and inexpensive types of metal suspension racks—or you can make your own of wood.

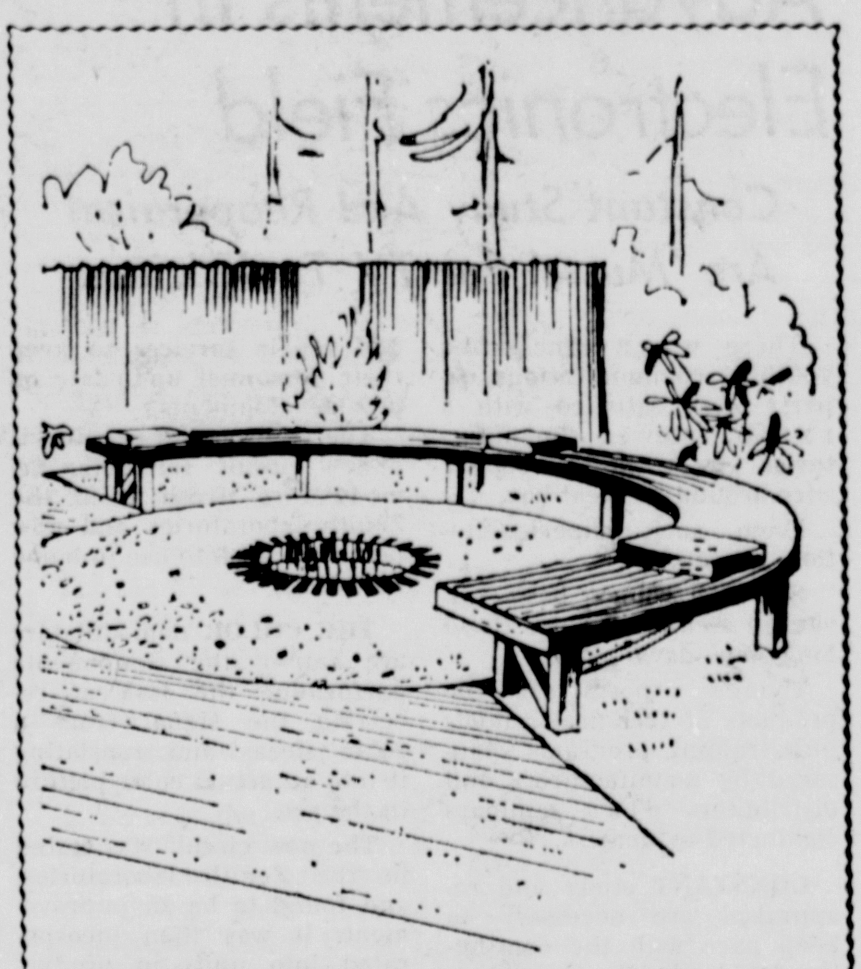

6. Mount power tools on casters so that they can be placed against the wall and out of the way except when in use. Use the kind of casters that can be locked in place or retracted while the tool is in operation.

7. In cramped quarters, position tools so that long pieces of wood and other materials can be extended through an open door or window while being cut.

8. Use wall space instead of drawers. Perforated hardboard sometimes provides a perfect answer to the problem of space.

9. Build a sliding board into your workbench, like the cutting board on many modern sink tables. The board is pushed back out of the way when not in use.

10. In certain cases—where you have a small space set aside in the basement, for instance— you can sometimes make good use of a few window shades attached from the ceiling. When the shades are pulled down, they provide a separated area for such things as painting and spraying.

SCREENING FENCE, curved bench and circular, sunken firepit make up a trio sure to please outdoor living fans. In this yard, a Douglas fir deck built almost on the ground terminates in the screened bench area, but the plan could be used for virtually any garden setting. Curved bench is nail-laminated of half-inch-thick Douglas fir.

Plywood Panels Can Save Handyman Time And Money

The physical structure of plywood makes it an especially desirable material for projects which require large, unbroken surfaces.

Plywood sheets measuring four feet by eight feet are standard in all lumber yards. Many dealers carry panels in smaller sizes and some will make cuts to exact specifications.

WHEN YOU are purchasing a four-by-eight sheet and doing your own cutting—which is the most economical method—spend a little extra time in laying out the work. You will discover very often that all the pieces for your project can be cut out of a single panel provided you plan the cuts properly.

In all woodworking, there is a certain amount of waste. But this waste can be kept to a minimum if you do not make the cuts in a catch-as-catch-can fashion. As any experienced carpenter will tell you, "measure twice and cut once."

AND DON'T forget to allow space for saw kerfs between adjacent pieces.

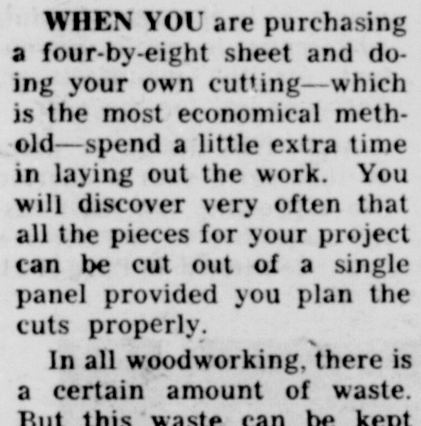

In doing the cutting, keep the good side of the plywood facing up if you are using a handsaw, a table saw or a radial saw. If you are using a portable saw, the cutting is done with the good side face down. This advice is designed to prevent the best side of the plywood from splintering as the saw goes through it. But a little splintering may occur with a handsaw until you get the knack of working with plywood. Until that time, the splintering can be reduced by placing a piece of scrap lumber under the scribed line and sawing both together.

Remember that plywood which will be used outdoors should be the exterior type. It is made with a special adhesive that holds the plys together in all kinds of weather.

PLYWOOD can be purchased either in softwoods or hardwoods. The softwoods include fir, pine, redwood and cedar. The hardwoods include birch, maple, oak, cherry, walnut, mahogany and beech. You will find that not all dealers carry all kinds, but if you want a special wood which your dealer does not have in stock, he should be able to get it for you fairly quickly.

The big seller is fir plywood, because it is the most plentiful and the cheapest. It has a wild grain that is a little tricky to finish, but which can be conquered by using one of the special sealers made especially for this type of wood.

Keeping Up With Advancements In Electronics Field

Constant Study And Reappraisal Are 'Musts' For TV Technicians

There was a time when youthful communications experts were satisfied with a radio receiver "manufactured" by wrapping copper wire around a cereal box.

From such experimentation, careers grew.

But electronics have advanced amazingly since those long-gone days.

Today's experts are the products of technical schools plus training programs sponsored by manufacturers and distributors plus seminars conducted by dealers.

CONSTANT study and reappraisal are necessary to keep pace with the continuing rapid advances.

For evidence of this, let's sit in on one of the weekly Thursday evening classes that Oakley Dexter, owner-manager of Dexter's TV in Larkspur and Novato, conducts for his service personnel. It is typical of programs carried on by many Marin TV dealers and repair services to keep their personnel up-to-date on new developments.

The subject this evening is a new circuit for color demodulators, fresh from the Zenith laboratories and now being placed into use in home color sets.

THE COLOR demodulators are among the components performing the task of receiving the signal from a color telecast and translating it into an actual color picture in the set.

The new circuit was tested in the Zenith laboratories, and found to be an improvement. It was then incorporated into units in production. Zenith field men notified distributors, who in turn invited the dealers in for instruction on the new system. The dealers, Dexter among them, were provided with schematic drawings of the circuit and informed of the improvement that resulted from its use.

Now Dexter was passing that information on to his own employees, using the drawings to illustrate his points.

IN DUE TIME, it may develop that the life and use of the new circuit will be affected by the varying conditions that a television set in actual home use encounters, in contrast to the standardized conditions of the laboratory. Any such information will then be channeled back from the service men through the dealer to the distributor and manufacturer and ultimately the laboratory, where indicated adjustments will be worked out.

Dexter says that TV manufacturers have two general objectives: To keep abreast of the rapid advancement within the industry and translate those advances into this product. And, to produce a unit that is easily maintained for use.

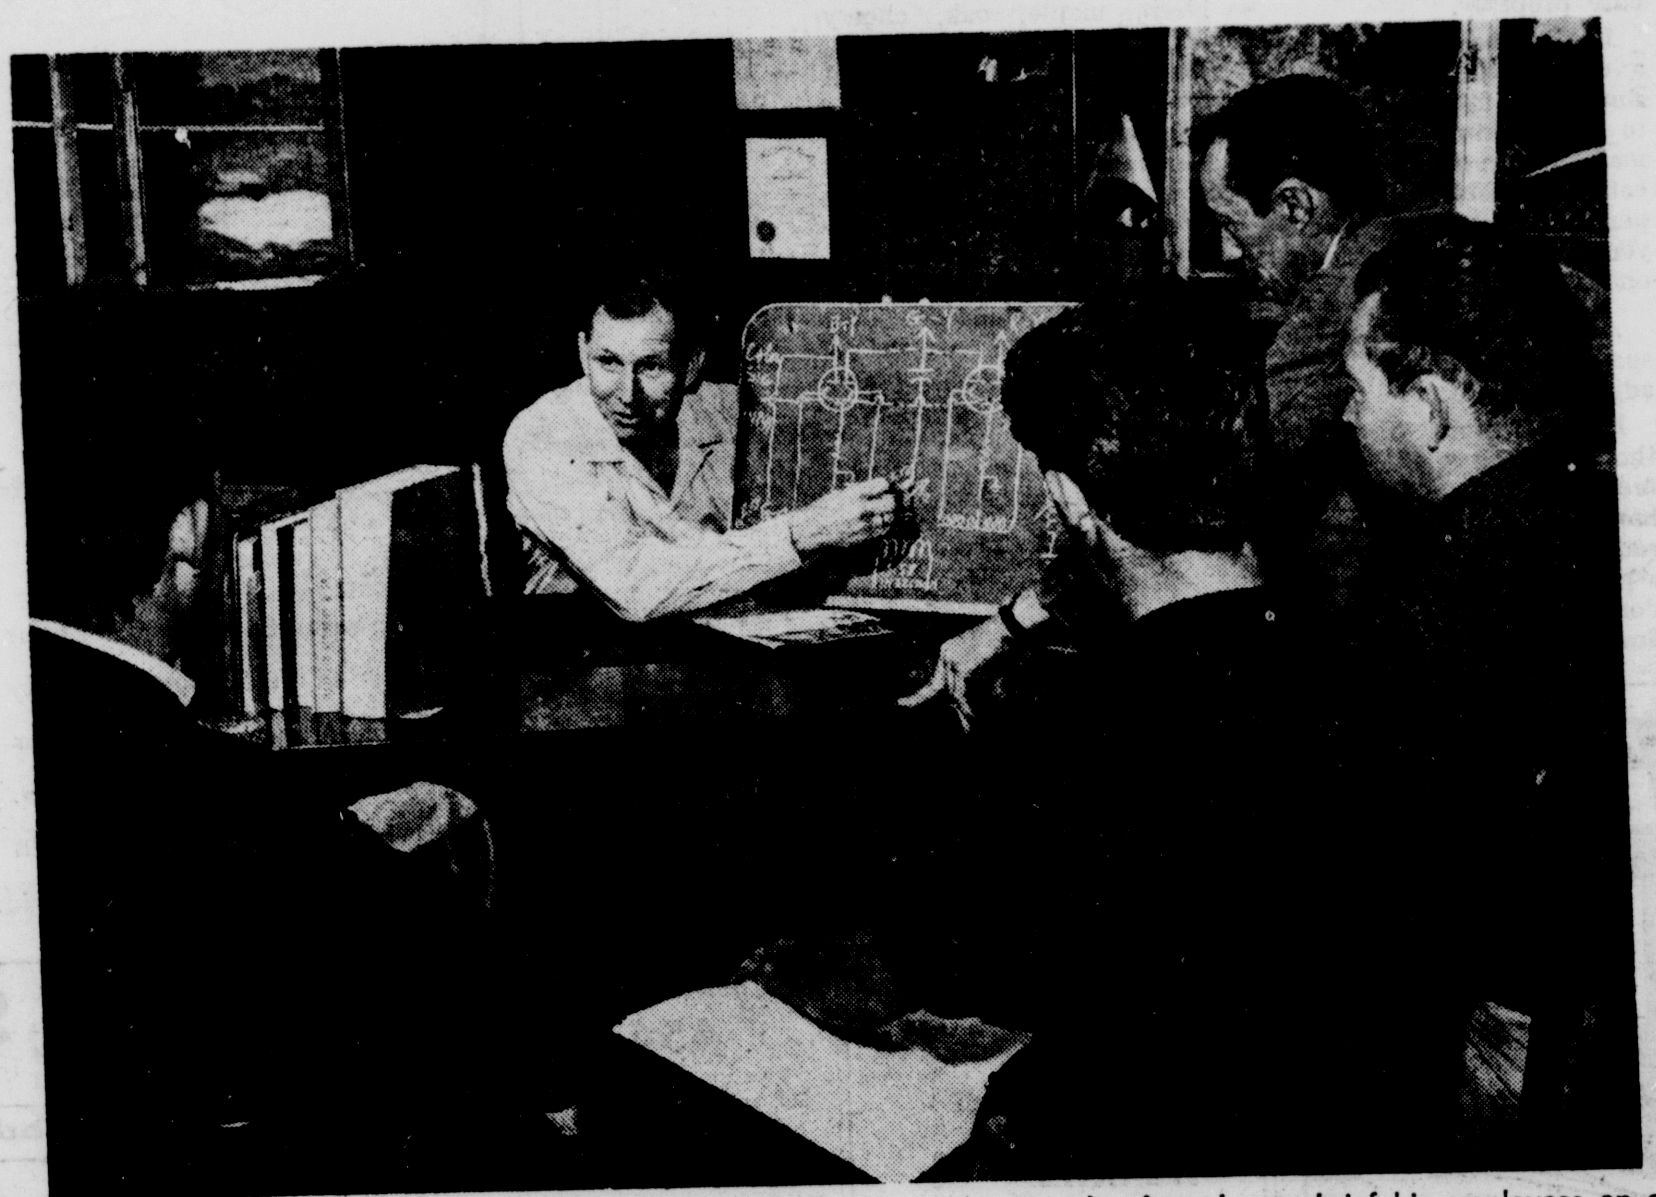

Thus a unit which requires replacement of whole segments, as in the case of printed circuits, is, while convenient for the manufacturer, uneconomical for the user.

AND THE design of units so that parts with a shorter life expectancy are most easily accessible to the service

THE USE of a RaFone crystal set radio, manufactured and sold in San Francisco about 40 years ago, is demonstrated by Oakley Dexter, owner and manager of Dexter's TV. This was one of the last deluxe models that included a crystal. Since then, electronics has made amazing advances. And those in the field are hard pressed to keep up with the gains.

TO KEEP THEIR personnel up to date on the rapidly changing field of electronic communications, radio and television dealers and service men conduct "schools" for their skilled help. Here Oakley Dexter, facing the camera, assumes the role of teacher to brief his employees on a new demodulator for color television. The schematic was drawn by Joe Kappel, second from right, from printed schematics furnished by the manufacturer. (Photos by Ken Molino) man is also of great concern.

Through the seminars, the manufacturers learn from the men in the field if they are accomplishing this second objective.

Do radio, television and high fidelity sound systems have a year model like automobiles and some home appliances?

"Yes and no," answers Dexter.

HE EXPLAINS: "New advances are incorporated in the product as soon as they are developed and tested. A manufacturer will announce a new model in which new developments are incorporated, but not always on a calendar basis. If these are improvements in reception, they are used in all models.

"If they are for added convenience, they are usually added to the total cost. For instance, remote control devices are extra, cabinetry is extra, color is extra, etc."

A customer tells Dexter: "I would like to have a television set with just one knob that does everything."

"THIS WOULD be possible," replies Dexter, "if you received a constant signal from a single station over a short distance."

Television transmission is constantly being interrupted by a number of occurrences. Some interference is the usual and easily understood forms such as passing airplanes. Some interference is a lot more technical.

In areas near the television transmitter, the signal is strong and a simple antenna and a single adjustment at the time of installation suffices, Dexter says.

But in weaker signal areas, the antenna must be placed where the signal is best received, and must be more elaborate in order to take every reception advantage. The varying distances and locations of the several transmitters must be considered.

"THE FACT that an antenna is sturdily-installed does not make it a good receiving antenna, and reception varies in Marin from house to house," Dexter says.

For the TV set owner, Dexter has some advice.

If your set does not light up, before you call your service man check these points:

1. Be sure the set is plugged in to the wall plug.
2. Be sure the wall plug is alive. The plug may switch on and off with a wall switch.
3. Check knob marked "brightness." One of the children might have altered it.
4. If set has a button marked "Circuit breaker," press it and release immediately.
5. If set has multiple uses (phonograph, etc.), check setting on dial.
6. If set has remote control, switch it to "manual" and turn it on at the set.

IF YOUR picture becomes "snowy":

1. Check antenna wire connection to set and be sure small strands of wire from one screw connection are not touching the other screw connection.
2. Check antenna wire into house for worn spots, especially around metal windows and sills.
3. Check antenna wire outside if it is within reach of children, animals, etc.
4. Check antenna wire for dirt. It can be washed with soap and water.
5. Be sure antenna wire has not been painted over.
6. If you are athletic, check lead to antenna, and after a heavy wind, check direction of antenna.

IF BY THEN you still have not located the source of your difficulty, then you are ready for the services of a professional television repair man.

But even he can't help you if it is the quality of the programming, not the quality of the reception, that is your problem.

If you have difficulty getting interested in the antics at Petticoat Junction or the doing aboard the Wagon Train, there's just one solution Turn the little knob counter-clockwise until it clicks. And sit down with a good book.

THE CHIEF TECHNICIAN for Dexter's TV, Joe Kappel of Novato, observes while Walt Potter follows a circuit on a new color Motorola television set. Kappel supervises all the more intricate readjustments performed in the shop.

"GOOD GROOMING ADVICE FOR YOUNG JOB HUNTERS"

This spring a fresh group of high school and college graduates will join the army of job hunters. For many it will be their first try at finding a job. A good education, an alert mind, and a fresh initiative will be attributes many of them will have, but, according to Annette Tatelman, prominent employment agent in Washington, D. C., even some of these young people will have difficulty.

Why? A rumpled dress or baggy trousers or the wrong attire can spoil the important first impression, says Miss Tatelman. A bad first impression because of poor personal grooming can needlessly create a handicap hard to overcome. A personnel man interviewing a sloppy, unkempt job applicant is immediately put on his guard. The first thing he sees is that the applicant is inattentive to detail, careless about some things.

Officials of The National Institute of Drycleaning asked Miss Tatelman just what is the proper attire for a job applicant. Her answer:

"You're always safe in a nicely tailored suit or dress. For a woman, hat and gloves go with the tailored look, and she should not overdress with jewelry, color or style."

A clean, well groomed suit is best for men — and "absolutely no loafers."

Good grooming has a side effect that is important. It gives a person a sense of confidence, and this helps greatly in making a favorable impression in a job interview.

THE EXHIBITS master showman Walt Disney has created for the New York World's Fair will be seen in "Disneyland Goes to the World's Fair" on "Wonderful World of Color" tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. over KRON-TV. Featured will be a miniature world of mechanical dolls that make up his "It's a Small World" exhibit.

A Disney Tour Of The Fair

An armchair view of Walt Disney's newest — and possibly most unusual—innovation will be presented on KRON-TV tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in "Disneyland Goes To The World's Fair" on Walt Disney's "Wonderful World of Color."

Highlight of the show, which will take television viewers through the exhibits Disney has created for the 1964 tourists' mecca in New York City, is "It's a Small World," the miniature world of mechanical dolls and other fantasy creatures built as a result of Disney's latest invention, "Audio-Animatronics."

MORE THAN 350 three-dimensional dolls, dressed in the costumes of many nations as a salute to the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund, have been built so that a single magnetic tape provides impulses which will activate pneumatic and hydraulic tubes within each doll to make it move.

This is "Audio-Animatronics" — objects electronically animated by sound.

"It's a Small World" is viewed from a boat which travels special indoor canals through a stylized and bespangled representation of 26 countries.

ALTHOUGH the New York fair will be the home for the audio-animatronic dolls for next year or so, they will eventually take up residence alongside other famous Disney creations at Disneyland in California.

During the show, Disney will also guide viewers on an animated history of fairs, then visit the Eastman Kodak Pavillion with its 15 different exhibits including the story of photography in science and space and the development of a fair visitor's indispensable companion — the camera.

Another feature of the hour-long television program will be a view of the 120-foot Tower of the Four Winds, which has been called the world's largest mobile.
